The Awkward Week Five Minutes From a Doctor Wall Street Parcheesi Fly, Red Eagle

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

THIS is the year's awkward week. Recovering from Christmas, drifting into the new year that will begin with good resolutions for some, fusel oil headaches for others.

One thing certain; he who makes no effort to use the year's last week well will probably do little with the 52 weeks of 1930.

New York's medical officer warns the world's richest, wettest city "If you must drink in this bootleg era, do your drinking not more than five minutes away from a doctor."

As soon as you swallow the pre-war, or right-off-the-ship liquor, wink your eyes a few times if they seem blurred, hurry to the doctor and have your stomach pumped out. You may be in time.

A simpler plan would be to take your little stomach pump to the party. First class stores might sell stomach pumps with silver cocktail shakers, on sale 10 times as numerously under prohibition as they ever were before.

A philosophical loser in the stock market smash compares building up a fortune to the game of parcheesi. "You go along nicely for a while shaking your dice, moving your little round men toward victory. Then suddenly you have to go all the way back and start over."

Many will have to make a new start, and some, too old, or too discouraged, will never make it.

It seemed to be a real earthquake. In a few days of October, stock values dropped 15 thousand million dollars, more than 50 times the sum spent to build the Panama canal.

However, no real values were destroyed. Everything that was in the country on October 1 is there now. It is not as though fire, tornado, or black death had swept the country.

Real values will return and go higher.

Some of the carloads of worthless stocks, printed to sell to fools, will remain worthless.

"Fly, Red Eagle of the Tyrol," is the name of a German play Italy wants a scene changed in which a youth of German blood tells how Italian gendarmes shot his mother.

Germany will oblige, the play will be toned down.

The incident is interesting because applause that greets the play and its patriotic utterances shows how easily a new war could start, once the nations get their breath.

Out in the wide world, our little Kellogg pact seems less important than when we were nursing, saying what wonderful things it would do.

At the naval reduction and partial disarmament conference, the pact will play no part there whatever.

The other four powers will discuss matters and the League of Nations will approve or condemn what is done.

Our European friends are glad to have our money and men. But they DO NOT want advice from us.

No Kellogg pact or peace palaver will prevent war, or the possibility of our being drawn into it, by some official glory seeker. But airplanes, submarines, bombs, and a good chemical department for the manufacture of various war gases would at least keep us ready. When Europe's "Red Eagle" starts flying, let us hope Uncle Sam will not be found hobbling around, unarmed, shouting platitudes, as in 1914.

Foolish Rumania, desiring to be somebody, joined, rather late, in America's attempt to give Russia instructions about her affairs in China.

Russia replied to us, frankly suggesting, appropriately, that we attend to our own affairs.

The reply to Rumania is another straw blowing in the war wind that might become a gale—the important Russian newspaper, Isvestia, referring to Rumanian occupation of lands that belonged to Russia, speaks of the cynical insolence of the Rumanian government. "One day that Balkan rabbit will regret it robbed a bear," is its comment.

Senator Borah wants prohibition administration and enforcement changed entirely. He says today "prohibition" authorities, "from top to bottom," will never enforce prohibition.

What does the earnest, able and sincere senator think WOULD enforce prohibition? Bootlegging creates funds running to hundreds of millions a year. It finances crime, such as no civilized state has ever seen, and unlimited sums for bribery.

Who will select an army of men that will not take bribes? Where will he find them?

Three Prisoners Flee Salem Jail

3 SAW WAY OUT OF JAIL IN SALEM

Man Hunt Is Started for Fugitives, One a Von L. Meyer Burglary Suspect

Salem, Dec. 26—Sawing a bar on a window off a corridor, three prisoners escaped from the county jail here today.

Their absence was discovered immediately after breakfast and the man hunt began, with descriptions of the escaped prisoners broadcast.

They are: James Mullen of Arlington, Frank Curry of Gloucester and Joseph P. McGuinnis of Peabody.

The break occurred while the remainder of the prisoners were at breakfast, the three men having remained in their cells unnoticed.

Apparently the bar on the window had been sawed nearly through at some previous time and a few minutes' work resulted in completely severing it.

A detail of officers from the jail, together with State troopers, took up the hunt, and it was expected the prisoners would be rounded up shortly.

Mullen had been sent to jail as a vagrant, and with Curry was awaiting trial. The latter was arrested in connection with the break in the summer home of Mrs. George von L. Meyer, widow of the late Secretary of the Navy, when a quantity of liquor was stolen.

McGuinnis was serving out a Concord Reformatory sentence for breaking and entering, having been picked up for violating his parole.

Tourists Flee Hub Liner Fire

Singapore, Straits Settlement, Dec. 26 (AP)—Approximately 150 tons of rubber were destroyed and 100 tons damaged by fire aboard the Dollar liner President Van Buren at its dock here today.

The 50 passengers were disembarked safely and sent to hotels. It was expected they would continue their voyage tomorrow.

There are two Greater Bostonians aboard the Van Buren, according to local agents of the line.

These two are Walter S. Allerton, lecturer, and his sister Adelaide, both of Babcock st., Brookline, and Somersworth, N. H.

They left Brookline two months ago on a trip around the world and were to have left the Van Buren at Singapore and waited for a following vessel two weeks after.

The Van Buren is due in Boston on February 7.

U. S. TO TIGHTEN RUM PATROL

Washington, Dec. 26—Drastic new plans for prohibition enforcement to include a unified border patrol and limitation of the number of ports of entry from Canada, will be submitted by the treasury to congress as soon as a joint congressional committee to consider prohibition questions is named.

Orden L. Mills, under secretary of the treasury, announced these plans today.

At present, Mills said, a person coming from Canada may enter this country anywhere along the border, but must report his entrance at the nearest port. This requires, he said, a patrol to work 10 to 15 miles inside the border.

Under the new plan, if approved by Congress and Canada, the patrol would work along the exact border and prevent entry anywhere except at points designated.

The Mills announcement came when prohibition had been brought to the fore by an attack on enforcement personnel by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, and de-

MARLOW CASE IS LINKED WITH DINNER HOLDUP

Vitale Robbery Staged to Get Back "$20,000 Contract to Slay Gangsters"

New York, Dec. 26 (AP)—A "gangster's contract" promising $20,000 for the killing of Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow was the objective of the seven men who held up the dinner being given for Magistrate Vitale Dec. 7, a police inspector testified today at the trial of former Detective Arthur Johnson, a guest at the dinner, who was disarmed by the robbers.

Inspector Joseph J. Dowgwa[illegible] head of the criminal identification bureau, testified that the contract was in the pocket of a Chicago gangster who was one of the guests at the dinner.

The inspector testified Yale and Marlow had encroached upon the operations of Ciro Terranova, alias Morello, a gangster, and Terranova, according to the inspector had hired a man from Chicago "to bump off" Yale and Marlow for $20,000, of which he had paid only $5000.

The payment of the balance had been delayed so long that the Chicago gangster threatened Terranova to turn over to the police a contract for the deed, which he held, unless quick payment was made, the inspector said.

"Terranova invited this Chicago man to the dinner to Judge Vitale and told him to bring the contract," said Inspector Donovan. "He knew this man had the contract with him and as a result the holdup was staged for the purpose of getting the contract."

Yale was killed a year ago last July in a Brooklyn street, shot down in his car by bullets from sub-machine guns in the hands of several men in a pursuing automobile.

Marlow was "taken for a ride" in June of this year, and his body dumped out in an isolated section of Long Island.

Edward L. Lewis, Al Siegel and Johnny Wilson, former middleweight boxing champion, are still

Frelinghuysen to Run Against Morrow

Raritan, N. J., Dec. 26 (AP)—Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who is opposed by Dwight W. Morrow for nomination as the Republican candidate for United States Senator, today issued the following statement:

"In deference to my friends and supporters throughout the State, I feel called upon at this time to brand as false the persistently circulated rumors that I will retire from the senatorial contest. Recognizing the right of the people under the direct primary law to decide who their candidate shall be, my name will remain on the ballot.

FINDS BODY OF FR. POWER IN GOOD STATE

Degree of Preservation of 60 Years' Burial Amazes Officials at Malden Shrine

The body of the Rev. Patrick J. Power, after 60 years of burial in Holy Cross Cemetery in Malden, was found to be in a marvelous state of preservation when removed recently to the new shrine near All Soul's Chapel.

News that the priest's coffin had been opened and that an examination of the body had been made was revealed to the Boston Evening American today by an official who was present when the transfer was made.

[illegible] coffin, covered [illegible] was decayed [illegible] to its earth. To the surprise it was tenderly [illegible] and the body of the young priest clothed in holy vestments and with hands folded across the breast, was disclosed to view.

Officials present were amazed at the well-preserved condition of the body, the hands and face especially. It was lifted up and further examined and very little decomposition was noticeable.

The surplice, purple stole and chasuble were said to be in as perfect condition as on that December day in 1869, when the body of the young priest was placed in the coffin.

All the conditions noted were detailed in a report which has been submitted to the ecclesiastical authorities.

Vermont Man Dies on Train on Way to Wed

Cheboygan, Mich., Dec. 26 (AP)—Both Dr. Earl Chapman, Michigan Central railroad physician and his daughter Nathalie, met the morning train from Detroit here.

For the daughter it was a day of days, for she was to meet Dudley Parkhurst Platka of Burlington, Vt., her fiance, who was coming to marry her Saturday. For the doctor it was merely one of those professional calls which break up the leisure of a holiday. He had been called by telephone from Indian River to treat a passenger who was ill.

Miss Chapman scanned the faces of the passengers. Platka was nowhere to be seen. Up the platform Dr Chapman and the conductor were standing beside the baggage car. Miss Chapman sought her father for an explanation but the latter was strangely evasive, and the daughter, looking through the open door of the car, saw a blanket covered figure. Her husband-to-be had been the stricken passenger to whom her father had been called and he had died during the night from pneumonia.

COAST GUARD CAPTURES SHIPS OFF HARBOR

Vessel From Nova Scotia Is Caught Running Dark Near Boston Light

Carrying a cargo of $180,000 worth of Monopole champagne, the schooner-rigged motor vessel Irene C. from Weymouth, N. S., was captured off Boston Light today.

Her capture came principally because she was running without lights. Coast Guards becoming suspicious when they sighted the black bulk against the gray of the night horizon.

The capture was effected by the Coast Guard patrol boat 132, in charge of Chief Boatswain's Mate Thomas Comerford.

When the coast guard went aboard they found a compact but powerful radio set for sending and receiving, one capable of being used in sending ship-to-shore messages.

The champagne ship captain and his crew of eight men were taken into custody and the Irene C. was brought to Boston, where the champagne was unloaded.

Her cargo figured 1700 cases, but the champagne was in burlap bags instead of in wood.

When the captain and crew of the vessel arrived in Boston they were taken in charge by Deputy Collector Thomas Finnegan and Treasury Agent Owen McKenna, who questioned the captives at the Appraisers Stores.

Fair and Warmer Is Weatherman's Gift

Fair and warmer weather for Boston with a resultant thaw, expected to clear the roads of treacherous ice, was predicted for today and tomorrow by the weather bureau.

While tonight will be slightly colder, with a temperature a few degrees below freezing, tomorrow will be clear and warm with south to westerly winds.

Boston's minimum today was 28 degrees. Greenville, Me., with 8 below, was New England's coldest spot.

Air Line Competes With Trains on Fares

Cleveland, Dec. 26 (AP)—The first commercial airplane passenger service to compete with railroad service on the actual price of transportation began here today. It is the Universal Air Line and the new rates are to be the exact equivalent of railroad tickets plus sleeping car fares.

Mrs. Locker-Lampson, who was formerly Bianca Jacqueline Pappa of Pasadena, Cal., died yesterday after having been suddenly taken ill on Sunday night.

Fight for Controls Fatal to 2 Fliers

Springfield, Mo., Dec. 26 (AP)—The struggle of a student filed and his instructor for the controls of an airplane was blamed today for the deaths of both.

Samuel Bartel, 35 years old, who was an army pilot during the World War, and W. B. Allen, of Mountain Grove, Mo., were fatally injured when the dual control biplane they were flying fell near Cabool, Mo. They took off after Bartel had been refused permission to take up passengers by Mayor H. E. McKinney, when citizens complained that the pilot was intoxicated.

Coolidge Would Dye Dog for Art Sake

New York, Dec. 26 (AP)—Howard Chandler Christy has a Coolidge story. The question arose as to what sort of a dress Mrs. Coolidge should wear when posing before him for a portrait. The artist suggested red with a white dog beside the sitter for contrast.

The President preferred a white dress. There was a little argument which ended when the President said: "Let it be a white dress, if you please. To allow for your contrast let us have the dog dyed red."

CRIPPLED SHIP FIGHTS GALE

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 26 (AP)—With her rudder disabled by mountainous seas, the Norwegian freighter Betty, 2449 tons gross, was hove to this morning riding out a gale 450 miles east northeast of Cape Race, N. F., according to a message received here from Capt. Beyer, master of the ship.

Word from the stricken freighter, 22 days out of Hull, Eng., coal laden for Halifax, came when fear was growing that the Betty had gone down in a recent gale.

When the weather moderates Capt. Beyer said an attempt will be made to reach St. Johns, N. F.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE DIRECTOR ATTACKS TEMPERANCE BOOK

CRITIC FINDS MANY LAW DETOURS

Dr. E. H. Cherrington Defends Prohibition in Review of Volume

At the request of the Hearst temperance contest committee, a review of its lately published book, "Temperance or Prohibition?" by Francis J. Tietsort, of which a large edition is being sold throughout the United States, has been prepared by a prominent national official of the Anti-Saloon League.

The following criticism was sought as a matter of fairness to the professional prohibition element; it is a document which speaks for itself.—Editor's note.

By DR. E. H. CHERRINGTON, Director of Department of Education, Anti-Saloon League of America

"Temperance" seems to be used as a synonym for the general consumption of intoxicating beverages in "Temperance, or Prohibition?" published by the Hearst temperance contest committee for the price of $1 and conspicuously not probably the fullest and the latest hopes, dreams, theories and vain imaginings of the opponents of prohibition.

Aside from quotations from a few supporters of the Eighteenth Amendment, who make one wonder "what are they doing in that galley," the volume, which sums up the entries in a recent prize "temperance" contest, seems to be devoted to suggested detours around the constitution.

There is probably some significance in the fact that most of the contestants quoted in the book are in practical agreement that the Eighteenth Amendment could not be repealed except by a majority they have no hope of obtaining. However, 23 per cent of the plans submitted in the contest urge such repeal while 15 per cent suggest an amendment to the amendment.

It is noteworthy that the winning contestant dismisses the idea of repeal and simply ignores the Eighteenth Amendment, proposing legislation by Congress and by the states in plain violation of the provisions of the amendment.

It seems assumed rather cynically by the authors of these plans that members of Congress will be recreant to their oaths to support the Constitution and that members of the Supreme Court of the United States will be sufficiently complaisant to interpret away the plain language of the Constitution.

RESPECT FOR LAW

As an illustration of the insidious manner in which this book inculcates disrespect for law, one might quote the following (from its foreword):

"Respect for law is a good thing when the laws and lawmakers are worthy of respect. But if the American people had had respect for all laws, good or bad, there would have been no Boston Tea Party to protest against the invasion of the rights and liberties of our people; no Declaration of Independence to declare liberty and equality as the inalienable rights of man; no United States of America to establish liberty and equality as the foundation stones of Republican government, and in that case, no President Coolidge, but only a certain Herbert Hoover, eminent engineer, and a loyal and law-respecting subject of His Majesty, King George V."

Of course, there is here the assumption of an analogy which does not exist. The Eighteenth Amendment was adopted by constitutional methods.

The representatives of the American people, in the Congress and in the various state Legislatures wrote this change in our fundamental law. It was done as one of the latest steps in self-government. It was done for the protection of the majority against a minority. It was done by citizens and not by subjects.

CONFUSING, HE SAYS

The citation of the Boston Tea Party or the Declaration of Independence might serve to confuse some who were not thoughtful about this subject. Aside from its value as a red herring drawn across the trail there is neither pertinency nor analogy in such a reference.

One serious confusion in this volume lies in its failure to even suggest any practical method, whereby the intolerants it urges could be safely vended in this highspeed civilization.

There seems to be no recognition of the fact that neither the Eighteenth Amendment, the National Prohibition Act nor State legislation against intoxicating beverages are more serious prohibitions of their use than the invulnable laws of economics, the traffic problem, the industrial rivalry which has keyed up our mass-productive factory system, or the new standards of living, which express themselves in home owning, auto buying, education of youth and provision through savings for the future, rather than in alcoholic orgies.

As an evidence of failure to recognize the problem which the nation confronts, one might quote from the chapter which discusses suggestions made by physicians, in which the editor points out: "They did not minimize the evils of overindulgence in alcoholic beverages but, nevertheless, they were strongly of the opinion that inebriety is a medical problem, with but remote relation to law or morals."

The drunken chauffeur, the tipsy air pilot, the inebriated engineer or the exhilarated operator of a high-powered factory machine may be a medical problem, but he is also a social menace which must be recognized by law unless we are to scrap our modern mechanism and return to the slower speeds in which, if ever, society might tolerate alcoholized members.

DEFENDS PROHIBITION

There is a curious misapprehension in the statement that prohibition has reached its high water mark and is ebbing. This book itself might be presented as evidence refuting that statement.

The hopelessness of achieving their ends save by either malfeasances or malfeasance of legislators who consider their oaths as meaningless, by some highly improbable decision of the Supreme Court reversing itself in scores of prohibition cases, or by a widespread agreement of officials and people alike, that a portion of our fundamental law may be nullified or simply ignored.

This book while very valuable to all of those studying the prohibition question, will probably be of exceptional value to those who are supporters of the Eighteenth Amendment since it is practically an epitome of all phases of wet opinion. It is almost encyclopedic in that respect.

Throughout the book there runs a note of pessimism which one can understand. The entrants in the contest each seem to be writing their "apologia pro sua vita" as though their antagonism to prohibition and their yearning for the days when one might become more or less alcoholically legally, needed, if not defense, at least some explanation.

In another long paragraph Dr. Cherrington denies any schism in the ranks of the Anti-Saloon League or that there has ever been "scandals affecting its management."

American Feast for Armenian Children

Leninakan, Soviet Armenia, Dec. 26 (AP)—Within the shadow of Mount Ararat, traditional site of the landing of Noah's Ark, 12,000 homeless and parentless Armenian boys and girls, who were rescued from starvation and massacre by the American Near East Relief organization, sat down to a gigantic Christmas feast provided by the American people through that relief society.

The "feast" did not consist of turkey, as it might have in the United States, but of fatted calves which might have come from Noah's Ark itself. American pumpkin pie and cranberry sauce were provided by the American nurses, who had been preparing for the event for a whole month.

This is believed to have been the largest single Christmas dinner given by American charity in any part of the world. After Dr. Joseph Beach, of Yale University, director of the Near East relief, conveyed Christmas greetings to the children from the American people, the American nurses and relief workers presented each child with an outfit of warm winter clothing made by American women and girls who contributed to the Near East relief. After that, the 12,000 youngsters, the girls dressed in immaculate white and the boys in blue, formed themselves on the field in front of Mount Ararat into gigantic human letters, reading, "America, You Saved Us!"

held in high bail as material witnesses in connection with his murder.

Inspector Donovan said his information came partly from the "undercover" detail of the department and from an investigation of the Tepecano Democratic Club, sponsors of the dinner and of which the magistrate is honorary president.

Previously Police Commr. Whalen had charged that the club was a hangout for men with criminal records and that there were many known criminals at the Vitale dinner. The club is not the regular Democratic club of the district.

"After the holdup," the inspector testified, "Sam Savino, Joseph Catanio and Daniel Iameschia left the scene of the dinner and were instructed to go out and get the jewelry and money that was taken and return it. In two hours they returned with the jewelry and some of the money and delivered it at the clubhouse (Tepecano)."

BYRD TO NAME 15 OF PARTY FOR HONORS

Will Submit List to the Navy Department on Arrival in the U. S.

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—Richard Evelyn Byrd, recently made rear admiral by Congress, will recommend 15 members of his expedition for commendation by the Navy Department as soon as they return from the South Pole regions, because, he explained by radio today, they "deserve great credit for the work of the expedition for which the leader has been promoted."

The message from Byrd, acknowledging an announcement of his advancement in rank was made public by the Navy Department. It came from the expedition base in Little America, to the navy's radio station at Tutuila, Samoa, and thence to Secretary Adams.

Signed "Byrd," the message said:

"The department's message informing me of my promotion to rear admiral, is respectfully acknowledged, and I send sincere appreciation for the department's congratulations.

"Immediately upon return to the States there will be fowarded to the Navy Department commendations of 15 navy men who have contributed greatly to the success of our enterprise and who therefore deserve great credit for the work of the expedition for which the leader has been promoted."

again today to gain admittance to the home shrine.

It is estimated that more than 1000 persons, bearing wreaths and flowers for the graves of loved ones, visited the cemetery Christmas Day. A number of cripples tried to approach the new grave of Fr. Power, but were turned away by the police. Those who had to pass the spot to reach certain graves were not permitted to tarry at the shrine.

Workmen today are erecting the wrought iron fence that will enclose the grave.

Irish Paper Reprints Story on Fr. Power's Life

The wide-reaching influence of the Boston Evening American was evidenced again today when a letter was received from James F. Hazel of 34 Winchester st., Medford.

With the letter was enclosed a clipping from a newspaper published in Bantry, Ireland, home town of the Rev. Patrick J. Power, at whose grave in Holy Cross cemetery, Malden, many cures have been claimed.

The letter said:

"As I am a constant reader of your paper, I took great interest in reading the accounts of the life of the late Father Patrick Power, especially as I had been born in the same town, Bantry, County Cork, Ireland, where I am well known, being a brother of William and Michael Hazel, large fish merchants well known in England and other countries where they do business.

"I read so much of what others put in your paper from time to time in regard to Fr. Power's grave that I wrote to Ireland and asked my folks to look up his early life and family.

"I received the enclosed cutting from a local paper which may be of interest to you and some of your readers. You may wish to publish same."

The Irish clipping was a reprint, word for word, of the first instalment of Fr. Power's life story, published in the Boston Evening American in November.

mands by other senators for a report on its prohibition study by the Hoover law enforcement commission.

HOOVER'S SUGGESTION

President Hoover suggested to Congress several months ago that it name a committee to confer with the Treasury and Department of Justice regarding the executive's plans for transferring prohibition enforcement to the Department of Justice from the Treasury, and the resolution authorizing such a committee is now pending in the Senate.

Dry leaders in and out of Congress were shocked as the full force of the Borah declaration that prohibition can never be enforced with the present personnel became apparent today.

Atty.-Gen. Mitchell and Prohibition Commissioner Doran struck back with the declaration that their loyal army of agents is making headway in the face of many handicaps.

The Borah blast and attacks by Senator Harris, Democrat, of Georgia on the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission, threatened to make the dry issue the first business of Congress despite the tariff and other pending matters.

TO SEEK 50 MILLIONS

Atty.-Gen. Mitchell is expected to push his demands for new legislation, while other dry leaders will also demand reorganization by law as the cure for the admitted evils of enforcement. Among the proposals pending or to be offered are:

Increased funds for enlargement of army of dry agents, by Senator Harris of Georgia. Amount may be $50,000,000 additional to present annual funds totalling about $35,000,000 for prohibition agents, coast guard and other agencies.

Creation of joint congressional committee to study reorganization and transfer of part of enforcement duties from Treasury to Justice Department pending a report. Recommended by administration, but drys are divided.

Creation of inferior federal courts to permit handling of many classes of prohibition cases by commissioners instead of federal judges, and obviate necessity of juries. Expansion of court machinery.

Among those joining in the latter demand is Bishop William F. McDowell of the Methodist Church, who denounced the Borah statement.

Senator Borah in his statement declared that "with the present personnel in charge of enforcement of the prohibition law 'nothing' will be accomplished."

Borah's broadside was of unusual significance since the senator was one of President's Hoover's chief campaigners during the presidential contest and crusaded for the dry plank in the Republican platform..

AROUSES MITCHELL

Atty.-Gen. Mitchell, taking issue with Borah, said:

"Those in the department connected with prohibition enforcement have been for months past busy on measures for improving personnel, relieving congestion in the courts, reorganizing the enforcement agencies and meeting the multitude of problems arising in the effort to improve conditions.

"When Congress is ready to consider and adopt legislation to carry out the administration's recommendations for more adequate law enforcement machinery, those whose duty it is to enforce the law will be able to accomplish more."

With the approval of the treasury, Doran asserted Borah's condemnation of the entire prohibition personnel was "unfortunate and bound to have a disheartening effect on the morale of the service."

Informed of the Mitchell and Doran statements, the Idaho senator met the attorney-general's reference to efforts to improve enforcement with the remark that "evidently its conditions were such as to call for an effort, and an heroic effort."

Sheppard to Push His Rum Buyer-Felon Bill

Washington, Dec. 26 (INS)—With various departments of the government at loggerheads over prohibition enforcement, Senator Sheppard (D.) of Texas announced today he planned to push action on his bill to make the purchaser of liquor a felon along with the seller.

The Texan said that hearings on the bill would be held by the Senate judiciary committee as soon as the tariff bill is disposed of, despite the differences of opinion among the drys as to its merits.

WOULD REWARD TIPSTERS IN DRUG WAR

Rep. Fish Also Plans Bill to Deport Aliens Convicted in Narcotic Cases

Washington, Dec. 26—After the Christmas recess, Rep. Fish (R.), of New York, will request Congress to pass two bills designed to curb the illicit drug traffic, according to a statement he made today after asserting that dope is chiefly responsible for the crime wave of "such terrible proportions in this city."

One would permit the payment of money to any person who gives the government information concerning a violation of the anti-narcotic laws. The other would provide deportation of any alien who violated the laws.

Only when the nations of the earth place humanitarian and moral motives above the financial revenues derived from the opium business and limit drugs solely to the amounts required for medicine and science can the dope traffic be suppressed, Fish stated.

The League of Nations has proposed an international conference to limit drug manufacture, but has planned no restrictions on the amount of opium grown. This would mean, in the opinion of observers here, that there still would be a vast oversupply of the poisonous dope. Neither will the leaguers' present program restrict the use of the manufactured drugs which the United States already prescribes.

"The illicit traffic in smuggled dope is on the increase in spite of the vigilant efforts of the government enforcement officials," said Fish.

"There are a number of large international drug rings operating in the United States, backed by ample capital and guided by shrewd and unscrupulous minds. The profits are so enormous that the underworld crooks do not hesitate to take any risk to smuggle narcotics into the United States, and then through well developed organizations, to deliver the drugs to every state.

"In the carelessness of the narcotic problem has not been fully recognized by the American people or by Congress. It is only from reliable authorities that over 50 per cent of the crimes of violence in the country are attributable to the use of drugs.

"In spite of the pious pronouncements by civilized nations, the paramount difficulty is the willingness on the part of the nations to produce as much opium as they can, many fold the amount required for the legitimate use of science and medicine.

"Dope is seeping into the lifeblood of the American people and brings misery, disease and crime in its wake."

night were in solitary confinement.

Warden Charles E. Linscott declared that 310 prisoners turned the institution into a riotous bedlam when their Christmas movies were omitted because the authorities could not get proper films. Today when 10 of the men persisted in refusing to work, they were refusing to go to work, they were threatened with discipline and two who remained defiant were placed in straight jackets and put in solitary.

The place will be closed so tight from now on that the air won't be able to get out," Warden Linscott declared today.

In commenting last week on the riots in the Auburn, N. Y., prison, Warden Lawes asserted that too much welfare work and too little discipline could probably be blamed for unrest in penal institutions.

He indicated today that he would apply strict discipline to suppress the unrest. He declared that for the mutiny last night the prisoners, many of them lifers, would be deprived for a long time of their usual Friday night movies.

Describing the din raised by screaming bawling convicts, Warden Linscott said it was the "worst he ever heard." The prisoners stamped, beat on the bars of their cells with utensils and insanely cursed the guards.

Eighteen who were caught actually screaming imprecations were yanked from their cells, cuffed to other prisoners and rushed to the "ark hole in the prison hospital.

Warden Linscott asked for state troopers, and a squad of 12, heavily armed, under command of Capt. Jonathan Harwood, responded and were on duty at the prison today.

They will remain as long as is considered necessary by the warden.

MORE FLIERS AND PLANES RUSHED TO ALASKA FOR EIELSON HUNT

EXPEDITION GETS BIG WELCOME

Headed for Advance Base to Search Over Frozen Wastes to Shores of Siberia

By T. M. (PAT) REID
Flight Comdr. Eielson Relief Expedition

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service and Toronto Star

Seward, Alaska, Dec. 26—We landed in a blinding snowstorm but safely, thanks to the wonderful navigating ability of Comdr. R. W. Dempwolf of the Coast Guard cutter Chelan.

We had hardly docked at 11:30 a. m. when the work of transferring our three Fairchild planes to the Alaska railroad began. We should be able to ship them to Fairbanks tomorrow and then, at 24-hour intervals, we expect to send a plane a day to Teller or Nome to begin our search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland.

It was a wonderful greeting that we got as we landed in the blinding snow flakes. Youthful carol singers from the Jessie Lee Memorial school were at the dock to greet us. So were the mayor and other prominent citizens.

We had a very enjoyable Christmas dinner on board the Chelan. And every member of the party gave the highest praise to the entire ship's company of the Chelan for the wonderful aid they have extended us in the first lap of our expedition.

Capt. Dempwolf's handling of the Chelan as we entered Resurrection bay was an eye-opener to the other pilots as it was to me.

It was impossible to see anything in the heavy snowfall, but radio signals flashed from the station on shore and the coast guardsmen's knowledge of the shore line guided it safely to the dock, with almost no loss of time from the bad weather conditions.

The planes are being loaded on flat cars for shipment to Fairbanks. At Fairbanks we will reassemble them and then fly to the advance base probably at Teller. And from Teller we will start our flights to North Cape, Siberia, and a general patrol of the district where we hope to find Eielson and Borland.

Borah Notified of Soviet Plan to Hunt Eielson

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—The Soviet government today formally notified Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee that it was organizing an airplane expedition to search for Carl Eielson and Earl Borland, American aviators, during six weeks off the Siberian coast.

Senator Borah received a cablegram from M. Litvinoff, foreign commissar of the Russian government, to whom he had appealed for aid in the quest for the fliers. Secretary Wilbur had also asked, informally, for help.

The cablegram to Borah said the Soviet government was organizing an expedition under command of Semon Shestakoff, who recently made a successful flight from Moscow to New York.

Two airplanes at present located at Bay Providence also will participate in the search.

"The Soviet government will be happy if the purpose of the expedition will be successfully achieved," Litvinoff's cablegram said.

Heard Plane Near Where Fliers Vanished

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 26—A clue has been uncovered in the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, Arctic fliers, Alfred J. Lomen, director of rescue operations in Nome, reported in a dispatch to the Seattle Times.

He said Pilot Joe Crosson radioed a message from the trading ship Nanuk near North Cape, Siberia, that traders and natives near there had heard Eielson's plane circling overhead for a long while as though seeking a place to land.

While not stated in the message, it is assured that the plane was heard near the ship on Nov. 9, the day it was last seen flying from the Alaska mainland to the ice-bound Nanuk to take passengers and fur off the marooned vessel.

Tardieu Calls on Ambassador Edge

Paris, Dec. 26 (AP)—Premier Tardieu made a long Christmas call Wednesday upon Walter C. Edge, new American ambassador to France. The premier chose the holiday so that he could present his greetings personally to the Edge family and at the same time have a lengthy chat about many questions interesting to France and to the United States.

DOUBT RAIL ACT WILL PASS SOON

Washington, Dec. 26 — It is doubtful whether a railroad consolidation bill can be put through Congress in the near future, although favored by the administration and leaders of both parties.

Senator Fess (R.) of Ohio, author of a consolidation bill introduced in the last Congress, announced just before he left Washington that the measure might be modified in some important places in view of the five-system plan for Eastern territory devised by the interstate commerce commission in its proposal submitted to Congress.

The Fess bill and a bill pending in the House offered by Representative Parker of New York, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, are similar in purpose, although they differ in detail.

The Parker bill is purely permissive, but in the opinion of railroad men the Fess bill has at least one provision that ultimately, operating as a law, might force railroads, especially short lines, into consolidations that were distasteful to them.

The provision in the Fess bill under discussion is one which permits the commission to authorize a carrier which is a party to a plan of unification to acquire by condemnation the properties, rights and franchises of another carrier which is not a party and which limits upon "unreasonable" terms if the commission determines that it is in the public interest that such carrier should be made a party to a given plan of unification.

Indications are that the House committee will begin a study of the railroad situation in January with a probability that the Parker bill or a measure approximating it will be reported.

Pope Passes Quiet Christmas, Reading

Rome, Dec. 26—Pope Pius XI. members of the royal family and Premier Mussolini celebrated Christmas in their respective domicilies.

The Pope, after celebrating midnight mass, returned to bed and slept a little later than usual. He received his brother and other relatives, and the remainder of the day he spent reading.

Queen Helena took charge of the annual distribution of gifts to the children and personnel of the royal household. Prince Humbert spent the day at his private residence, Villa Savoia.

Plane May 'Rain' Mail Down for Dakotas

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—Mail would drop from the skies for residents of a thinly settled portion of the Dakotas if the proposal of a would-be rural mail carrier is adopted.

Because of heavy snow drifts and mud in spring, the postoffice department has had difficulty delivering mail to 52 residents on the route between Hittinger, N. D. and Red Owl, S. D. Now the Rapid City Air Lines, Inc., has bid for a contract to carry the mail by plane. The route would be from Hittinger to Newell, S. D., thence to Red Owl. The air lines' bid was for $8800 annually, $800 more than the automobile bid.

Mail and parcels dropped in bundles, possibly by parachutes. A major difficulty, for which a solution is not given in the airplane bid, would be that of taking up outgoing mail. Representative Williamson, Republican, South Dakota, has asked the postoffice department to give careful consideration to the airline's bid.

CURING GIRL BY HYPNOTISM

Los Angeles, Dec. 26—Miss Leone Berry, 19, a dancer, is amazing physicians at St. Vincent's Hospital by her apparent recovery through hypnotic treatment from a state of paralysis.

Originally paralyzed on her entire left side, including her face and tongue, Miss Berry has responded under the physic spells until there now remains only her power of speech to be regained

Dr. Cecil E. Reynolds, well known psychiatrist, has been given the hypnotice treatments to the girl. He was called into the case by Dr. F. D. Anton, a leading Los Angeles practitioner.

The girl's malady was diagnosed as "hysterical paralysis." Pins thrust into the flesh on her left side brought no response. Other tests showed her completely paralyzed.

In treating her Dr. Reynolds induces a degree of brain and nerve passivity by administering a small amount of chloroform.

The girl responded to the first treatment. The doctor commanded her to get out of bed and walk. She struggled up from her pillow; then, gaining confidence, sat up. With little hesitation she stood and walked across the room.

As she appeared to realize that she was walking the spell broke and she fell into the arms of the nurse.

French President Aids Herrick Fund

Paris, Dec. 26 (AP)—President Doumergue has accepted the presidency of a committee charged by the municipality of Paris with erection of a statue in memory of the late Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France.

Premier Tardieu, Foreign Minister Briand and former Premier Poincare also have stated they will be proud to serve on the committee. Premier Andigne of the municipal council appealed to all patriots to subscribe. The Bank of France, which seldom allows its name to be used for such a purpose, will receive the subscriptions.

Soviets in Control of No. China Railway

Tokyo, Dec. 26 (AP)—Execution of the protocol between China and Russia for the control and operation of the Chinese Eastern Railway actually began, said a dispatch from Harbin to Rengo, Japanese news agency, with the return of Soviet officials to the railroad zone today.

Inauguration of the agreement thus marks the end of five and one-half months of quasi-warfare along the Manchurian border.

CAROL MAY SEE HIS REGAL SON

Copyright, 1929, by Int. News Service

Paris, Dec. 26—Prince Carol, the exiled father of the boy King Michael of Roumania, may soon return to his native land—but only to see his regal son.

This was revealed today by Michael Werboff, Russian portrait painter, who has spent several months at Carol's country estate, Chateau du Coesme, where the prince and Madame Marie Lupescu, his morganatic wife, have sat for him.

It is an open secret here that emissaries of the prince have long been carrying on negotiations to obtain permission for Carol to visit his son on Roumanian soil, the only place where the meeting could conceivably be arranged for a long time to come, in view of Michael's kingship and minority.

The success of these negotiations, resulting in the lifting of his exile by the Roumanian government is attributed by Werboff to the human consideration that a father should be allowed to see his son.

BIG DECREASE IN CHRISTMAS RUM DEATHS

Boston and Other Metropolitan Cities Report No Fatalities

(By International News Service)

A marked decrease in the number of liquor deaths was revealed today in a nation-wide survey of post-Christmas casualties by International News Service.

Based on reports gathered throughout the country, there were fewer fatalities from poisoned liquor this Christmas than ever before.

Up until noon today, few deaths from alcohol were registered. Patrick Clifford, railroad laborer, died in New Haven. Samuel Fleming, 20, was a victim of alleged poison liquor at Bellaire, Ohio. Two liquor fatalities were reported in San Francisco, one resulting from a man mistaking acid for liquor. Robert E. Hudson, war veteran, was said to have died from bad liquor at Richmond, Va.

LIQUOR PLENTIFUL

Despite the drop in the booze dead list, the supply of alcoholic beverages was reported undiminished.

Denver reported that drinking was heavy, but confined mostly to private parties.

"Most dealers ran out of supplies," it was said. "Everything was orderly, with only a half-dozen arrests and no illness or deaths resulting."

Pittsburgh said that no liquor deaths were reported in West Pennsylvania, yet the supply was plentiful. Conditions were quite orderly.

Northern New England reported that no liquor deaths were recorded.

FEW ARRESTS MADE.

"Boston on its good behavior," said the report. "Fewest number of arrests for drunkeness since advent of prohibition in Boston with only 78 men and women charged with intoxication."

In four great metropolitan areas —New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Washington—the scenes of large poison liquor toils in previous years, there was not one death reported until noon today.

The negative report on alcoholic casualties continued to pour in from all sections of the country.

While direct deaths from liquor were at a lower level, there was one indirect casualty recorded in the killing of Eugene F. Downey, Jr., as a Buffalo police officer, when a coast guard patrol fired on the motor boat in which he was cruising.

Jan. 5—Sunday day of rest for the visiting royalties; informal calls.

Jan. 6—Formal reception in the Quirinal Palace to highest officials of Italian state, with the participation of the visiting Kings and Princes and high Belgian officials.

Jan. 7—Reception in the Quirinal to the diplomatic corps and over 2000 persons presented at court.

Jan. 8—Wedding in Pauline Chapel of the Quirinal. After wedding breakfast, the bride and bridegroom will go to the Vatican City to pay homage to the tomb of the first Apostle in St. Peter's. Then they will be received by Pope Pius. In the evening there will be a family dinner in the Quirinal Palace, restricted to he visiting sovereigns and Princes and members of the two royal families.

Jan. 9—The Prince and the Princess, with their parents, will repair to the Pantheon to lay wreaths on the tomb of King Victor Emanuel II, the prince's great grandfather, on the 52d anniversary of his death. In the afternoon, a reception by Rome municipality.

Jan. 10 to 31—Gala performance at Royal Opera.

Surrenders After Shooting Boy, 14

Okmuigee, Okla., Dec. 26—J. C Simpson surrendered to the deputy sheriff at Henryetta after shooting and killing Charles Henry Williamson, 14-year-old Henryetta high school student, in his peanut field, and was brought to Okmuigee, where he was confined in the county jail.

County officers indicated that charges would be filed against him today.

Bride Will Defend Title on Honeymoon

New Orleans, Dec. 26 (AP)—Marion Turpio is to defend a golf title on her honeymoon. After she is married to Robert C. Lake part of her wedding trip will be passed at Biloxi, Miss., at the Pan-American tournament next month.

INQUIRY BARRED IN KILLING BY COAST GUARD

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 26 (AP)—The speed boat in which Eugene F. Downey, Jr., was shot fatally by coast guardsmen last night was identified today by Commander Martin W. Rasmussen of the Buffalo coast guard district as one pursued on several recent occasions as a liquor carrier, N.y liquor was found on board. Downey's death was pronounced due to loss of blood.

Federal authorities had not announced the result of their investigation today.

United States Attorney Templeton refused to allow police or the medical examiner to question the three coast guards involved. Dist. Atty. Moore has started to investigate independently.

Rasmussen said further that Downey, who last week was indicted on a charge of liquor smuggling, previously had been seen in the same boat, a 36-foot Dodge "Sear Horse," which had a capacity of 60 liquor cases.

Medical Examiner R. N. Dominicis expressed his surprise today that Templeton refused him permission to question the guardsmen.

Dr. Dominicis said he would perform an autopsy later, but would not issue a certificate of burial until he determined his authority to question the coast guards.

Here Are Two Who Found Love in News

Hershey, Pa., Dec. 26 (AP)—The engagement of Miss Esta Murrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. R. Murrie, to James Logan Clevenger, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Clevenger, of Perth Amboy, N. J., was announced today.

Miss Murrie's father is president of a big chocolate company. Her fiance is the son of the publisher of the Perth Amboy News. It is a newspaper romance in that Miss Murrie was a reporter on the Harrisburg Patriot while Clevenger was on the staff of the Associated Press at Harrisburg.

Ex-Spanish Count Celebrates Mass

Seville, Spain, Dec. 26—Count de Aldama, former deputy from Granada, who is living the cloistered existence of a monk in the Silesian monastery near here, celebrated his first mass, assisted by his two sons. His wife, who also has just taken religious vows, and two daughters who have been nuns for several years attended the service.

HISTORIC ROOM TO BE OFFICE FOR HOOVER

Old Presidential Study in the White House Taken for Business Callers

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—In a famous old room that has witnessed much of the unfolding drama of American history, President Hoover will receive his business callers during the next few days and administer the affairs of the nation.

Until suitable quarters are provided for occupancy during the restoration of the west wing of the White House, destroyed in the fire of Christmas eve, Mr. Hoover has elected to use the historic presidential study on the second floor of the executive mansion.

No time is to be lost, either in rebuilding the executive offices or in providing accommodations for the period that process will take. Arrangements have been made for housing the executive staff in the adjoining State, War and Navy building.

All the furniture in the destroyed executive offices, with the exception of the President's desk, which was badly damaged, has been transferred to the State, War and Navy building and the chief executive's personal files, all of which were saved from the fire, have been stored away in the White House proper.

Blame for the fire today was placed upon a defective and overheated flue in the office of Walter Newton, one of the President's secretaries, by the chief engineer of the District of Columbia fire department.

YOUTH'S DEATH ACCIDENTAL

New York, Dec. 26—Benson Boring, 20, Harvard student who died in an 11-story plunge from a window of his parental home on Claremont ave., "had everything to live for," according to his father, Dr. William A. Boring, director of the Columbia School of Architecture.

Christmas Eve Boring and a girl who had long been a friend of his family, went to a party. The last his parents saw of him alive was when he left their apartment early in the evening in excellent spirits. They have since learned that he became violently ill after taking a mixture of food and drink and the only explanation they have for his plunge is that he may have leaned out of the window which adjoined his bed and toppled over.

His death was listed by the police as accidental. The girl who passed the evening with him told his parents that they had eaten a cheese dish that had made her ill and that had made Benson feel squeamish. On top of that he had some wine and became ill in his room.

"He was as happy as any younger could be," said his father "He was popular and took out a great deal. He had everything to live for and was doing splendidly at Harvard. He did not care for drink but was deeply interested in his studies and in sports, particularly tennis, in fact, he was quite a tennis player."

The youth was a junior at Harvard, an honor student who was studying classical archaeology and hoped to become an Egyptologist.

Benson Boring shared many of his father's tastes and the Borings had anticipated an interesting future for their son. The funeral service will be held at 11 o'clock, Friday morning, in St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University.

3 Capital Notables Hurt in Auto Crash

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—Dwight F. Davis, Jr., and Miss Cynthia Davis, son and daughter of the governor-general of the Philippine Islands, and Peter O. De Treschow, counselor of the Danish legation, suffered minor injuries in an automobile accident here last night.

Their machine, driven by the diplomat, and another collided at Wisconsin ave. and Military rd. All three received cuts from splintered glass and minor bruises. Three negroes in the second automobile were similarly injured.

Robs Rectory, Then Attends Services

Brunswick, Me., Dec. 26—Donald Michaud of Temple st., Waterville, confessed to a break at the rectory of the Church of St. John the Baptist during the hour of the midnight service, police claim.

Michaud admitted attending services after the break, police say. A $100 in collection money was stolen at the rectory.

Soon You Can Open the Garage by Radio

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—Radio research now promises to relieve the automobile driver of the occasional awkward necessity of getting out to open his garage door when he wants to put his car to bed at night.

The Commerce Department, from its Berne, Switzerland, office, is responsible for foreshadowing the possibility of this novel use of electric waves. The new invention is ascribed to the chief engineer of the electrical system of Neuchatel. The driver of a car approaching the garage will press a button and the apparatus on his machine will emit waves reaching a radio aerial affixed to the garage top, and these will start a motor which automatically will throw open the doors.

'Santa Raffles' Gets Himself in Jail

Chicago, Dec. 26 (AP)—James Buck, or Santa Claus, as he chose to designate himself, was climbing through the window of a home on Hartray ave. with a pack on his back. A policeman observed him and pulled Santa back out of the window and inquired what was the idea.

"I am Santa Claus," said Buck. "My friends a to live here, are away and I thought I would seize the opportunity to slip through the window and deposit gifts about the place."

"You may," said Officer Sachs, "be Santa Claus to little children, but you're just a suspicious character to me."

There was no denying Santa had some nice presents in his bag. It was not surprising, for he later explained to policement the presents had been collected from some of Vanzone's best homes.

$20,000 GIFT FOR RAYMOND'S EMPLOYES

People who live in the city, with so many things themselves to do oftentimes wonder how folks who live in the country spend their evenings. The employes of a great Boston institution discovered the answer this year on Christmas Eve.

Out in hills not far from Boston, an unusual man sat before the cozy warmth of a rosy log fire and pondered over the everold, yet ever new problem of "what to give,"—but in his case the problem was not so much "what" as "how."

For many years he had been giving presents of money to those who had served him and his store throughout the year, but somehow mere money seemed to fall short of the real spirit of Christmas—the personal touch was lacking. And in the quiet hours of a winter's night in his country home, Frank Dorr found a way to make his Christmas more real for those to whom he gave his presents, just by giving them himself, as Santa Claus.

MAKES TOUR OF STORE

Frank I. Dorr, you know, "keeps store" on Washington st. in Boston, in a place called Raymond's. It's a different kind of a store that reflects the personality of a man to an unusual degree. Simple in his own tastes, he has made a store that is free from frills and fancy ideas. It is typical of the man that his Christmas party should be as simple as the way he "keeps store."

Just before closing hours on Tuesday, Santa Claus began a pilgrimage through every department of "the old Store,"—a real live Santa Claus, Frank I. Dorr, himself, in the red suit and white whiskers of the old saint himself. To every employe who had been with the firm more than six months was given a bankbook with a substantial amount credited as the initial deposit. In each book was a personal message from Daddy Dorr—every one signed by himself—and when you realize that means over 600 signatures you picture a man's sized job.

It wasn't an easy task to visit every corner of the many buildings which house the Raymond store and to see each employe individually, but that was Dorr's self-appointed task, to which he devoted the entire afternoon. Not as the head of the house, but as Frank Dorr, who knows most of the crew by name, and all of the old-timers by their first names. And there are old-timers aplenty, with Nelson Van Guilder (who buys the hats), as the dean of them all, with a record of 33 years on Raymond's payroll.

PROUD OF PENSION PLAN

"It's a great thing," said Mr. Dorr, "to be able to be a real Santa Claus to our folks, but we like to do it more than just once a year. Our bank books represent over $20,000 this year, and it is gratifying to know that these savings accounts in the past have been the basis of bank book entries that today are in excess of $90,000. It is also pleasing to feel that our free insurance and pension plans are a year 'round way of saying Merry Christmas."

Parenthetically, it might be noted that in addition to the Christmas gifts and pensions, Dorr insures all his employes, $500 after the first six months and an additional $100 each year thereafter until the policy is $1000. The firm pays the entire cost. Then there is health insurance for everybody. And, in addition, there are bonuses for department heads, amounts running up into the thousands.

Continuing his remarks, Dorr said:

"We are particularly proud of our pension plan too. Somehow it seems to me that it is not right to fire a man or woman when old age makes it impossible for them to keep up with the demands of their jobs. Those of us who are employers owe something to those who have helped make our business successful. In my case, the elderly worker gets a decent pension when his days of service are ended. I don't know how many we have on the list, but I do know that it makes us all feel a bit better at Christmas to know that we have not made life harder for those whose years of service have meant so much to us.

GIVES MONEY TO KIDDIES

"As far as this Santa Claus thing goes, I've got a great kick out of it. It is the one thing we needed to make us just a little closer, and to give me the real fun of having a genuinely personal touch in the Christmas party of those 600 wonderful fellows and girls who make up our happy family."

"I guess the idea went over big at that," mused Dorr, "because as I went through the store a lot of youngsters who were in town with their parents, came up to me and told me how good they had been and what they wanted Santa Claus to bring them. I hope that they were not disappointed."

What Frank Dorr forgot to say was this—When those youngsters came up and whispered in his ear, Santa Claus Dorr slipped into many a tiny palm a crisp new bill as his own Christmas gift Cashiers in all parts of the store reported raids on their tills by the benign old bandit, but Frank Dorr said, "That's all right; it's Christmas."

Merry Xmas A La Dorr

Frank I. Dorr, head of Raymond's, stepped into the Santa Claus role long enough to present each of his employes with a bank book with a substantial amount credited as the initial deposit. It represents a gift of $20,000 for his staff.

Sliver of Glass Kills Woman in Fall

New York, Dec. 26 (INS)—A fragment of glass lying on the floor of her apartment caused the death today of Mrs. Averill Bigges, 42, West 115th st. Her husband found her face downward with the glass piecing her throat after he heard her fall. It is believed she fell when she suffered a fainting spell.

Coast Guard Gets Liquor Flotsam

Rye Beach, N. H. Dec. 26—The Christmas chest which thirsty individuals in this vicinity hoped that Santa Claus would bring at low tide in the vicinity of Rye Ledge failed to materialize.

From midnight on only four cases of liquor were washed ashore and in each instance it was seized by the Coast Guard from the Rye Beach station.

RUBIO IS PAID HIGHEST HONOR BY THE U. S.

Washington, Dec. 27—Pascual Ortiz Rubio, President-elect of Mexico, arrived in Washington at noon today for four days of ceremonies in his honor by the United States government.

He was to call on President Hoover this afternoon and the President will later return the call at the embassy.

The next Mexican President and Senora Ortiz Rubio were met at the station by Secretary Stimson and Mrs. Stimson, who were accompanied by Ambassador Tellez of Mexico.

The Mexican ambassador introduced Senora Ortiz Rubio to Secretary Stimson and then the party, including the President-elect's aides and attaches of the Mexican embassy, proceeded to the presidential waiting room of the Union Station through a corridor of marines.

As they left the station they were greeted by four flourishes from the United States Army band which then struck up the national anthem. On entering the waiting limousins a guard of honor of the Third cavalry presented sabres and escorted the procession from the station.

The parade led to the Capitol grounds and down Pennsylvania ave. past the Treasury building and the White House to the 14th street st. to the Mexican embassy. A police motorcycle cordon led the party rapidly to the embassy, where another cavalry company resumed military honors.

The United States Naval band also played while the party left their car and entered the Mexican diplomatic mansion.

Sons Seek Father "Taken for a Ride"

Providence, Dec. 26 (AP)—Three sons of Joseph Robinson, 62, Brooklyn, N. Y., mattress manufacturer, arrived in this city today to conduct a personal search for him and announced the offer of a $500 reward for information leading to his discovery. Mr. Robinson has been missing from his home since Saturday.

On Sunday telephoning from the Union station here he said he "was being taken for a ride." He was alone, however, and appeared to the telephone switch board operator in the station to be a free agent. He has not been heard from since.

'ARCTIC' TEST IS PLANNED FOR ARMY PLANES

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—Fliers of the Army Air Corps will advance early in January over a 3500-mile "battle front" from Detroit to Spokane, to measure the endurance of men and equipment in sub-zero weather and test the value of short-wave radio communication.

The War Department today announced its tentative plans for "the contest in the front yard of the Arctic circle against the shock troops of winter—snow, ice and sub-zero temperatures."

Experiments in long-distance radio communication between the command and prominent air stations will be conducted in co-operation with the American Radio Relay League, which will create a network through thousands of amateurs to span the country from coast to coast and border to border.

January 5 has been tentatively set as the day when 18 pursuit planes and two army transports, equipped with skis instead of landing wheels, will start from Selfridge Field for Spokane by way of Duluth, Grand Forks, Glasgow and other intermediate points. The return route will take the fliers through Helena, Butte, Miles City, Bismarck, Fargo and Minneapolis.

Maj. Ralph Royce will be in charge of flight.

THE WEATHER

For Boston and vicinity—Fair and warmer tonight and Friday; moderate shifting winds becoming fresh south to west. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 28.

For Southern New England—Partly cloudy tonight, Friday increasing cloudiness and warmer; moderate north winds tonight shifting to fresh southwest Friday.

For Northern New England—Partly cloudy tonight, not quite so cold except in extreme eastern Maine; Friday cloudy followed by rain or snow in interior, not so cold except in northern Vermont; fresh ports winds tonight shifting to southwest Friday.

Eastern New York—Fair, not so cold tonight; Friday increasing cloudiness followed by rain in north portion; warmer in central and south portions; moderate west shifting to southwest winds and increasing.

OCEAN FORECAST

Steamers departing today for European ports will have fresh northwest winds and partly overcast weather to the Grand Banks.

Noted Astronomer Dies of Pleurisy

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 26 (AP)—Ralph H. Curtiss, 49, professor of astronomy and director of the University of Michigan observatory since 1927, died yesterday of pleurisy.

Prof. Curtiss was born in Connecticut, received his education, including his doctorate at the University of California, and was an observer and instructor at California and at the Lick observatory until 1905.

Dance Director Weds Former Wife

SEEKS TO HAVE HIS ASSISTANT OUSTED

Providence, Dec. 26 (AP)—United States Attorney Henry M. Boss, Jr., announced today that he has requested Atty.-Gen. William D. Mitchell to order Joseph E. Fitzpatrick dismissed as first assistant United States attorney in the Providence district.

Mr. Fitzpatrick promptly issued a statement charging Mr. Boss has furnished him no reason for his action "other than political expediency."

Mr. Boss said he acted because he wished his assistants to be men who would co-operate with him. Mr. Boss said last spring, when a temporary United States attorney he succeeded John S. Murdock in the office, he asked Mr. Fitzpatrick to resign. Mr. Fitzpatrick refused. Mr. Boss last week was sworn in as United States attorney for the full four-year term.

"I was astounded when Mr. Boss called me into his office and requested my resignation without giving any reason therefor other than political expediency," Mr. Fitzpatrick asserted. "Our relations have been most cordial and he has often expressed approval of my work. I had every reason to believe that I would be reappointed."

DEDICATE NEW CITY BUILDING AT AIRPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The Municipal Administration Memorial Building at the Boston Municipal Airport will be officially dedicated next Sunday by Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols.

Festivities are scheduled to start at noon, with an aerial parade of every ship on the field, and the actual dedicatory exercises will begin at 2 p. m.

Occupying places almost as prominent as that of the mayor will be Maj. Robert F. Raymond, Jr., chairman of the Aviation Memorial Committee which raised the funds for the memorial portico and control tower incorporated in the building, and Park Commissioner William P. Long, under whose guidance the airport has grown to one of the finest flying fields in the east.

The order of the planes taking off in the aerial parade has not as yet been determined, but it is safe to say that the Army, National Guard and commercial planes will form close "V" formations, and sweep over the city while the office workers are starting out to lunch.

Immediately after the formation flying, several of the commercial and military ships will put on a short aerial show, performing at their best for the crowd expected to attend the dedication of the new building.

Then, as the zero hour of two o'clock approaches, Director of Public Celebrations George H. Johnson will introduce Park Commissioner Long as presiding officer, and the affair will get under way.

GOV. ALLEN TO SPEAK

The national chaplain of the American Legion will ask the invocation. Gov. Frank G. Allen has been invited to bring the greetings of the Commonwealth, for the airport is leased from the state by the city for a period of 20 years.

All the assistant park commissioners, and Airport Superintendent Albert Lovell Edson will then be introduced, and short speeches will be made by them. A man and a woman flier of the airport will be introduced, and short speeches will and girls who use the airport for business and pleasure flying.

Maj. Raymond is scheduled to follow with dedication of the first of the bronze tablet containing the name of the 226 World War fliers who gave their lives for their country. Father Sullivan famous chaplain of the Army Air Corps during the war, has been invited to come up from New York to call the roll of these "war birds whose wings are folded around them forever."

Taps will be played at this stage, and then a World War flier's mother will unveil the tablet.

The big moment, that is, bigger than all the rest, comes directly after the unveiling of the tablet, when Mayor Nichols dedicates the building and opens it officially to the public. The national chaplain of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will offer benediction.

All during the program, band music will be furnished, and the whole program is scheduled to be broadcast.

Invitations have been sent to all the mayors of cities throughout New England, and to airport engineers and fliers.

DINNER AT NIGHT

To wind up the affair in the proper manner, a dinner will be given by the city in the evening, and then, as the last half-inch of cigar is smoked, and the last speech made, Boston's and New England's first municipally owned airport administration building will be a reality.

The public at large is invited to attend, with no admission charged at the gate.

With all his maps all lined up, and his motor ticking off the revs in perfect order, Lyle "Slim" Halstead is all set for his take-off to Florida, Friday, in William Danforth's Bellanca Pacemaker cabin monoplane.

Realizing that his chief pilot is on his way to the warmer climes and will not be back until after the cold weather disappears from this neck of the woods, Bob Benson, operations manager at Beverly Airport, has organized a farewell party in Slim's honor at a night club tonight.

The party will not be a large affair, but will have all the friends of Slim and his wife, and Bob promises a good time.

"Slim" is grinning from ear to ear every time he thinks of the six long, cold winters he spent on the Boston Airport, and this, the first winter he has had his transport license, finds him stepping out in a whale of an airplane going where he will be nice and warm for the next couple of months.

Charlie Arnold, the "king of the barnstormers," bobbed up with a Christmas card, and from what we can make out of the postmark, he is in the woods somewhere down in Georgia.

Arizona Suspect Not Fred Burke

Nogales, Ariz., Dec. 26—Sheriff H J. Patterson said the fingerprints of J. P. Barton, arrested here on the belief he was Fred Burke, Middle Western gangster, were unlike classifications received from Chicago.

Officers noted a striking facial resemblance between the man and Burke, wanted in Chicago for questioning in connection with the St. Valentine's Day gang massacre, and in St. Joseph, Mich., where he is accused of slaying a policeman.

Given Gold Badge

Worcester, Dec. 26—Capt. John D. Mahoney of the police department, who was promoted to a captaincy this month, was presented a police captain's gold badge, set with a ruby, last night, by patrolmen and officials of Station 4, where he had commanded the night shift as a lieutenant.

Boston's First Family Holds Holiday

Clark Nichols — Marjorie Nichols — Dexter Nichols

Fifteen persons, including relatives from Maine and Michigan, sat down to Christmas dinner at the Jamaica Plain home of Mayor Malcolm Nichols. It was a great day for the Nichols youngsters, Clark, Marjorie and Dexter, all of whom were stuffed with turkey and "fixins" and, likewise, were remembered on a liberal scale by Santa. (Staff photo.)

Crippled Kiddies Are Feted by Mrs. Hearst

New York, Dec. 26—Into movieland, where for the first time they heard the wonders of the "talkies," went more than 1000 little crippled children.

It was Christmas Day again. Once more had come the annual party that Mrs. William Randolph Hearst provides for the city's small unfortunates in hospitals for crippled children throughout the city.

This time it was the Warner Theater, Fifty-third st. and Broadway.

Once more were the five big green buses provided by the Fifth Avenue Coach Company to transport hundreds of fragile little bodies on their day of days.

Mrs. Hearst, accompanied by her twin sons, Elbert and Randolph, stood in the back of the Warner Theater auditorium to greet the little visitors and give them toys as they came out.

Not a seat was vacant. Assisting Mrs. Hearst were Harry Charman, general manager for the Warner theaters; Edward Bonns, assistant general manager, and Edgar Wallace, house manager. The theater was lent for the occasion through the courtesy of the Warner Brothers.

The program began at 10 o'clock. The first number was Santa's greeting as he emerged from a large chimney.

This vitaphone presentation was the first "talkie" experience for most of the children.

Then followed the "Tiny Town Review," a whole vaudeville show performed by Lilliputians on the screen.

After this came Baby Rose Marie, four-year-old singer and dancer, who inspired the children to sing with her in the chorus of "Don't Be Like That."

"The Dance of the Paper Dolls" was the next presentation and was done in technicolor, with fascinating specialty songs and dances.

At the close of this, contented sighs rippled down the aisles. Now for the big First National feature, the football picture, "Forward Pass," and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Loretta Young.

Dolls, candy, fruit and sewing kits were given the girls. The boys received baseballs and bats, harmonicas and candy, all wrapped in the Christmas trappings of tissue and tinsel.

Among the institutions and associations from which the children attending Mrs. Hearst's Christmas party were drawn are the Children's Aid Society, Catholic Charities, Association for the Aid of Crippled Children, Sisters of Atonement, Bellevue Settlement, Kip's Bay Boys' Hospital, Crippled Children's School, Lenox Hill Settlement, Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled Children, Stuyvesant House, Bellevue-Yorkville Health Demonstration, Christadora House and East Side Settlement.

WANT FRANCE'S NAVY SECOND

Paris, Dec. 26—That France should lay claim at London to a larger navy than that of the United States or Japan and second only to Great Britain is the argument of a new school of thought in France.

The French delegates will not likely make such a claim, but the popular sentiment must be considered when France contemplates any sacrifices.

It is claimed by its sponsors that France is a greater colonial empire than the United States or Japan.

BISHOP FLAYED FOR SERMON ON BIRTH CONTROL

London, Dec. 26—A torrent of criticism was heaped today on the recent outburst of Dr. Barnes, bishop of Birmingham, who has shocked Britain out of its normal self-complacency by announcing it is producing too many people and will soon have to regulate the supply of population.

"Not quantity but quality of citizens" was the bishop's text, and although in this he bore out the doctrines put forward by eugenic and birth control advocates for many years, he went entirely contrary to the accustomed views of English clerics who have hitherto preached "increase and multiply."

The nation which sets before itself the ambition largely to increase its population is already a bad partner in the international commonwealth of mankind, and a church which refuses to face such facts is already a reactionary force in world politics," said the bishop, and he pointed the moral from the British viewpoint.

Two dangers face Britain, he declared. One is that countries near here becoming overpopulated—he instanced Southern Ireland particularly—will attempt wholesale emigration to Britain.

"Great Britain," he said, "sooner or later must close her doors to indiscriminate immigration and try to breed not more citizens but better citizens."

LOU TELLEGEN SAVED BY MAID

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 26—Lou Tellegen, stage and screen actor, was burned about the body in his room at the Hotel Jefferson, after he had fallen asleep with a lighted cigarette in his hand.

The actor was found lying across his bed, unconscious, by a chambermaid, who forced the door after she had seen smoke pouring from the transom. Tellegen was taken to the Atlantic City Hospital, where physicians worked over him for an hour before he regained consciousness.

The dense smoke in the room had caused him to lose consciousness and his burns would have been more serious, police said, if the maid had not seen the smoke when she did.

Squirrels Prefer Historical Table

Editor Boston American:

Squirrels, denizens of the Granary Burying Ground, Tremont st., like historical lore.

They may be seen daily jumping through an open window at the rear of a bookstore on Park st. and landing on top of a small log, cut from the old elm on Boston Common. There are other places more comfortable for them, while they are eating peanuts and walnuts, but for some reason, they chose the elm piece for eating their daily lunch. I take great pleasure in getting them different kinds of nuts. They know me well and will always respond to my chirp. No matter how busy I am at the typewriter, they will never molest me till the machine stops and then begins the fun. They never gnaw the old histories local and national that surround them. I thought your readers would like to hear about the squirrels on the Granary. They are so cunning.

RUTH KLEMER

Rockefeller Fund for Aurora Study

Editor Boston American:

Those of us who are interested in the Alaska College of Agriculture and School of Mines at Fairbanks, Alska, will welcome the news that The Rockefeller Foundation has appropriated $10,000 for the study of the aurora. This sum will be given in portions every year until 1933.

Dr. Stormer of Oslo, Norway, a great authority on heavenly studies, will furnish two special cameras and other photographic supplies, to be used in this scientific observation. Conditions will be ready for the scientists who are to make a polar flight next April on the dirigible Graf Zeppelin from Fairbanks, the base of the flight. Many in Boston are interested in this achievement of knowing more about the aurora.

Faces Do Not Always Reveal Character

Editor Boston American:

"Can you tell a criminal by his face?" I heard this discussed in an informal way by several policemen. This conclusion was reached by one of them, who seemed to have more information than the others upon this matter.

"If one has a flat face that indicates complete absence of thinking power," this officer maintained. "Look at the width of the mouth; there is something ape-like in that. The low, sloped forehead is only a little higher in its development than savages. Such brain as this man could have would be sunk so low toward his neck as to be of little use to him." The officer then said he was quoting from an English book on criminals. Another officer piped up and said: "Never mind your face. I knew a preacher in Boston, now dead, that had some of these marks that you have described and was everything but a criminal. The face may reveal much, but it is not as accurate as the compass and you cannot judge character always by it." What do your readers think about this?

Bill Posters Never Miss a Chance

Editor Boston American:

What was said in your Editor's Letters column about plastering the roadside with advertising signs is endorsed by every one who believes in keeping natural scenery free from this desecration.

A window was broken on Bromfield st., Boston, last week and then boarded up. No sooner were the boards in place than a bill poster comes along without any authority, spattering his paste over its surface and sticking "ads" over it. This is an imposition. Some people think that you have no rights until you assert them.

No Race Suicide in Colonial Days

Editor Boston American:

It is well for every reader of the Boston Evening American to cram up on the history and achievements of people, who lived in and around Boston nearly three centuries ago.

They had little or no troubles about marriage in those days. They were thrifty people and as a writer upon that period says: "They were prolific, marrying early and often."

Roger Clapp of Dorchester was happy in the possession of 11 children. He named some of them: "Experience," "Waisstill," "Preserved" and "Hopestill."

Benjamin Franklin was one of 17 children. William Phipps, who became royal governor of Massachusetts, son of a poor gunsmith, belonged to a flock of 26 children, all of them of the same father and mother and 21 of them sons. They helped one another. They enjoyed one another and they made home with their large families, a place, with one glad sweet song.

Watch and Ward and Booksellers

Editor Boston American:

The methods of the Watch and Ward Society are not different today than thirty years ago, when one of their agents pried himself into the confidence of a second hand bookseller, located at the South End, posing as a book worm, but seeking to purchase Boccacio's "Decameron" for his library. He was told that this book would not be sold. After persistent requests trying the patience of the bookseller and insisting that he wanted this book for his library, the bookseller gave way and sold the book to him. This buyer then turned around and arrested the bookseller. The fine was $100, but in taking the case up to a higher court the indictment was imperfect and was thrown out by Judge Holmes.

This bookseller is now well known in Boston and bore this treatment on the part of the Watch and Ward Society with signal patience.

26 Robberies in 12 Hours in Chicago

Chicago, Dec. 26—While thugs celebrated Christmas with many crimes, major fires meantime injured eight persons and caused $200,000 damage.

One man was killed and five others were wounded in a series of holdups, robberies and gun battles. Police stations were besieged with reports of bandits entering stores, restaurants and homes. Taxicab drivers, motorists and pedestrians told one after another of being held up on the snowy streets. Twenty-six such crimes were marked up in less than 12 hours.

Mark Christmas in Harvard Yard

More than 100 Harvard students, unable to go to their homes for the Yuletide holidays, held their Christmas celebration within the confines of the Harvard yard. And to many of the students whose homes are at other extremes of the continent and who were unable to make the long and expensive trips, the day was just another day of studying for mid-year examinations, only three weeks away.

The only formal observance of the day at Harvard was the annual Christmas night reception of the Phillips Brooks house to students unable to go home

Hibernian Women Entertain 150 Boys

The woman's auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hiberinans gave a dinner and Christmas party to 150 boys of the Working Boys Home industrial schol at Newton Highlands. The boys enjoyed a dinner, a Christmas tree and hundreds of presents.

After dinner Miss Mary Gleason, county president of the auxiliary, made an address. Brother Fabian was in charge of the party and superintended skating on the charles and sliding on nearby slopes.

Homeless Men's Hotel Is Closed

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 26—Hotel De Gink, a hostelry for homeless men which has become widely known, closed its doors after serving a Christmas dinner to more than 1000 outcasts.

The institution has been sponsored by Mayor Frank X. Schwab, who will relinquish his office January 1. Its work will be taken over by various city and social agencies.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Dearest Anne:

Evelyn's 7th Anniversary Sale, $5.95

Anne, Evelyn has been fairly "snowed under" with congratulations, for her shop has become one of the most popular dress shops in town, and she invites us all to come up and help her celebrate with a glorious anniversary sale! Dangling to her invitation is the tempting bait of $5.95 for special anniversary frocks that include georgettes with detachable sleeves, flat crepes that feature smart collars, Other frocks with the new elaborate sleeve trimmings, chiffons, laces, and lively prints to give spurt to your winter wardrobe are priced at $11.97 up. Service weight stockings, special at $1.00. Chiffons, $1.35. Evelyn's Dress Shop, 8 Winter St.

Clean Clothes for Kiddies

"What a problem!" sighs the perplexed mother. And it is, Anne, if she tries to do it herself when the Golden Bell Cleansers will thoroughly cleanse and press all school children's clothes — coats, dresses, suits (up to the age of 12) for 75 cents each. Winter clothes, the authorities tell us, that gather germs, are responsible for most of the children's winter illnesses, so here is an opportunity for mothers to give their children a fresh start back to school for the New Year—in clean, healthy clothes, with no trouble at all, except a telephone call to the Golden Bell Cleansers. They'll call and deliver in time for school's reopening. Golden Bell Cleansers, 41 Winter St., Boston, Liberty 9250, and Eastern Ave., Malden, Tel. Malden 2000.

A Gypsy Caravan

with flaunting banners has pitched its tent right in the heart of our prim little town, Anne. And today the Gypsy Tea Shop lights its fires and starts its kettles a-singing to serve to us the most delectable lunch eons and teas. Gay Gypsy maidens stroll about serving their tempting specialties, which are sure to make Boston's newest Tea House a rendezvous for delightful luncheons. If you would peer into the future, and learn what the New Year holds in store for you, a Gypsy Fortune Teller will read your teacup—without crossing her palm with silver. Today's the opening day, Anne. Let's have luncheon there, and make a wish. It may be your lucky day! The Gypsy Tea Shop, 160 Tremont St., 2nd floor. Tel. Lib. 7455 for reservations.

Figure Beautifier!

The Capon "Figure Beautifier" is not a luxury, it is a necessity. Remember elastic webbing causes bulges which "break your heart" when you don a Princess gown! Here's a model made WITHOUT elastic webbing. Adjustable lacings on each side enable you to get a grip on your "self-respect" and feel the satisfaction of being "well set up." Abdomen and hips respond at once and your clothes will need "taking in." It is comfy to wear; easily laundered and stays down. It costs no more eventually for Capon's Correct Corsetry than for ready-mades, and you take no chance. See one designed specially for you on your form before ordering . . . no obligation. Priced from $10. CAPORN . . . UPTOWN at 234 Boylston St. KEN. 4230. DOWNTOWN, 110 Tremont St. LIB. 6649.

A Dress Without Cost!

Christmas gold tinkling! New Year bells jingling! And the New York Dress Mfg. Co. celebrates their first New Year in business! Smacks of wonderful bargains, doesn't it, Anne! A brand new lot of dresses has just been received special for New Year parties—the best yet! All at their famous prices of $3.75 and $6.75, which would cost three or four times the price elsewhere. Sleeveless chiffons, lustrous flat crepes, in dashing silhouettes, also two and three piece coverts, and smart matrons' styles. The New York Dress Mfg. Co., 515 Washington St., 2nd floor (Opp. R. H. White). If you can duplicate their values elsewhere, they will give you a dress without charge, or refund your money, giving you the dress, if you've already made the purchase.

For the further convenience of their customers, the New York Dress Mfg. Co. has acquired the services of the Sands Cleansing Co., where you may have your dresses and coats cleansed for $1. This is a brand new cleansing process that removes all spots and stains, thoroughly presses your frocks, brings out their color and brightness—and the charge is but $1, whether your dress is pleated, flared, frilled with lace, or one, two or three-piece suits. They also do dyeing, and offer very moderate rates. You can have your sun-streaked, faded frocks completely disguised in the very smartest of new colors by their wonderful dyeing process. You can bring them or mail them to the Sands Cleansing Co., 515 Washington St.

And Now to Yourself!

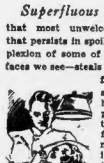
What a delightful time the days after Christmas are, Anne! When the flurry of gift-buying turns tables, and you find that Santa has left you a stocking jingling with Christmas gold to spend on yourself any way you wish! All those little conceits which you've longed for you can buy without a twinge of conscience. I have a "gift to myself" all selected, Anne—and I'm going to Filene's today to buy it—a pair of the new Chanel gloves! They are newer than the New Year, so smart and dapper—they make the gloves I've been wearing all winter look like poor relations. Chanel designed them after the silhouette spirit of the new fashions. Close-fitting at the wrist they flare to a long gauntlet, which can be turned down and worn cuff-style, as they come faced in contrasting colors. Their flared contour is as graceful as the new flared dresses, and gives the hands a suave, slender appearance. Of course they are made with exquisite perfection, and come in glace and suede. There are six smart new shades. Arabia, Clam, Mother Goose, Grege, Partridge, which is almost a mahogany—and black, of course. You simply must have a pair of black to wear with your light colored frocks. So, Anne—I'm greeting the New Year with the very newest gloves. They are $8.50 a pair in Filene's Glove Section, street floor.

What's Worth While Waiting For!

Scott Furriers' Annual Markdown Sale—their one and only markdown sale of the whole year. The sale that assures value—quality—dependability. It starts today at Scott Furriers, New England's Largest Fur Establishment, 69 Summer St. All New England knows what this sale means, Anne—and thousands of women benefit each year by it, saving from $50 to $300 on the beautiful fur coats they purchase. These are not special lots purchased from inferior manufacturers, which Scott Furriers offer, but their own dependable Scott furs, which are purchased from the largest and most reputable fur manufacturers of America, and an unrestricted guarantee goes with every coat sold. You may select your coat, make a small deposit, and have it without delay. The prices are $75—$95—$125—$145—$195 up, and you may choose one of the Three Scott Ways of Buying. You may pay cash, open an extended charge account, or make small weekly or monthly payments while wearing your coat by joining the Scott Unique Fur Club—the only one in New England. Scott Furriers, Inc., 69 Summer St., 309 Westminster St., Providence, and 51 Pratt St., Hartford. For your convenience open every evening until 9 o'clock.

Superfluous Hair—

that most unwelcome growth that persists in spoiling the complexion of some of the prettiest faces we see—steals all the sweet femininity, and gives a harsh appearance to the skin, has found a formidable foe in the electric needle, or electrolysis. This method is known to be the permanent way of removing superfluous hair, and James Brooks, the electric needle specialist, has had such success with his work that many physicians have indorsed him as a most careful and competent operator. His work is absolutely permanent and painless—not the slightest twinge is felt. James Brooks is at 100 Boylston St. Lib. 4466.



Give Your Rugs a Bath!

They really deserve to be refreshed after the duty they've done during Christmas. Just think of the pine from your tree, the artificial "snow" — that has been trampled into them—to say nothing of real snow and mud from wintry shoes. Realizing this, the Golden Bell Cleansers have arranged special prices on their remarkable rug shampooing, which revives all the brightness, brings out the color, prolongs their life. Their prices are $2.61 for 8.3x10.6 Domestic rugs; $3.25 for 9x12, and 5 cents a square foot for Orientals. They extend prompt call and delivery service and do wonderful work. Golden Bell Cleansers, 41 Winter St., Boston, Liberty 9250, and Eastern Ave., Malden, Tel. Malden 2000.

Rose Weiner's Clearance Sale, $5 and $7.50

Every hat in this sale is an original model that ranged in price from $10 to $22.50 up to the day before Christmas! They are marvelous hats—exclusive in design — distinctive in contour, and fashioned with the perfection which only Rose Weiner can give. Rose Weiner has earned a hat reputation for herself about town that some of the famous Parisian designers might easily envy — and when she marks down her distinguished felts and soleils to $5 and $7.50, it's an event! You may have the hat you select adjusted to your head at no extra charge. Rose Weiner, 8 Winter St., 3rd floor.

Handbag Bargains, $2!

Anne! I could scarcely wait until today to tell you about the marvelous sale of handbags at Rosen Bros. All the bags that were tagged at $3 and up before Christmas are now reduced to $2! There is a wonderful assortment — and every one in perfect condition. Vagabond pouch styles, envelope styles, zipper styles. Some have some smart shell frames, some long handles. They come in calf, lizard, morocco and antelope in all the season's smart colors. This sale starts today—a good investment for your Christmas money! Rosen Bros., 9 Bromfield St. "Where Boston buys greeting cards!"

Polly's New Year

simply would be ruined, she assured us, if she didn't have a new dress to start it in, so she emptied her Christmas stocking of its gift gold, and hied herself to her own department—the Junior Misses' Section of the Spanish Galleries (lower floor) of Chandler & Co. This department specializes in frocks for juniors and the small misses who are hard to fit. All the new lines modified to smaller figures in glowing shades for youth—red, green, jenney, navy and black, of course. Flat crepes and chiffons with all the niceties of fit and finish that higher priced frocks have, are priced at $15. Sizes 11 to 19.

Why Not Give Youth

that priceless gift — to your friend whose hair is turning gray? Why not show her the way to bring back the beauty and natural color to her silvering locks by starting her off for the New Year with a bottle of Ann J. McHale's Hair Color Restorer. She'll bless you forever, for it's not a dye, nor a tint—but a color restorer that renews color-life in the hair cells, does not streak, does not turn the hair any color but its own natural shade. Ann J. McHale has also prepared a wonderful Quince Cream that will keep your hands free from chapping, satiny-smooth and white all winter. Both are priced $1 and are sold at all the S. S. Pierce stores.

Devotedly yours,

Priscilla

BLAMES SIGNAL LACK IN CRASH

New York, Dec. 26 (INS)—Lack of fog signals was again blamed today for the collision between the liners Fort Victoria and Algonquin when the United States steamboat inspection service opened it's investigation of the wreck.

Although he heard signals to the stern, there was none directed for some time before the two ships came together in Ambrose channel, Capt. James McKenzie of the Algonquin, a Clyde liner, told Isaac M. Charlton, inspector of hulls. Capt. McKenzie charged the day after the collision that the Fort Victoria had not sounded warnings.

CLAIMS 'GOOD NEWS' A THEFT

New York, Dec. 26 (AP)—Charges that the musical comedy, "Good News," which enjoyed a long Broadway run and is now on the road, was plagarized from a play called "Bad News" which he wrote, were contained in a suit for an injunction and accounting filed in federal court today by Harry T. Hallahan.

Defendants are Laurence Schwab and Frank Mandel, producers; B. G. De Sylva, who with Schwab is accused of "falsely claiming to have originated 'Good News'"; Bartley Cushing, a play broker, and others.

Hallahan asserted he "deposited" June 5 of the same year Schwab and De Sylva copyrighted a play entitled "Hold 'Em, Helen," which he charged was substantially identical with his own play. Subsequently, he said, "Hold 'Em, Helen," was produced as "Good News."

'DannyMurphy'Faker Trapped and Jailed

Chicago, Dec. 26 (INS)—An imposter who gave his name as Danny Murphy and falsely claimed to be the former Philadelphia athletic star, was today serving a jail sentence, administered by Judge Sam Heller.

When first arraigned a few days ago the panhandler, by posing as the old-time baseball player, gained the sympathy of the court and received a suspended sentence. In addition, the courtroom spectators took up a collection for him.

Soon after the story of the case appeared in the newspapers, Judge Heller received a telegram from Eddie Collins, present coach of the Athletics, who was one of the real Danny Murphy's teammates. Collins advised the judge that the man was an imposter as the real Danny Murphy is living in New Jersey and is a prosperous business man.

Judge Heller immediately ordered the arrest of the faker and sent him to jail.

PANTAGES CASE UP TODAY

Los Angeles, Dec. 26—Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke today passes upon the application for bail for Alexander Pantages, millionaire showman, pending appeal of his conviction.

The request for bail has been made on the grounds of asserted ill health by Pantages and the need for hospital attention unavailable in jail.

Eight doctors who have made affidavits of Pantages' serious heart condition, which they say may result in death at any time, especially if not given immediate attention and five physicians independently employed by the district attorney's office, will report to the court at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Pantages, according to jail attendants, now weighs 117 pounds which compares with 126 at the time his own trial commenced and 146 before Mrs. Pantages' trial and 178 a year ago.

NAVAL DEBATE DELAYED FOR ARMS PARLEY

Washington, Dec. 26 (INS)—Congressional debate upon international relations and the American navy in particular will be curtailed as much as possible during the London arms conference by withholding the annual navy appropriation bill from the House and the world court protocol from the Senate, it was disclosed today.

The decision upon the part of administration leaders of the House to delay the naval supply bill is expected to prevent an embarrassing discussion of President Hoover's action in holding up construction of three cruisers and the ever troublesome question of parity with Great Britain.

Leaders in the "big navy bloc," including Representative Britten (R.) of Illinois, chairman of the naval affairs committee, had already made known their intention of questioning the wisdom and authority of the President's action on the five-cruiser program for which Congress authorized $273,000,000.

Although leaders will not admit the navy bill is being held up solely because of the London conference, which begins January 21, Representative French (R.) of Idaho, chairman of the sub-committee in charge, said:

"It fits in nicely with the naval conference and things generally to have the naval appropriation bill come before the House sometime in February instead of January."

Pittsfield, Dec. 26—Rev. Levi J. Achim this week observes the 41st anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. He was ordained Dec. 22, 1888, at the Grand Seminary in Montreal and appointed assistant at St. Michael's Cathedral, Springfield, where he remained five years.

MAN SHOT BY A MOB NAMES ATTACKERS

Jackson, Ky., Dec 26 (AP)—Wm Chester Fugate, 35, taken by a mob from the Breathitt County jail early yesterday and shot, helieved to be dying in the Bach Hospital here, this eastern Kentucky town today awaited action by officers toward arrest of some of the attackers.

Fugate made a statement to Commonwealth Atty. G. C. Allen after he had been taken to the hospital and is known to have named several of the men he said he recognized. Officers said he declared that he recognized were known of Clay Watkins, lawyer and prominent landowner, for whose slaying Fugate was held in jail. He was a tenant on Watkins' farm.

The mob, composed of several score of armed, masked men, bound C. L. Combs, jailer, as he slept in his home next to the jail, took his keys, seized Fugate and took him outside of town. This happened before 2 a. m. After daylight Fugate was found with nine bullet wounds, lying in the snow in a highway ditch, five miles away.

Watkins, chairman of the county board of education, was fatally wounded last week by Fugate in a quarrel over settlement of an alleged debt of $4.50 owed Fugate. The shooting occurred two miles from here in the store of James Clemmons. Fugate fled, but gave himself up to officers before Watkins died.

2 Hurt in Plane Dive

Cabool, Mo., Jan. 26—An airplane nosedived over Cabool and crashed into the street. Pilot D. Allen, 28, was injured very seriously, but his passenger, Sam Farrell, 30, was not so badly hurt. Both were from Mountain Grove, Mo.

Turnkey in Jail

Charming and attractive, Mrs. Arthur Rabb, Bloomsburg, Pa., has been named turnkey in the Columbia County Jail. The jail usually has 25 to 30 prisoners. She was appointed by her husband, the sheriff-elect, and has never been in a jail before. The new turnkey begins her duties on Jan. 6. (Associated Press photo.)

Westfield, Dec. 26—Early action is planned by Blandford voters to conserve for the town the use of water in brooks rising in the Blandford hills as a water supply. Steady inroads have been made into the sources of water supply in the hill town.

MRS. SHELBY TO ACT ON TAYLOR RUMORS

Los Angeles, Dec 26 (INS)—Declaring she had previously told all thoulties all she knew of the William Desmond Taylor murder case—a puzzling mystery which involved her daughter, Mary Miles Minter, and also another actress, Mabel Normand, both of whom were subsequently cleared of any connection with the crime, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby today said she was again ready to tell her story.

"The time for action has come," she said. "I am not going to sit idly by and be a target for base rumors and vicious innuendo."

Mrs. Shelby asserted she was aware of the rumors which connected her with the case, and, for the purpose of an earnest investigation, she said she did not, shortly before the murder, purchase a gun and practice with it.

She did not go to Taylor's bungalow at an early hour one morning several weeks before the murder, armed with a revolver.

She did not make threats against the director.

She was not in love with Taylor.

Mrs. Shelby said she was sure some of the rumors had been started by a person formerly in her employ.

"I know the person, and I know the motive," she said. "At the proper time I shall make known this motive. But I want to know of any others who have circulated these baseless stories about me, and then I am going to take action against them."

Lands at Jacksonville

Jacksonville, Dec. 26—The Sikorsky amphibian Northern Star, en route from New York to Tampa, on a projected non-stop flight, landed here.

Locks Wife in Tomb; Is Locked in Jail

Pawtucket, R. I. Dec. 26—Joseph M. Dobbins, 28, not only did not have a merry Christmas, but his prospects of a happy New Year are none to good. He appeared before Judge L. J. Tuck in district court and when he gets out of the county jail the flowers that bloom in the spring should be at their best.

His mother-in-law, Mrs. Martha Strokes, charged that he left Pawtucket suddenly last June, taking with him $125 of her funds, and when he returned recently it was not in the role of Santa Claus.

Dobbins' wife added testimony to that effect. He met her several times, she said, as she was leaving her place of employment, to obtain money from her.

Then on Monday evening last, Dobbins suggested to Mrs. Dobbins that they take a walk. She consented and they were strolling through Walnut Hill Cemetery when they came to a tomb.

"He asked me how I would like to be locked in the tomb," Mrs. Dobbins' story continued. Mrs. Dobbins said she fainted after the vault's door closed on her, she did not know just how long she was buried alive. After Dobbins released her she told her mother about it.

Mrs. Strokes agreed that there was nothing very funny about her son-in-law's sense of humor, so she told Chief Inspector W. H. Wadsworth that Dobbins was back in town. The officer made a Christmas appointment for him with Judge Tuck (subject: larceny of $125, and Judge Tuck said, "Four months in the county jail." Dobbins did not appeal.

HELEN, HUBBY ON HONEYMOON OCEAN CRUISE

San Pedro, Calif., Dec. 26—Helen Wills Moody and her young husband, Frederick S Moody, Jr., San Francisco bond salesman, were somewhere off the Southern California mainland today on their honeymoon ocean cruise aboard the yacht Galatea.

When they left the Los Angeles Harbor breakwater, they were bound for a voyage of three weeks.

Aboard the small vessel with them were the skipper, S Edwardson; a deckhand and a cook, Moody, who is not a tenderfoot at sea, helped sail the yacht from port and he appeared as a full-fledged seaman in white duck trousers, blue shirt and yachting cap.

His bride, famed as the woman tennis champion of the world, was in a seagoing costume of blue and white. An official of the yacht club said he understood the couple would cruise southward to Mexican waters in the vicinity of Ensenada, famous Mexican resort.

Book Thief Put on Probation

Providence, Dec. 26—Charles Kelly, alias Frank Callahan, 55, slipped a five-dollar historical work into his pocket from a table in the book section of a downtown department store Tuesday because he had no money to spend for Christmas and wanted to spend the day in my room reading a good book," he told Judge Howard B. Gorham in Sixth District Court.

Judge Gorham placed him on probation. He had spent Christmas Eve in a cell at headquarters. He did not have the book to read in his room today.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

PRIZE WINNERS PREFER THE BUICKS

Probably the most extraordinary exhibition of confidence ever shown in one make of car was given in New York recently when 17 out of 222 policemen and firemen who had won cars in a popularity contest selected Buicks. The winners were given their choice of any of the 15 makes of cars in the price class in which Buick appears. Three others who have not yet selected their cars have stated they expect to choose Buicks, says P. A. Eddy, general manager of the Noyes-Buick Sales Co.

The contest, which was conducted by the New York Evening Journal, extended over a period of three months. The two winners who had polled the greatest number of votes were permitted to select cars at $3000.

With no regulation as to the length of time they could take before making their respective selections, the winners took several weeks in which to make comparisons of the various makes of cars; to arrange demonstrations and to consult other users. The inherent value of Buick; its superb qualities of performance and luxurious comfort were the impelling factors in determining the choices.

Of the 22 winning contstants eligible for a car in the price class shared by Buick and 15 other manufacturers, it is known that 21 of the number made close inspection of the Buick models, many asking for a prolonged demonstration that would show the car under all possible driving conditions. In nearly every case the 17 who chose Buicks did so as the result of demonstrations, a mass tribute to driving ease and comfort that has never been paralleled.

One of the most significant features of the almost unanimous choice of Buicks by the winners lies in the fact that of all classes of prospective motorists, policemen and firemen are probably the best qualified to select cars on their merits. Policemen especially are brought into almost constant touch with the problem of traffic control, aggravated throughout Greater New York by tremendous congestion at all hours of the day and up to a late hour at night.

PEDESTRIANS GET WARNING

A pedestrian struck by a motor vehicle must prove that he was not negligent in his walking before damages can be collected, according to a decision recently rendered by the Appellate Court of California.

A decision of the lower court awarding damages was reversed on the showing that the plaintiff admitted on the witness stand that he did not look to his right when he alighted from a street car nor when he started to walk across the street toward the curb. Before he heard the taxicab bearing down on him he had taken eight steps in all, but it was then too late to avoid injury.

The court stated in the decision that the chief driver was much at fault, but since the plaintiff admitted that he had stepped from a place of safety into a place of danger without first looking in the direction from which he reasonably might expect a vehicle to approach, he was guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law and could not require the taxicab company to pay any damages.

Leave Clutch Alone While Driving

Most drivers throw out the clutch when they want to slow down, thus losing much of their control of the car. This is especially bad going around corners or in heavy traffic where things may happen suddenly. Old-timers leave the clutch alone and use only the brake, making the engine help in retarding the car with the clutch engaged. There is plenty of time to push out the clutch when the car comes to a complete stop. Never hold the clutch out with the foot during a long stop. Put the gears in neutral. Otherwise, the clutch collar may give way and catapult the car into the car ahead.

"Loafing on Road" Called Nuisance

The department of roads of Canada has issued a bulletin in which it calls attention of motorists to the fact that "loafing on highways" is unruled for. The notice states that a slow traveling automobile is a nuisance on the highway and a danger to traffic.

Always allow a reasonable space between the car and the one ahead. This avoids a possible accident caused by a sudden stop, also delay on account of being unable to get around the car ahead in case it becomes stalled.

Highway in Clouds

A new scenic highway from Cumberland Gap to Pinnacle Mountain, running through Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, has been opened to traffic.

HUDSON-ESSEX IN NEW HOME

The Hudson-Essex owners of Cambridge and vicinity will be glad to learn that the Cambridge Hudson-Essex Company, in their new location at 878 Mass. ave., are well equipped to serve them in their new salesroom and service station.

The salesroom is finished attractively in Craftex and imitation marble and is brilliantly lighted so the cars can be displayed to best advantage at night as well as in the daytime. The service station is large enough to handle 12 cars comfortably, and the convenient location will enable the business man to leave his car for service in the morning, go to town via the Cambridge subway from Central sq. and call for it on the way home at night.

The Cambridge Hudson-Essex Company has been in business now for nearly four years. Verton L. Staub, the treasurer and manager, is a firm believer in making service the keynote of his business as shown by his long list of satisfied customers. Myrton F. Evans, until recently with the Newton Agency, is now associated with Mr. Staub. Both Mr. Staub and Mr. Evans will be pleased to have their old customers, as well as all Hudson-Essex owners, drop in and look over the new quarters.

1930 JUBILEE IS BEST YET

Climaxed by the largest driveaway which has ever left the Marmon factory, the 1930 jubilee of Marmon-Roosevelt distributors and dealers got in motion the most intensive and far-reaching sales program in the history of the company.

According to Al Hart, general manager Boston Marmon Co., the jubilee far surpassed in enthusiasm and interest any previous gathering of the company's selling organization, and the highly receptive attitude of Marmon-Roosevelt distributors and dealers is regarded as an excellent indication of business activity in the coming months.

More than 200 new cars were driven home by distributors and dealers at the close of the jubilee, setting a record for the number of cars to be driven from an Indianapolis automobile factory at one time. Although the greater part of the driveaway consisted of Roosevelts, many of the visitors took advantage of the opportunity to obtain new Marmon Big Eights for initial showings.

U. S. ARMY BUYS AUBURN FLEET

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 26—Shipment of a fleet of 29 straight-eight Auburn sedans has just been made to the U. S. Army for use at the various army posts in this country, Hawaii, Canal Zone and the Philippine Islands.

The cars are painted a special army olive drab, and the interior finish is of a color to harmonize.

Order for the cars was placed by the army some two months ago, following the receipt of bids of various automobile companies for cars that most nearly met the rigid specifications of the army.

TIMING SPRINGS IS FEATURE

It is just as important to time the springs of an automobile as it is the ignition. An engine will not run properly with badly timed ignition. A body will not ride comfortably with badly timed springs. The front and rear springs of a car must be perfectly synchronized if the passengers are to obtain real pleasure from riding in it, says Frank Marr, Plymouth Motor Corp.

There are two main elements that enter into the proper timing of the springs, the flexing qualities of the springs themselves and the shackles in which they are mounted. As all motorists know, the front springs of an automobile are shorter than the rear springs. The rate of deflection of the front springs bears a definite relation to the rate of deflection of the rear springs. It is the tendency of the front springs to flex quickly in a short arc, and of the rear springs more slowly in a longer arc.

To produce a perfectly-balanced automobile, the period of time required for the deflection of the shorter front springs, when the car is travelling over the road, must bear just the right relation to the time which the corresponding deflection of the longer rear springs requires. The care used in the synchronization of Plymouth springs accounts in a large degree for the comfort provided for passengers.

FLIER TO STAY DOWN AWHILE

Kenosha, Wis., Dec. 26.—The country's great air lanes have lost temporarily at least—one of their best known and most consistent customers. But, in this instance, the air's loss is the open road's gain and the whole transaction looms up on the credit side of the American transportation progress book, says H. C. Hart, president Nash New England Co.

For when Col. Arthur C. Goebel, the pioneer pilot and transcontinental champion, whose work has done so much toward the development of motors generally, wheeled his new and specially equipped Nash Twin-Ignition Eight Cabriolet away from the Nash factory yard, he declared that he intends to stay on the ground until he has tested out every detail of its advanced mechanical features and its unequalled performance attributes.

Eschewing his favorite mile-high mode of travel for the smooth and effortless flight of the new straight-eight, he swung into the Lincoln highway for an overland run to Kansas City and thence south through Oklahoma and Texas for an old fashioned boat jaunt in old Mexico. He plans to drive the car to California, following his Mexican visit, and to use the new Nash as his official car for aviation work on the coast.

Abbe Dimnet to Be, Ford Hall Speaker

Ernest Dimnet, French abbe with more than a touch of the delightful acidity and humor which characterized his 18th century progenitors, will deliver the New Year's message at the Ford Hall Forum Sunday evening.

TO INTRODUCE BANTAM CAR IN SPRING

Detroit, Dec. 26—The bantam Austin, a small car of distinctive smartness, unique in size, weight and performance, will join the fashion parade on American roads this spring, according to C. A. Best, general sales manager of the American Austin Car Company here. This announcement follows the news that the bantam Austin will go into production in February at the Butler, Pa., plant of the company.

Although the new body designs that will feature the little car are closely guarded secrets, the bantam Austin, it is indicated, will be "the doggiest bit of transportation ever seen on American roads." The rugged little chassis, famous on leading race courses and motor highways throughout the world, will be surmounted by bodies expressing new ideas in smartness, comfort and convenience, it is said.

Back of the bantam Austin's introduction to American motorists will be a seven years' record of success which has brought world-wide acceptance of this little car. From the standpoint of performance it continues to challenge the motor world, with its day by day record of better mpg and fifty miles on a gallon of gas, and as much as 1500 miles on one quart of oil. Distinctive smartness of body design, now coupled with its time-tested mechanical superiority, is expected to make the bantam Austin a unique figure on the American roads.

"The production of the bantam Austin in the United States," it is pointed out by Mr. Best, "is an American enterprise. The new models will be built in an American plant by American engineers, with American capital. But in appearance, performances and rugged durability the car will represent the best that American and British engineers have been able to develop in automotive transportation."

CHEVROLET TO HIT NEW MARK

Detroit, Dec. 26—Surpassing by 150,000 cars and trucks its previous record annual achievement, the Chevrolet Motor Company, this year, will manufacture 1,350,000 automobiles, it was announced at the central offices here. Due to the tremendous popularity of the six-cylinder car, introduced a year ago, 1929 will be by a wide margin the greatest year in Chevrolet history.

Chevrolet officials announce that daily, weekly and monthly production records were broken over and over again during 1929. Perhaps of the most significant achievement of Chevrolet this year was the placing of 1,000,000 cars on the road in less than eight months. Although the first Chevrolet six did not go onto the streets until last January first, there were 1,000,000 in owner operation early last August.

An all-time monthly production mark was set in May, when the Chevrolet factories built 160,895 cars. A new high monthly record was established in every month except January.

Production on New Erskine Is Begun

The Studebaker Corporation started production this month on a new Erskine for introduction at the New York automobile show, Jan. 4. The new car, which is to be known as the "Dynac New Erskine," is larger and more powerful, yet is priced under $1000," announced G. M. Sullivan, vice president of the Studebaker Sales Co. of Boston.

According to Mr. Sullivan, the new Erskine offers more brilliant performance than any other car in the $1000 field due to the fact that it has more power per pound of weight.

Roads Help Car Sales in Malaya

Though markets were relatively quiet in Malaya during the past year because of the rubber situation, both registrations and road building are on the increase.

Singapore, the chief city in the country, is notable for its good roads, and road building is going ahead rapidly all through the Malay peninsula.

15,000 to Build New Penn. Roads

Pennsylvania is mobilizing an army of 15,000 men and much material in preparation for the 1930 construction work under supervision of the Department of Highways. The campaign involves construction and replacement of some 1300 miles of highways.

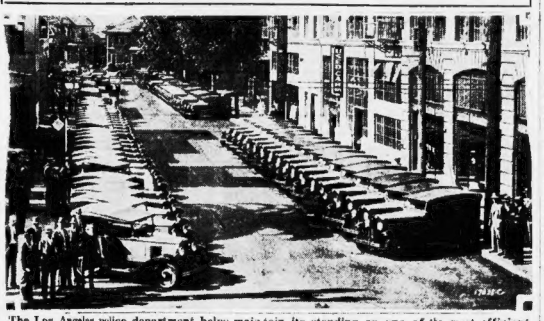
Picture Warnings on French Roads

Suburbs in Paris, France, have road signs upon which pictures are displayed as well as printed warnings. The scenes are of special benefit to motorists who do not understand the French words.

France Takes Up Auto Insurance

Automobile insurance is one of the important bills now before the French Parliament. The proposed measure makes it compulsory for automobile owners to take out insurance for citizens and foreigners alike.

Putting Los Angeles Police on Wheels



The Los Angeles police department helps maintain its standing as one of the most efficient police department in the country through the motorization of its forces. Here are 76 Chevrolet Phaetons recently delivered to the Los Angeles officials.

STRIPES BODIES WITH GUNS

For years, there has been one man along an automobile assembly line whose job was not affected by the development of machinery—the man who striped the engine hoods by hand by deftly wielding a narrow brush. Even in the old days, he was regarded by his fellow workers as a gifted individual with a marvelous eye and a steady hand, says Allan Fay, Chrysler-Reynolds Co.

Progress, however, held no brief for the striper.

In the hood finishing department of the Chrysler plants where the "70" and "65" models receive their finishing touches, girls equipped with paint guns have taken the place of the old-fashioned hand painter. More and better stripes is their slogan as their highly-trained hands direct the guns across the beading on the hoods.

Place for Weak Tire

When it is necessary to drive with a weak front tire, place it on the right wheel. Should a blowout occur, the car will then swerve away from oncoming traffic.

Dartmouth-University Club Sextets Play at Arena

HAL ANDRES TO START FOR GREEN

HAL ANDRES of Newton, Dartmouth football captain-elect, will start at left wing for the Big Green in its tussle with University Club at the Arena tomorrow, according to an announcement made by Coach Brainy Bower.

Andres will play against Doug Everett, a Dartmouth graduate and one of the best wings developed in Hanover in recent years.

ALL-GREEN WAR

The All-Dartmouth struggle along the boards will be one of the features of the game.

Andres' mates on the forward line will be Dick Fisher, another Newton resident, at center, and Joe Guilfoy of Manchester, N. H. Ellsworth Armstrong, whom Andres will succeed next fall as football captain, will be on defense with Henry Johnson of Newton, another football player and one of New England's ranking tennis players as well.

JEREMIAH IN RESERVE

Coach Brainy Bower plans to hold Ed Jeremiah of Somerville, one of his best scorers, in reserve to replace Fisher at center.

Another good reserve forward is Bill "Air Mail" Morton, who replaced Al Marsters in the Dartmouth backfield this year when the latter was hurt.

BAR NEGROES IN TENNIS TILT

New York, Dec. 26 (AP)—Play began today in the national junior indoor singles tennis championship at the 7th Regiment armory. There were 111 entrants. Of the leading players in the class, only Richard Murphy, Harvard freshman from Utica, N. Y., who won the title last year is missing from the entry list. He is unable to defend his title because of illness.

William Jacobs, speedy left-handed youngster from Baltimore, and Sid Seligson of New York University, younger brother of the intercollegiate champion, Julius Seligson of Lehigh, were at the top of the list of 16 seeded players. Others are Richard C. Hebard, White Plains, N. Y.; E. D. Newman, Fordham Prep; Walter Rothschild, New Rochelle, N. Y., high school; Charles T. French, University of Maryland; Donald Frame, Harvard; Charles Abeden, Yale; W. G. Mundy, Yale; Franklin Whitbeck, Loomis school; Jack Laimbeer, St. Paul's school, Garden City, N. Y.; Richard Solomon, Brown; Nathaniel T. Winthrop, Boston; Herman K. Goldberg, Johns Hopkins; Ben Cohen, Wilmington, Del., high school, and Edwin H. Luche, University of Pennsylvania.

The national boys' championship will start tomorrow.

The rejection of the entries of two New York negro players stirred up a controversy a few days ago when the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People charged that Reginald Weir of the City College tennis team and Gerald Norman, Jr., captain of the Flushing high school team, had been barred from all their color. The tournament committee has made no move to reverse its action.

Hoppe Has Billiard Rules Changed

Chicago, Dec. 26 (AP)—C. A. Storer, director of players for the National Billiard Association, yesterday announced a change in competition rules which will permit any player, who fails to finish first or second in the three major tournaments, to compete in more than one championship meet.

While Hoppe, who said he wanted to compete in the world's 182 balkline and the three cushion tourneys this season, lodged the protest against the old ruling and secured the change.

Griffiths Out to K. O. Risko in Gotham Go

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (INS)—Gerald Ambrose (Tuffy) Griffiths isn't kidding himself that Johnny Risko will do a Brodie tomorrow night at the Garden without some powerful urging—more powerful, in fact than Max Schmeling brought to bear on Rubbery John a little more than a year ago for the knockout that propelled the German Dempsey into the big money.

"This isn't my first meeting with Risko, you know," he said after a rehearsal at Stillman's gymnasium. "I took a decision over him in Detroit last spring but I don't think he was as good then as he is now."

Gerald is polishing up his twin persuaders on big sparmates who are free to take any liberties with him. Joe Oliver a student swinger with the good old pier 6 movement, brushed Tuffy's nose several times with prodigious swipes.

But Griffiths is not as open as he used to be; nor is he as flashy in a gymnasium workout as he was last year when he was 20 and a 175-pounder.

HAS IMPROVED

He is, however, a better workman, cooler, craftier, deliberate and quicker on countering.

Tuffy was a sweet prospect when Jimmy Braddock was picked to make him look good in his New York debut. Braddock uncorked a right that wafted Griffiths to dreamland, but the youngster was not discouraged by flivving with his chin in the sling for the first and only time in his career.

He came back to New York and fought a send-final to reinstate himself and later made his first appearance here as a heavyweight by flattening Herr Doktor Ludwig Haymun the German gymnast.

Now he is back once more bigger and better than ever. He weighs 186 pounds and the heft of his sock has increased correspondingly.

Tuffy has had fourten fights as a heavyweight and has won ten of them by knockouts. Paulino Uzcudun and Al Friedman went the route with him but both were acquiring rubber legs at the end of ten rounds.

West Side Jack O'Keefe Tuffy's discoverer and manager tells the story of the first Risko fight.

HIT HIM LOW

Risko hit my boy very low several times" says O'Keefe. "I don't say it was intentional because Risko is not a foul fighter. But those subway punches didn't do Tuffy any good. He showed he was game that night when he stayed up to hammer out a decision over Risko.

"The foul business, I see, is under discussion here because of Phil Scott's affair with Otto Von Porat. I hope the referee will make the boys keep 'em up Friday night.

"Tuffy has never done any fouling. He is willing to slug it out with Risko and if Johnny makes it that kind of a fight he may finish on the floor."

O'Keefe and his protege are hoping for a break that will give Griffiths the Florida assignment with Sharkey in February. However, they realize that Tuffy will have to [illegible] up and down a few times or deflate him to get a short cut to Sharkey.

HARD SCHEDULE FOR SWIM TEAM

Providence, R. I., Dec. 26—Coach E. L. Barry, out to duplicate last season's fine record with his Brown varsity swimming team, will call all of his men back from the Christmas recess four days early to begin preparation for the Dartmouth meet to be held in Hanover, January 11.

After a sweeping win over C. C. N. Y. in which Brown conceded but five points, indications point to a fine season.

The Brown team is the present New England intercollegiate title-holder, and is out to retain that title, as well as gather additional honors in the I. S. A. and the national collegiate meet.

The team faces one of the most difficult dual meet seasons ever acquiring rubber legs at the end of ten rounds.

West Side Jack O'Keefe Tuffy's discoverer and manager tells the story of the first Risko fight.

HIT HIM LOW

Risko hit my boy very low several times" says O'Keefe. "I don't say it was intentional because Risko is not a foul fighter. But those subway punches didn't do Tuffy any good. He showed he was game that night when he stayed up to hammer out a decision over Risko.

"The foul business, I see, is under discussion here because of Phil Scott's affair with Otto Von Porat. I hope the referee will make the boys keep 'em up Friday night.

"Tuffy has never done any fouling. He is willing to slug it out

Game Called Off

Providence, R. I., Dec. 26—The Atlantic Coast League soccer game between Providence and Fall River was cancelled because of the icy condition of the pitch at Kinsley Park.

HAGEN ARRIVES FOR SHIKAT GO

George Hagen, Brooklyn bone crusher, who battles Dick Shikat the recognized world's heavyweight wrestling king of New York and Pennsylvania, at Mechanics Building tomorrow night, will arrive in the Hub today, it was announced by Promoter Billy Avery.

Hagen, who was caught in the toils of a northern New York blizzard and so prevented from arriving here on time to meet Shikat on December 19, will engage in a short workout at a local gymnasium this afternoon.

According to Avery, the Brooklyn star is confident of tossing the brilliant German and winning the $10,000 diamond-studded belt, title and all that goes with it.

Tomorrow night's match promises to be one of the most spectacular and bitterly contested mat feuds of the local season. There is great rivalry existing between the two grapplers.

Besides the Shikat-Hagen match there are four other bouts on the attractive program, one of the best ever offered in this city. The semi-final will bring together George Calza, Italian champion and Charley Fox, Cleveland police sergeant, while in the third tussle Carl Pojello engages Mike Romano, Italian favorite. Jimmy Londos and Buck Olson go to the mat in the second number and Bull Komar and Kola Kwariana open the show.

14 End Match Curled at The Country Club

Most Country Club curlers spent Christmas at home, but there was one match to help keep green the memory of the holiday on the Clyde Park curling links.

Teams skipped by Holdsworth and Hyslop curled a 14 end match with Holdsworth's squad winning, 13 to 9.

Wardwell, Lewis and Vose backed up their skip to victory, while Oakes, Sherbourne and Wollet tried heroically to land their skip in the lead.

Jamaica Town Team Has Court Five

The Jamaica Town Team is represented on the court this season and would like to hear from strong sextipro teams that wish to meet a fast and capable outfit.

This is the fourth season that the players of the Town Team have worked as a unit and as a result the team is flashing a fast passing game in their early practices.

Foxboro, A. L., Gloucester, Marlboro, and teams of that caliber should get in touch with Manager Art Walsh, by writing him at 331 Center st., Jamaica Plain or by calling Jamaica 1530-J.

Toronto Six to Test Harvard in N. Y. Rink

HARVARD'S hockey team went back to work at the Arena today for the first of two final workouts before meeting Toronto varsity in New York on Saturday.

The Crimson is anxious to hand it Canadian college rivals a setback. The Toronto game will be Harvard's first venture against a really powerful sextet and much depends on how the Crimson functions against Varsity.

So far the Crimson has been able to start but little team work. Stacked against such a high powered six as Toronto, Harvard is apt to meet a stumbling block in Madison Square Garden on Saturday.

STUBBS AFTER BERTH

Junior Stubbs, brother of Coach Joe Stubbs, and at present a relief wing man on the six is making a strong bid for a berth with the regulars. He is working hard to take the place of either Johnny Cross or Charlie Lakin.

Young Stubbs is the outstanding lemain of the entire flock of sophomore candidates. His work in the lines is above reproach, and he is showing superlative stick work in the daily workouts.

Being the younger brother of the coach, however, Frank will have to convince Brother Joe before he can hope for a spot on the first six.

Harvard has a great pair of defence men in Johnny Garrison and Charlie Cunningham. Garrison is serving his second term as a Crimson skater, though this year he has a different spot in the lineup than he held a year ago.

GARRISON SHIFTED

Last year Johnnie proved an up and coming wing when he teamed with Johnnie Tudor, Bobby Giddens, and Elliot Putnam. This year, with a wealth of good forward material, Stubbs decided that the spot for Garrison was in the defence zone.

Charlie Cunningham has been a surprise to everyone in the efficient way he fills the boots of Hugh Bigelow of last year's team. Cunningham is the huskiest member of the Cantab squad, standing six feet or more and tipping the beam at about 190.

He is lightning fast in his ice spins, and packs a scoring punch that is hard to equal.

With Hardy Ellis in the strings, Harvard will have its strongest six on the ice to face Toronto. The Crimson has speed and individual ability, and if it can develop a strong passing game, should topple the Canadian invaders.

Brown Sends Five to Sports Council

Providence, R. I., Dec. 26—Brown will be represented by five delegates at the annual meeting of the college sports organizations in New York next week.

Dr. Frederick W. Marvel, director of athletics; Norman S. Taber, chairman of the athletic council; De Lamar McLaughry, head coach of football; Edgar J. Staff, assistant coach of football, and Prof. Leslie E. Swain of the athletic department, will represent the university at the several meetings.

Dr. Marvel, as a member of the nominating committee, will attend a meeting on Sunday, Dec. 30, while all of the other delegates will leave this city in time to attend the Monday meetings.

CHAPMANS WIN AT PINEHURST

Pinehurst, N. C., Dec. 26—Successfully defending their title against the largest field ever to tee up in the event, John D. Chapman of Greenwich, Ct., and his son, Richard, won the eighth annual father-and-son tournament of the Pinehurst Country Club here.

The Chapmans covered the No. 1 course in 80 strokes, Scotch foursome competition, to beat out James D. and James T. Hunter of North Adams, Mass., by a single stroke. The Hunter team also took second place with a net 69, having a handicap of 12.

Other New England teams who scored: W. F. Arnold, Senior and Junior, North Abington, Mass., 82—12—71; H. P. and J. P. Hotchkiss, New Haven, 84—12—72; W. R. and Andrew Pierson, Cromwell, Ct.—89—12—77, and F. W. and J. W. Fitzloon, Boston 165—15—90.

85,500 Saw Games of Marquette Team

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 26—Attendance at Marquette University's 1929 football games, although that was one less game than usual, exceeded by 15,000 the attendance for any other season, according to an unofficial estimate made by Stanley Lowe, director of ticket sales at Marquette. His estimate is 85,500.

Two night games, at home, attracted a total of 34,000.

ERNIE SCHAAF MAY BATTLE AL FRIEDMAN AT BOSTON GARDEN IN JANUARY

By JACK CONWAY

AL FRIEDMAN of Roslindale, who recently knocked out Big Boy Rawson, has been offered bouts by the Arena club and the Boston Garden.

Col. Bob McKirdy says he is trying to match Friedman with Joe Monte who outscored Harry Allen in a sensational quarrel at the Arena.

Jack Conway

Eddie Mack is dickering for a contest between Friedman and Ernie Schaaf which he is anxious to stage at the Garden on January 10.

It is understood that the Arena club has an option on Friedman's services which does not expire until January 5. McKirdy declares his organization has exercised its option on Friedman, but that Al Lippe, manager of the Roslindale heavyweight, refuses to accept Monte as an opponent.

Lippe wants to pit Friedman against one of the country's leading heavyweights.

McKirdy intimated today that in the event Lippe refuses to allow Friedman to keep his contract for another bout with the Arena club that the matter will be aired before the boxing commission.

The Friedman-Schaaf bout is a natural in view of the rivalry between these two men. They have already met twice. The first tussle was staged at the Arena last winter. The battling was very even and there was a loud protest when the verdict went to Schaaf. In the second tussle, which took place at the Garden, Schaaf won easily.

Since then Friedman has been campaigning throughout the country and has improved greatly. He now feels he can lick Schaaf, or any other ring hero who cares to risk an exchange of blows with him.

TOMMY MACFARLAND has a couple of promising looking ring prospects in Bud Dempsey, featherweight, and Charley Longo, lightweight. These boys have shown good form every time they have stepped to bat and appear to be going somewhere in the fistic racket.

BOBBY GOLDMAN informs this writer that Al Mello, New England welterweight champion, will resume training the first of the year. The lad had the benefit of a long layoff and should be ready to show at his best when he whirls into action again. Johnny Indrisano, Billy Murphy, Larry Brignolia and several other local welterweights are anxious to get a crack at Mello.

THE Shikat-Hagan wrestling bout at Mechanics building tomorrow is an event carrying much interest. This tussle was originally carded for last Thursday night, but didn't take place when Hagan was held up in a Western blizzard.

Promoter Bill Avery gave a free show, giving ticket holders the right to attend tomorrow night's show. He blew $2500 rather than break faith with the fans.

BOXING and wrestling shows staged just prior to the Christmas holidays were costly affairs from the standpoint of the promoters.

The fans did not have money for sport shows and also for their Christmas shopping. And so they passed up the sport shows which didn't give the dear old promoter much nourishment.

COLLEGE STARS IN TITLE PLAY

Pinehurst, N. C., Dec. 26—Again studded thickly with an entry of college golf stars, the 27th annual mid-winter tournament will go under way here today at the Pinehurst Country Club with a qualifying round of 18 holes.

Prospects indicate that slightly more than 100 golfers will start play.

George T. Dunlap, Jr., of New York, Princeton player and winner of this event for the past four years, will defend his title.

Yale, which has divided intercollegiate honors with Princeton for several years, has sent five linksmen of note, including Forrest K. Wilson, of York Harbor, Me., Maine state champion; Arnold White of Brockton, Mass.; Walter Swoope of Philadelphia; John J. Chickering of New York, and Carlo M. Paterno of New York.

W. Percy Arnold, Jr., of North Abington, Mass., is among the Harvard players.

A number of other golfers who have achieved prominence will give the college stars a battle, including W. C. Fownes, Jr., a former national amateur champion.

Wanderers in Tie With Hakoah, 2-2

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 26—The Hakoah All Stars and Brooklyn Wanderers soccer teams drew their Atlantic Coast League game, 2 to 2, at Hawthorne field before 4000 people.

Albert Eisenhoffer made his first appearance for the Wanderers against his former teammates for several months and played a great game.

The national champions led at half time, 2 to 1, but the Wanderers came through with their usual rally in the second period to not only catch up but to nearly take the lead in the closing minutes.

Zerrahn Wins Out in Trap Shooting

C. O. Zerrahn, one of the six Country Club trap shooters who shot at 100 targets in the holiday program at the Clyde Park trap with a return of 96 out of a possible 100, won the event.

R. M. Gardiner was a close second with 93, while Dr. S. B. Wolbach was only one targe behind him.

In a 50-target event, H. H. Wilder, Jr., carried off high-gun honors with 48 kills and M. C. Hobbs won the handicap prize with 52.

Miss Rebecca Hobbs and Mrs. W. Pierce were among those who returned good scores.

38 Letters Awarded Marquette Gridmen

Milwaukee, Wis. Dec. 26—Thirty-eight members of the 1929 Marquette University freshman football squad, including the managers, have been awarded 1933 numeral sweaters for their work with the Hilltop team during the last season.

This is the largest freshman football award in the history of football at Marquette.

Grid Coaches Are Busy in Off Season

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 26—What does a football coach do in the off season?

In the case of Coach Frank J. Murray of Marquette University Golden Avalanche, it is found he is just as busy now as he is at the height of the grid season.

For one thing, there is the usual round of talks before high school football dinners. Murray also has been scouting opposing basketball teams for Coach Cord Lipe of the Hilltop and is to attend the American Football Coaches' Association meeting in New York city this next week-end.

Salem High Loses Close Game to Miami Eleven, 7-6

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

NORMAN RAND FLASHES FOR SALEM

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 26—Salem High school's football team lost to Miami high here only after a spirited fight against a much better team, 7 to 6.

A fumble of a punt by the Salem safety man, Cullen, led to the Miami touchdown. Cullen, however, cannot be censured for his muff.

It was in the fourth period and Salem had the ball. Phil Heffernan, Miami's fullback, punted to the Miami 35-yard line. On the next play the Miami back was thrown for a five-yard loss. Then Beckwith, Miami right halfback, punted, a nice spiral, to the Salem 20-yard line.

MUFFS BALL

Cullen, playing his first game as regular Salem pilot, made a great try for the ball, which had been placed beyond his reach, and managed to get his fingers on the pigskin, but it bounced away.

Cullen made a desperate plunge after the ball and got it, but he was tackled hard by a big Florida lad, and the Salem boy dropped the pigskin. Frank Bell, left end of the Miami team, fell on the ball across the goal line. Brumbaugh, left halfback of Miami, shot through the line for the winning point.

The best star of the game was a little fellow named Norman Rand of Salem. The boy, a halfback, turned tricks and tore his way through the Floridians for repeated gains. The heavy home town players made frenzied efforts to stop the Salem flash, but in vain.

Rand scored the Salem touchdown, on a pass from Cullen, in the third period. Norman Rand of Salem now has had a scoring position of the two recovered a Miami fumble on the Salem 15-yard stripe.

RAND RUNS 48 YARDS

Bill L'Italien sliced through for nine yards. Phil Heffernan added six yards and then Rand flickered through the Miami team for a 48-yard sentence, a marvelous run.

Cullen then carried, and made five yards. The Salem quarter tried a pass to Rand, which was incomplete. But on the next pass try Cullen shot the ball straight to Rand, who scored. The try for point was blocked.

After the game enthusiasts in Miami folks were willing to admit that Salem was the better of the two teams. Outweighed by almost 20 pounds per man, and playing with a new quarterback, Salem nevertheless showed Florida fans a wonderful type of football.

Salem was not bothered a bit by the change in timers' and field. Bill Broderick made only one substitution during the game, Whitehead for Cullen.

The Massachusetts boys left here, bound for home after the game. They are to make a few exhibition tours on the way North, to round out their trip. They arrived back in Salem about December 30.

Three Letter Man Leads Manlius Nine

Manlius, N. Y., Dec. 26—Stan y Hall Campbell, three letter man at the Manlius School here, has been elected Captain of the Manlius baseball team for 1930. Baseball letter men unanimously named Campbell their leader.

Hall, who hails from Rochester, N. Y., is one of the best known athletes in Manlius athletic history. He shines in football, basketball and baseball.

Campbell has earned letters in those three sports for three years at Manlius.

He is an end on Head Coach Bill Girton's football team, and a center or guard on Capt. Mark St Bradley's basketball team.

Lieut. Wally Thornton is coach of baseball. Willard G. Reynolds, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., is manager of baseball for 1930.

Notre Dame Star May Coach Case Eleven

Cleveland, Dec. 26 (INS)—Acknowledgement that Don Miller, assistant coach at Ohio State University and one of the famous "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame, is being considered to succeed Josh Pietsch as football coach at Case school of applied science, was made by athletic officials at Case today.

C. L. Edgar, faculty director of athletics at Case, said that Miller was one of 12 being considered for the post, but that as yet no offers have been made.

Browns Make Deal With Baltimore Club

St Louis, Dec. 26 (AP)—Bill Finel, business manager of the St Louis Browns, announced tonight that Pitcher Holshouser, a young right hander, has been obtained from the Baltimore club of the International League in exchange for Outfielder Frank McGowan. Holshouser was obtained at the request of Bill Killefer, new manager of the Browns.

Valley A. C. Wins

North Adams, Dec. 26—Company K of this city met defeat at the hands of the Hoosac Valley A. C. of Adams by the score of 26 to 25.

LEAFS FALL BEFORE BRUIN BLASTS

The above photo strip shows three of the plays of the game at the Boston Garden between the Bruins and the Maple Leafs on Christmas night. The Boston team won the game, 6-2. It was the eighth win in a row for the Bruins, National Hockey League champs.

Passing the Puck

BY whipping the Toronto Maple Leafs at the Garden by the score of 6 to 2, the Bruins won their eighth straight victory and their thirteenth in 15 starts this season.

Eight in a row is a new record for the Rossmen in regular season play but they need another victory to equal their mark of last year, when they captured the last four games of the campaign and went on to take two straight from the Rangers and three in succession from Les Canadiens to win the Stanley Cup.

They hope to equal their best winning mark by licking the Rangers in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight, and to set a new record by taking Les Canadiens into camp at Montreal on Saturday night.

It stands to reason that the Bruins must lose a game or two before long, but they looked just as invincible against the Leafs as they have at any time this season, and they would seem to stand an even chance to downing two such formidable opponents as the Rangers and Canadiens before hostile audiences.

The Yuletide spirit was in evidence all during the game with Toronto. The players on both teams were on their good behavior all evening and penalties were few and far between.

Not a Bruin went off until five minutes before the close of the second period when Gainor went to the cooler for the harmless crime of handling the puck. In the final period, Shore and Bailey had a gentle mixup which caused the pair to be banished for two minutes. Clapper got two minutes for holding and Gainor received a major for throwing his stick to prevent a goal. That was all.

The crack Weiland, Gainor, Clapper combination put the Bruins in front when Cooney counted on a pass from Dit, and before the game was over, the trio accounted for another tally, Weiland registering with the aid of Gainor.

Tilden's legitimate theatrical venture was brief and rather unfortunate, but he thinks it was great fun. Even though the play ran only four weeks in the provinces, and was never brought to London, he figures that he gained a lot of valuable experience and will be a better actor for it.

With the conclusion of his London engagement a few days ago Bill [illegible] returned to his old role of Bill, the tennis idol. He went to Paris, where he is to [illegible] part in the covered court [illegible] cup tournament. Beginning today with Charles Kingsford of England as his partner, Bill plans to go to the Riviera in February to spend a couple of months playing at Monte Carlo with his young protege, Junior Coen.

With sudden seriousness, Bill became the leader of tennis as he reiterated his assertion that under no circumstances would he become a member of the 1930 Davis cup team.

O'DOUL WON N.L. BAT HONORS

New York, Dec. 26 (INS) The National League batting champion [illegible] Phillies, [illegible] of the last time in twenty years, according to the official averages published today.

Frank J. "Lefty" O'Doul who started his baseball career as a southpaw pitcher and who had been cast off by several major clubs before finally winning up with the Phillies, led the league with the imposing average of .398. He also set a new major league record for the number of hits garnered in single campaign with 254, four more than the previous high mark set by Rogers Hornsby in 1922.

The slugging Philly missed another honor, tying Lloyd Waner of the Pirates, in the matter of runs batted in, each getting 151 one-base hits. Second to O'Doul in the batting race came Babe Herman of Brooklyn who wind up the season with an average of .381. Hornsby of the Cubs with .380 Bill Terry of the Giants with .372 and Chick Stephens of the Cubs, with .362 completed the first five.

Hornsby set a new record this year and at the same time saw one of his old marks scratched off the list. The Rajah scored 156 runs for a new mark but was unable to keep Chuck Klein of the Phillies from bumping out 43 homers to top Hornsby's 42 of 1922.

Jones Works Squad for Rose Bowl Game

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 26 (INS) Coach Howard Jones of Southern California primed his team for the intersectional football game in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day by opening today's program with defensive drill.

Jones said he did not fear the Pittsburgh line and running attack as much as he does the visitors' forward passing game. The Panther team is expected here some[illegible] amateur boxer in the game, time Monday.

RING STARS IN ST. JOE SHOW

Saturday night the fourth [illegible] last in the series of [illegible] cards in the New England [illegible] Glove Rooney will be staged in Mechanics Building by St Joseph's T. A. S. famous West End organization.

Somerville Man Near Death After Fall on Icy Step

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN beautiful, young brunette meets the lad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator Guy is developing a perfect airplane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow as Pat and Guy fall in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure.

Pat's father dies and Mrs Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest, but Guy gets them back Bryce stops financing the plane factory. Suddenly three persons vanish, Guy, Pat and Mrs. Bryce's little boy. A note is received demanding $50,000 ransom for the boy. The place where the money is left is watched by the police, but is taken mysteriously, presumably by the kidnapers. Guy is found and arrested kidnaper of Bryce's grandson. Meanwhile, the captors of Pat and the boy flew the Grand Canyon. Pat escapes by leaping from the cliff with the boy in her arms and lands safely with the aid of a parachute

CHAPTER 45

OFF there, a hundred yards or so, the pit widened; the dark, towering walls opened Pat ran toward this. She was conscious of murmuring thickly: "Run—hurry!" and of the child dragging.

Then she was looking in blank, throbbing dismay at the gigantic bluffs looming above her. Not an opening here; merely a curve where the canyon swung about; where it widened in a great walled circle. And these walls unbroken—impassable as iron.

Pat leaned against the brown massive rock. When the child asked

"Why did we run? Why did you pull me that way?" she stared in a wide, frozen desperation. How forlorn he seemed with the white rut a dirty brown-gray and his face smudged like a little chimney sweep's. He stood there, trailing a stick, the sun on his yellow hair and ordering in a winsome sing-song.

"Well, tell me Pat, why did you run? Well, why don't you talk?"

She could have screamed—she could have pitched herself to the ground and rent out wild, sobbing imprecations against this outrageous betrayal. God had forsaken them. Let her take that mad leap; let her gloriously hope. To be trapped now—to lean here awaiting most terrible doom.

Once the two infuriated men reached the floor of the pit, it would be mere matter of seconds They would murder Pat—no doubt of it. Take Billy away—

Instinctively Pat drew the child to her. She said rapidly frantically

"Billy, they're coming down We're going to hide . . . find a place and hide. Be quiet! If you say one word they'll find us. Remember when I whisper 'Hush!' not to even breathe!"

She turned glazed eyes to the cliff. In the morning sun, the two figures crawling down the ledges their hands dug into the rocks appeared like huge black spiders They were up there at the rim They seemed almost suspended in space.

"They can't make it! They'll never make it! A goat couldn't find foothold there. They'll be the whole day—a whole life, and they can reach us!"

Her lips were parched. She stood taut, like a thing of steel, her eyes flashing their buring terror to mind and heart. Coming down a little—below the rim now—cautiously slowly. That must be Ace leading Ace who had climbed the Matterhorn, who had scaled McKinley, and who had gone over these ledges with the assurance of a wildcat, scouting through the blind, labyrinthian gorges. And finding the road out—the wagon road out!

Ace would dare it; would essay and conquer the plunging 3,000 foot drop!

She marked him, now, standing with his back to a great rose-colored, utterly precipitous bluff. He appeared glued to it. For a moment his figure stood alone—then the other, with his shoulders jammed to the rock, came edging to his side Whole minutes they seemed not to move.

"Frightened—no further ledges down! Goes off there—obliquely!" thought Pat, recalling the forbidding aspect of the chasm, as it cut sharply inward from the overhanging rock.

And the two men up there seemed sculptured in black, motionless panic.

But now they were moving. They were pressed like shadows against the wall—gliding on—down.

But she told herself:

"They've fallen—perhaps they've dropped from the other side. No one has EVER scaled these walls. They COULDN'T."

She remembered pictures she'd seen of the Grand Canyon . . . those pictures taken by the Carr brothers. Explorers—the most intrepid explorers, had sought to conquer the mad Colorado and its chasm. The rain-washed skulls of these men were shown in the pictures. Only a dozen skeletons bleaching on the sands told of their vain hopeless mission.

This would be their fate! With hot, wet eyes Pat found herself praying—praying death to the two men now grappling with the mountain.

She imagined Guy in that far off home city of theirs receiving a message at some distant date that

N. E. REPLIES TO GERRISH CHARGES

Pleads Guilty to Conservatism, but Denies That It Lacks Leadership

New England today pleaded guilty to being "too conservative," but took vigorous exception to a charge that it is backward in leadership.

This is the concensus of officials of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the New England Council and the Massachusetts Industrial Commission.

Statements of these officials were in reply to a report issued by Edward F. Gerrish of the U. S. Department of Commerce who said "the trouble with New England" is its ultra-conservatism and its alleged lack of leadership.

WHAT HE CHARGES.

The government business expert conceded that 'New Englanders are awakening to a conception of their resources and opportunities," but gave the opinion that this section is no longer furnishing the "leadership of the past in manufacturing, trade and transportation."

Classing the spirit of conservatism as a weakness, the Massachusetts Industrial Commission through its secretary, Leon Lamb urged New England to "conquer it."

The commission statement follows:

"New England conservatism how often that phrase comes to our notice! Perhaps it was inherited from the Pilgrims or the Puritans It has served its day and generation. There is ample evidence that it is now passing as a slogan expressive of one which might read, 'Be more aggressive!'

"We acknowledge that it has been a weakness. The New England Council has been a potent factor in disclosing that fault and in inspiring agency in showing how the weakness may be cured.

N. E. STANDS HIGH.

"Massachusetts officially recognizes the possibility of doing constructive things for industry, agriculture and recreation through the establishment of an industrial commission. Other New England States have commissions with similar functions alone in connection

"It is not strange that as population moves westward industry should follow. Figures expressing in percentage increases of production in the newer sections are deceptive for obvious reasons when compared with New England's by the same methods. In fairness, we should not be judged on that basis only. Judged on the basis of population, area or dollar value of products, we still stand high and are bound to go higher.

"We still have brains, capital, skilled labor and the will to do Having discovered at least one of our weaknesses, we can and will proceed to conquer it!"

Hadley Harmon, executive vice-president of the New England Council, pointed out that while major emphasis had been placed in newspaper reports upon certain "adverse" factors in the New England situation, the volume referred to summarize the favorable factors in New England's economic situation is destined to become the most conclusive proof of the real position and strength of New England in the business world that has ever been available.

GIVES N. E. CREDIT

"The critical points emphasized in the same reports are contained in a few paragraphs of general summary out of a total of more than three hundred pages," his statement continued. "If examined they will be found to express only the criticisms that New Englanders have been making for years, publicly and privately.

"It was not to be expected that representatives of the Department of Commerce spending more than a year in the New England field gathering data for this summary would remain completely ignorant of those conditions in this territory which our progressive communities organizations and business men are exerting themselves to correct and improve.

"The report as a whole gives full credit to New England's superior development and accomplishments in the economic field, and, in fact, brings out many favorable facts not generally known or appreciated by the people of these six states.

"The incidental comment on some of the less favorable factors in the New England situation is far overshadowed in importance by the useful and constructive nature of the entire volume.

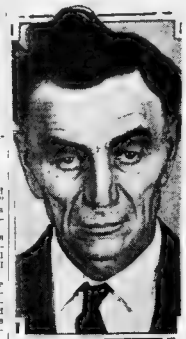
"Its purpose is to show the size and character of the New England market, how that market is organized for the distribution of goods, and how New England producers can use our existing marketing organization for the increased sale of their products. Region by region, New England is shown as it is divided up by business for marketing purposes and the essential facts that a manufacturer wishes to know about a given territory in which he is seeking to promote the sale of his products are clearly and authoritatively set forth.

"The tone of the entire report is well indicated by the first sentence of the statement by the Department of Commerce announcing its publication, which is as follows:

"New England industry as a whole has adopted a policy in keeping with the progressive trend of the times."

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

"Lincoln"



John S. Devereaux of Rice st., North Cambridge, resembles Abraham Lincoln so much that often he is stopped on the street and asked if he is related to the martyred President. He is 53 years old and the father of seven children.

POISON RUM SENDS 68 TO HOSPITAL

"Ward K" is Taxed to Hand! Many "Drunks"; Police Arrest 119 Christmas Jags

City Hospital's Ward K, the alcoholic ward, is cramped with sufferers who celebrated on the holiday, nearly all of them victims of poison liquor

There are 48 beds in the ward All were occupied and 20 other patients were in impromptu cots, making the total 68.

There were 119 intoxicated persons arrested through all the station houses of the city. Four arrests were of women. The police wink when drunks appeared through Christmas time, so those who were taken in were unquestionably drunk.

DETECTIVE AND JUDGE CLASH

Judge Malcolm E. Sturtevant in Somerville District Court today ordered his clerk to issue no more complaints to State Officer Arthur E. Keating until he came in with properly prepared cases.

The ultimatum was issued after Judge Sturtevant had found Dominic Costa of Boston st., Somerville, real estate and insurance dealer, not guilty of five counts of larceny from insurance companies.

During the hearing the judge clashed several times with Keating and told him he had been in the police department long enough to know how to prepare cases. Keating rejoined he would get along better if the court would refrain from interfering.

At the opening counsel moved for dismissal on the ground that payment had been made. Judge Sturtevant refused, declaring he would not permit the criminal law of the court to be used as a collection agency.

The case was heard, but sufficient evidence was not offered for conviction.

$13 Unlucky for Xmas Celebrator

Thomas Quinn of Beckton st, Quincy, and John Doherty of Warland st., Cambridge, found themselves in a cell at city prison today. Both had imbibed Christmas spirits too freely.

When John entered the cell he claims he had $13.72. When the effect of his libations had worn off he had only 72 cents. Jail officers reported to Judge Joseph Sherlock that they found $13 in Tom's hat. He appealed a sentence of two months, for larceny

Purse Snatcher Gets $34 in Malden

How she lost $34 to a handbag snatcher was related to the Malden police by Mrs. Jennie Green, of Concord st., Malden. Mrs Green said she left her home to do some shopping and on Concord st. a man grabbed her handbag.

The man, who is described as being about five feet, six inches tall and attired in dark clothing, made his escape by running through a back yard.

Flee Home in Christmas Candle Fire

Robert Meegan — Lorraine Meegan — Mary Meegan

Three of the five children who, with their mother, Mrs. Margaret M. Meegan of 25 Brackett st., Brighton, were driven from home when one of the children tipped over a Christmas candle and set the house on fire. (Staff photo.)

6 FLEE HOME AS TREE BLAZES

After the overturning of a candle, when one of the children had lighted as part of the Christmas Eve celebration, Mrs. Margaret M. Meegan and her five children were forced to flee from their home on the second floor of 23-25 Brackett st., Brighton, when the house caught fire

The damage was estimated at $1000. John, the oldest son, helped his mother in taking the baby, Lorraine, nine months, and the other children, Mary, Paul and Robert to the home of a neighbor for the night.

Mrs. Meegan had just returned home when the fire started One of the children, in the bedroom on the third floor, tipped over a candle and the flames got out of control.

Insists He's the Man Who Skipped From Cambridge Court

The Christmas spirit or something induced Edward J. Kelley of Fairmount ave., Belmont, to walk into Judge Walcott's session of East Cambridge District Court today and announce he was the man who walked out of court August 10.

On that date Kelly stepped out of line as he was being taken to court for arraignment on a drunkenness charge and out of the courthouse. As Judge Stone was sitting there Kelley was held for appearance before him tomorrow.

HUNT ATTACKER WHO USED SANTA TO LURE 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL

CHILD UNDER DOCTOR'S CARE

Police Have Description of Youth; Neighbors Aiding in Search

Indignant neighbors were aiding police toda[y] in a search for a youth who after luring a 13-year-old C[hild] into the basement of a building, brutally attacked her.

While she was on her way to a bakery to buy bread for Christmas dinner the girl was approached by the youth in Norton sq., East Cambridge.

According to her story the youth asked the girl if she would like the present of a doll carriage from Santa Claus. He then is said to have agreed to give it to her if she came with him.

He walked with the girl through several side streets in the vicinity and finally arrived at a house on Carlisle st., Cambridge. This is half a mile from the spot where she first saw him.

The girl said she followed him into an alley and that he pushed open an unlocked cellar door of the Carlisle st. house. As soon as they were in the cellar his attitude changed, she told the police. He threatened to kill her if she made any outcry.

After attacking the child the youth fled on hearing a sound from upstairs which apparently made him think someone was coming down cellar from the upper part of the house, which is occupied.

The little girl walked home crying to her parents. She was in a highly nervous condition, necessitating the care of a physician.

Later the girl, accompanied by her father and two police inspectors, went over the route taken by her and her assailant. They looked over the cellar.

She told the police she would recognize the youth if she saw him again. She said he was under 19 years of age and was about 5 feet 9 inches tall. He wore a brown coat sweater, dark-colored trousers and a gray cap.

REPORT MANY AUTOS STOLEN

Auto thieves were active over the holiday. Reports show a number of cars were stolen in and about the city. In some cases Christmas packages and other articles were stolen from cars.

John J. Daly, 46 Mosat st., Quincy, reported the theft of his car from in front of 11 Chauncy st.

A car owned and operated by Preston H. Bell, Jr., of 56 Waverly st., was left in front of 7 Arlington st for five minutes, during which time a thief appeared and took it away.

Robs Beverly Home While Family Visits

While Oliver Hutchinson and his family of Pickett st., Beverly, were visiting relatives out of the city, for the holiday, thieves entered their home and ransacked every room. Clothes were strewn over the floors and $5 was taken from a bureau drawer. During the excitement the thieves left 5 one dollar bills on the dresser. Entrance was made through a cellar window.

Patrolman John Norwood is conducting an investigation today.

3 Escaped Jail Inmates Sought

Two men involved in a holdup in Somerville each about 20 years old, are sought in Cambridge, Somerville and with the request to apprehend the men come word that the 3 men escaped from the Essex County Jail in Salem and may be hiding here. Division commanders assigned plain clothes officers to visit places where the men might be in section.

Pays to Be Polite on "L," but Not to Pickpockets

When two passengers who had just entered an Elevated train at Dover st. shouted, "Don't start the train yet," Robert A. Lewis of Hampden st., Roxbury, obligingly pressed back to let the men out again.

They struggled and squirmed through the crowd and Lewis was roughed a bit, although he didn't mind that.

What he did mind was his discovery a moment later that $85 had vanished with the men.

Swaps $19 and Candy for $2 Discount

Sam Affea, proprietor of a fruit store on Washington st., South End, will beware of electric meter inspectors bearing gifts in the future.

A customer came into Sam's store and, representing himself as an employe of the Edison Company, offered to inspect his meter.

After looking things over, the customer told the proprietor that there was a short circuit out of the meter and that he was paying for more electricity than he was using.

After this announcement, which according to the turkey-eyer was made with the air of an expert the customer then let the electric light bill. When it was [illegible] the man put it in his pocket and said that he would return to the office and pay the bill and get a two-dollar discount.

He returned a little while later with the bill apparently discounted and properly receipted. When the proprietor opened the cash register to reimburse the customer for the amount of the bill, the latter protested that he was in no hurry to receive the money.

The storekeeper insisted, however, and gave the man $19, which was the amount paid, less the discount. Moreover, he presented the kindly customer with a box of chocolates.

Later an agent from the Edison Company called to report that the bill had been paid with a forged check.

B. & M. Trains From Provinces Held Up

A tieup of the Swampscott interlocking switch plant of the Boston & Maine Railroad caused nobody visitors from the Canadian provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia to miss Boston connections to the west and south.

The tieup lasted nearly an hour and a half, delaying all through trains on the Portland division, and also brought local traffic to a standstill. Railroad employes were rushed to the yard to man the hand switches, it being stated that safety had been in the interlocking mechanism.

Fractures Skull in Fall Down Stairs

Howard Collins, 38 years of age, is unconscious at the Central Hospital, Somerville, suffering from a fractured skull which resulted from a fall down six or seven steps, while he was entering his home on Crescent st Christmas Eve.

After the fall Collins went into the house, wished the occupants a Merry Christmas, and then lapsed into a semi-conscious condition and he was removed at once to the hospital.

GIRL PRISONER ESCAPES

A few minutes before she was to have appeared in municipal court today, charged with violation of parole, Miss Elizabeth Moody escaped from the custody of Miss Ethel Crocker, a parole officer.

She had just come out of the House of Detention on Somerset st. and as Miss Crocker turned to close the door the Moody girl dashed away and through an alley between apartment houses.

The girl is described as 17 years old, 4 feet 9 inches tall, wearing a black hat, blue chinchilla coat, orchid scarf, blue shoes and light-colored stockings.

Children Feasted by Beverly Elks

CHANUKAH WILL BE USHERED IN AT SUNDOWN

Jews Throughout World to Commemorate Rescue From Assyrians

Chanukah, the Feast of Light, will be ushered in at sundown tonight by the Jews of the world in commemoration of the most stirring and critical period of their history.

Greater Boston synagogues and temples will be ablaze with light and throughout the city sermons will be preached on the unexampled heroism of Judas Maccabeus, who with his handful of [illegible], foiled Antiochus' attempt to destroy Judaism, and rededicated to the services of Jehovah the temple that had been polluted by Assyrian idolatry.

The feast of Chanukah is featured by the burning of candles in Jewish homes, singing by the children and the giving of presents and by special religious exercises.

What Christmas is to the Gentile Chanukah is to the Jew and in the giving of gifts it is similar.

The Feast of Chanukah originated 2165 years ago. The victory of the Maccabees amounted practically to a rescue of the country from the Syrians.

Since it is believed that from this horrible period the Jews were led into peace and hope and vision and victory, the tradition has come down as a Feast of Light.

Picturesque ceremonies will be observed in all the synagogues and temples of the city. While sermons will be given by the rabbis, the children will enjoy Chanukah parties throughout the city. The religious schools make a special event of this holiday and, for the most part, dramatic presentations are given by the children explaining the meaning of Chanukah.

SIXTY FLEE LYNN BLAZE

Smoke from a basement fire drove about 60 occupants of 23 suites in the Clifton apartments, Lewis st., Lynn, to the street.

The smoke filled the hallways and made escape difficult for the tenants, who were warned of the danger by George Bartlett of Lewis st. and Capt. Charles H. Day, the latter a member of the fire prevention bureau.

Miss Ruth Sargent, a tenant, discovered the fire. A single alarm was sounded and the firemen quickly extinguished the blaze which, officials said, started in the janitor's room.

Cheer for Vets at Bedford Hospital

About 300 veterans enjoyed the second annual Christmas celebration held at the United States Veterans' Bureau Hospital at Bedford. About 100 more veterans were allowed to go home for Christmas. Miss Evelyn Davis, director of the Red Cross service at the hospital, had general charge of the day's activities.

There was a big Christmas tree and each veteran was remembered with a Christmas stocking provided by the Disabled Veterans' Christmas remembrance committee.

Tars Play Santa to 130 Children

The crew of the U. S. S. Raleigh at the Charlestown Navy Yard played Santa Claus to 130 boys and girls ranging from 8 to 14 years of age, entertaining and then feeding them with a bountiful Christmas dinner.

Each child was presented with a neat gift by Santa Claus, who proved to be Chief Boatswain John Sawyer.

850 Given Cheer at Reformatory

Christmas Day was observed at the Massachusetts Reformatory, West Concord, with a varied program, in which the 850 prisoners participated. The Catholic prisoners attended mass in the chapel at 7 o'clock, celebrated by Rev. James M. Sonnen. After breakfast the prisoners had three-quarters of an hour of yard liberty, and then enjoyed a motion picture show in the chapel. A Christmas dinner was served at noon.

Fallen Horse Ties Up Back Bay Car Lines

Subway traffic and street cars on Commonwealth ave and Beacon st were tied up 25 minutes today when a police auto fell on a junk horse fell upon both inbound and outbound tracks.

According to police Jacob Cohen was driving the outfit to enter Beacon st. when a steel calk on a shoe of the horse caught in the rail. As the horse fell Cohen was thrown from the wagon, but escaped injury, as did the horse.

Clarence Cobb, driver for Police Commissioner Wilson, Traffic Officer Edward Walton and Elevated employes eventually extricated the horse.

The delay caused considerable inconvenience to hundreds of noonday car riders. Cars were tied up as far out as Cottage Farm bridge on Commonwealth ave. and beyond St Mary's st., on Beacon st. Outbound cars in the subway were tied up as far intown as Park street.

DENIES HE QUIT OVER PORTRAIT

Acceptance by the state art commission of the much discussed portrait of Senator Peter F. Walsh had nothing to do with his resignation from the board, Walter Gilman Page, prominent Nantucket artist, said in a statement he issued.

On December 13 last Page went on record in a letter to Chairman Grafton, saying that he was unalterably opposed to the acceptance of the Tarbell painting, characterizing the acceptance as a "mile-and-a-quarter policy."

"I regret that my resignation as a member of the art commission should in any way be connected with the Walsh portrait matter, Page said. "Months ago I felt I should resign, as it was very inconvenient to give my time and attention to the affairs of the commission.

"I was unable to be present at the meetings, but there were several things I desired to see to which were of interest to me, so I sent [illegible] just what I might be thrown on my resignation. I [illegible] the governor at the time I did, but anything the art commission did or did not do had no bearing on my resignation if there had been some matter of importance before the commission and that of a controversial nature I should have kept my membership until the fight was over."

ROBERT E. LEE OUT OF SERVICE TEN DAYS

200 Passengers Sent to Hub by Train When Ship Breaks Down

The Robert E. Lee of the Eastern Steamship Lines, which broke down soon after leaving New York Christmas Eve and had to be towed back to port, will not be back on the service for 10 days.

The ship was booked full for her sailing from Boston last night and to all those who requested it a refund of their passage money was made.

The George Washington, her sister ship on the route, will maintain the service alone, operating three sailings per week each way. The accident, while happily not attended by any injury to anyone, comes at a bad time for the company, as bookings were large all the coming week, up to and past New Year's, and a considerable financial loss will be entailed.

The Lee was about two hours from her New York pier when the mishap occurred, and although efforts were made to repair the trouble, it was such that it could not be remedied, and the ship could go no further.

Informed of the circumstances, and assured that there was not the slightest danger, the passengers continued their celebration, with dancing, and singing carols. Capt. Louis J. Breckenridge wirelessed back to New York of the Lee's plight, and then ordered the anchors dropped, to await the arrival of tugs.

Three towboats arrived at the scene, took the helpless liner in tow, and returned to the company's terminal in the North river. Here, the passengers landed and all were furnished with transportation to Boston by rail, so that none would be disappointed in missing their Christmas dinner at home. Most of them boarded the fast Mayflower and were here in the early forenoon.

URGES TRAINING OF 250,000 FLIERS AT COST OF ONE BATTLESHIP

WOULD GIVE PLANES TO CLUBS

500 Civilian Flying Clubs In New England Predicted If Congress Accepts Bill

"More than 250,000 trained fliers can be produced in five years by the expenditure of $40,000,000, the cost of one battleship."

This was the assertion today by Thomas L. Hill of Waban, president of the American Society for Promotion of Aviation, which is waging a campaign to have the government supply planes gratis to civilian flying clubs.

During the World War, student aviators made solo flights after a bare three hours of instruction, Hill said, declaring that a civilian flying club, equipped with a plane, could turn out at least five fully trained pilots in a year.

A bill now pending in Congress, Hill said, would build up national defense by supplying 10,000 planes at $4000 each to clubs throughout the country devoted to aviation.

The bill was introduced by Senator Thomas Schall of Minnesota, and would authorize the appropriation of $40,000,000.

In addition to making possible the organization of a veritable army of aviators, the bill would also result in production on such a scale that the cost of training planes would be reduced to about $1500, Hill said.

The society is now arranging a petition to support the bill, and is securing thousands of signatures.

Hill estimates that its passage would result in the organization of 500 clubs in New England alone.

THOUSANDS GET XMAS CHEER

Another Christmas day has passed along, ushered out with a great celebration in churches, homes and hotels

Boston and most of New England enjoyed perfect weather, with enough ice and snow to provide the proper atmosphere and yet a minimum of discomfort.

From midnight on all through the day, the great religious holiday of the year was observed in the churches. Throughout the Catholic archdiocese in nearly 800 churches, pastors and assistants selves of the privilege, accorded by Cardinal O'Connell, of celebrating midnight masses.

So large were the throngs attending that in churches where it was possible two services were held, in the upper and lower auditoriums.

CARDINAL GIVES BLESSING

At the Cathedral, the principal service was the solemn high mass, when Cardinal O'Connell pontificated. This mass was broadcast. At the close, the Cardinal, pursuing his usual custom, bestowed the Papal blessing.

An impressive communion service was held in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, with Bishop Slattery as preacher. Other Protestant church conducted their usual Christian services.

At the State prison in Charlestown the prisoners enjoyed the first talking picture ever presented there. Recreation periods were extended by Warden Hogsett. A dinner, of which roast pork was the chief viand, was served. Early years were celebrated by the chaplain, the Rev. Ralph W. Farrell.

Sheriff John A. Kelliher followed his Thanksgiving and Christmas custom in serving a full course turkey dinner to the 325 inmates of Suffolk county jail in Charles st.

It was a happy day at Boston City Hospital. The Boston lodge of Elks, with a troup of artists, gave a varied show in the amphitheater.

At Deer Island, Master George F. H. Mulcahy gave his 730 inmates a roast turkey dinner and a talking motion picture show.

At the Long Island Hospital the day's observance was ushered in with masses by the island chaplain, the Rev. William Hallwell, S. J., and a Protestant church service conducted by the Rev. George Stokes, visiting clergyman

PRESENT PLAY

At the Massachusetts Hospital for Crippled Children, at Canton, the members of the Norwood Universalist Church gave a play.

About 2400 former service men in government hospitals in Massachusetts received gifts through the efforts of the disabled veterans. Christmas remembrance committee, as did 800 Massachusetts veterans who are in hospitals elsewhere.

The Salvation Army provided 20,000 persons with dinners through its homes, hospitals and departments, distributing clothing, shoes and coal besides.

The Industrial Home in Boston gave a Christmas dinner to 125 friendless men, after its custom of 42 years, gave them gifts and had an entertainment program.

The Morgan Memorial served dinner to 100 men at the Seavey Memorial.

Family Reunion Held at City Hospital

The family of John Elfstrom a sailor, held a Christmas reunion at City Hospital The family home Union st., Charlestown, was empty because Mrs. Elsie Elfstrom and her two boys, Donald, 6, and Graham, 18 months, had been brought to the hospital two weeks before Christmas, suffering from throat afflictions.

But even though the reunion didn't take place at home it was a happy one. When Graham awoke there was his father standing before him with Christmas presents filling his arms. And the tiny bit the stocking that the nurse had hung up for the youngster beside his crib the night before was crammed full with more toys and sweets.

And from his little cot at the other end of the ward, Donald spotted his father when he opened his eyes and before the nurse on duty could stop him he was out of his bed in one bound and down to greet his daddy.

When he investigated he found that Santa Claus had learned somehow that he was sick in the hospital and had come to visit him during the night

It would have been a perfect day for the two boys if they could have been with their mother for a little while, too, but that wasn't possible because she is still ill and the doctors did not think it was wise for the youngsters, who are practically well again, to see her until she has fully recovered

Put Mrs. Elfstrom was permitted a visit from her husband and from him she learned all about her children and the news that they were nearly ready to be discharged was almost as good as seeing them.

The reunion of the Elfstroms was only one of the happy meetings at the hospital. In fact, attendants at the institution said it was the happiest Christmas the hospital had enjoyed in years.

Nearly 300 patients were permitted to leave their beds and go down to the amphitheater on the operating floor to enjoy the 25 acts of entertainment which the Elks provided for the 16th year

6 PINNED UNDER SKIDDING CAR

Six persons, including two small children, were pinned under an automobile and narrowly escaped serious injury when the machine skidded on the slippery pavement of Hale st., near Neptune ct., Beverly, and overturned

According to police, a sedan operated by William J. Pettipass, of Smith st., Gloucester, was traveling along Hale st., towards Gloucester, when it skidded. Pettipass, police said, lost control and the sedan struck a rut.

The cries of the women in the sedan were heard by other motorists who notified Beverly police. After much difficulty Pettipass, Mrs. Emily Goyetche and her two small children, and Mr. and Mrs. John Briand, all of Gloucester, were extricated. The machine was badly damaged and towed to a garage.

MAIL CLEANUP COMPLETE IN DISTRICT

Army Base Factor in Delivery of All Received Up to Noon Tuesday

When postal employes quit work Christmas Eve, every piece of mail posted up to noon, Tuesday had been delivered, Postmaster Charles R. Gow announced today.

Parcels, letters and cards received after that time are all to be delivered before tonight.

Postmaster Gow said that one thing which contributed to the delivery of this mass of mail before Christmas was the use of an emergency station at the Army Base as a distribution point for parcel post packages.

About 300 temporary employes were put on to handle the Christmas rush and for their benefit a special alphabetical distribution system was used. Under it the mail was handled twice where under the regular system it is handled once, but it avoided errors on the part of the inexperienced men.

Just how much mail was handled during the week before Christmas has not yet been figured but it is estimated that 120,000,000 pieces of mail were handled Sunday.

In most offices the carriers worked all night Sunday preparing the mail for their routes so that substitute carriers could handle part of it and so speed up delivery.

"There was a notable increase in early mailing," said Col. Gow. "Because of the early mailing campaign a large number of the public were willing to help us and we are very grateful to them. But there was a flood of last-minute mailing.

"The storm in the West, which delayed many Western trains from 12 to 24 hours, also caused more incoming mail during the last few days than we would have had otherwise."

Col. Gow declared that the chief credit for the successful handling of the Christmas mail should go to William E. Hurley, assistant postmaster of Boston. Hurley, he said, had worked night and day, practically without sleep for four days making arrangements, supervising the details and co-operating with the heads of branch stations.

2 GIRLS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Two young girls were injured and the drivers of two motor vehicles were shaken up at Lawrence rd., and Governor's ave., Medford, when an auto and truck crashed.

The injured girls, Grace and Gertrude Wren, 19, and 22, respectively, of Chester st., Somerville, were cut and bruised. They were occupants of an automobile operated by Philip N. Donnelly of Highland ave., Malden.

The driver of the truck, police say, was John E. Amlaw, of Marshall st., Somerville.

Fire Routs Family in Midst of Party

The Christmas celebration at the home of Condole Zaritches, on Freeman ave., Hyde Park, was disrupted when fire started in the cellar, spread to the first floor and forced the whole family out while firemen battled the blaze for nearly an hour

The loss was estimated by fire officials at $1000, and the cause was given as overheating of the furnace

4000 Brave Cold at Nantasket Beach

Nearly 4000 people spent the day at Nantasket Beach in spite of the sub-freezing temperature.

Capt. Frank Brivogel of the Metropolitan police estimated more than 2000 cars were parked around the beach section during the day.

He was obliged to detail extra officers to handle the traffic. Hot dog stand proprietors opened for the day and reported good business.

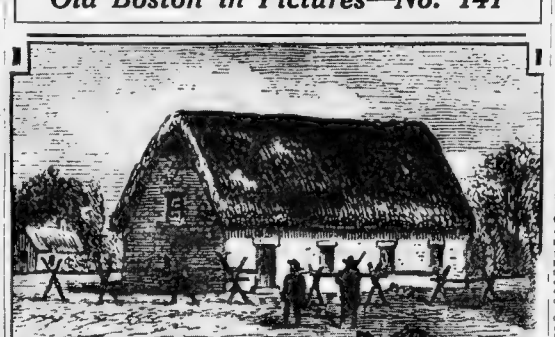
Old Boston in Pictures—No. 141



THE first meeting house in Boston, which stood near the head of State st., was a small building with mud walls and a thatched roof It was erected in 1632. John Wilson and John Cotton were ministers. Seven years later this house of worship was succeeded by a more pretentious structure further out Washington st. This latter building was burned in 1711, rebuilt in 1713, but abandoned in 1808. The original meeting house, after being given up as a place of worship, was used for town meetings for many years. More pictures of Old Boston will be printed in the Boston Evening American.

BOSTON MODEL TOWN OVER HOLIDAY

Arrests Few, Fires Negligible as City Demonstrates Her Best Behavior

Boston was on her best behavior for Christmas and set up a new record for care and decorum

Never before or after prohibition, were so few arrested for drunkenness. Never was the number of fire lies on a Christmas Day, and the veteran police who keep the books at the various station houses do ared that this was even a greater record than the one established for the number of drunk, arrested

The police are sure that Christmas 1929 has established a record which no city the size of Boston throughout the universe can even approximate

There were only 107 arrests and the most serious were those of three men charged with shoplifting. Only 78 men and women were arrested for drunkenness and as most of them had no previous record practically all of them were released before 10 a. m.

There were no serious automobile accidents within the city limits and the usual long list of fires attributable to Christmas candles and electrical features were cut to a minimum

Capt. John M. Anderson of the Back Bay station was so pleased with the results of his men throughout the Christmas season that he delivered a speech of congratulation at roll call calling attention to the fact that for the first time in years there was not a single break, burglary or other serious law violation in the Back Bay during the Christmas season.

Only one man was taken into custody in the Back Bay for a 48-hour period, and he was charged with drunkenness, after being arrested as he fell from a car at the Massachusetts ave. station.

Extensive preparations had been made by hospitals in the city to care for the large number of intoxication and liquor poisoning cases that was believed would result over the holidays. Only 20 patients suffering from intoxicants in liquor, were received by City, Long Island, Boston and Massachusetts Relief hospitals

Food and Clothing Given Quincy Poor

It is believed that no poor family in Quincy went hungry or cold on Christmas day, as dinner baskets and gifts of fuel, provided through Community Welfare Service, were distributed to 250 families.

The Community Welfare Society distributed 90 more dinners and supplied the children of these families with toys. The city of Quincy, through Comm. Channing T. Puffield, contributed the employment trucks for the distribution of the gifts.

FIRE TRACED TO 'OPEN' FURNACE

Leaving the drafts on the furnace open while they went visiting caused a fire which did $1000 damage to the home of Condole Zaphiros, of Freeman st., West Roxbury

Neighbors discovered smoke seeping out through the window of the house a 2½ story wooden building, and an alarm was sounded The fire was believed to have started in the rubbish near the furnace, spread to the first floor but was soon checked by firemen

2 Injured as Ice Causes Auto Crash

Ice roads were the cause of a serious accident on the Lynn-Nahant boulevard operated by Lon Vastal of West Baltimore st., was in collision with a car which skidded on the icy surface

James Mahoney of Ontario st., a passenger in Vitale's car, was severely cut about the legs and received a lacerated nose. He was treated at the Lynn hospital to which the driver also was taken for treatment of lacerations of the leg and cuts on the face.

Boy's Christmas Gift Reveals Tragedy

Tragedy was revealed by the Christmas spirit of a boy of 12, who walked from Lynn to Saugus with a gift for his one-time nurse

John Baggiosarin, 12, of Washington st., Lynn, was unable to enter the nurses home at Morton st., Chelsondale

Police forced the door and found the body of Mrs. Agnes Merrow, 63 who, the medical examiner says, died from natural causes some time ago

The boys purchased his gift a few days ago and made his annual Christmas walk to the Morton avenue home He found the door locked, got no response on ringing the front door bell and finally went to the rear and peered within

He saw no one in the kitchen floor the top of the stove covered with ice and icicles dangling from the lintels

Baggiosarin walked back to Lynn to notify police of that city of his visit and local officials were then told

Capt John J Stewart of Patrol man Sullivan began investigation and forced the door in the kitchen from which found the body of Mrs Merrow

REVIVAL OF OPERETTA IS WELL DONE

Principals in the Cast

Capt. Warrington	Raiford Young
Lieut. Governor	Herbert L. Waterous
Filipino Grandee	Louis Templeman
Sir Harry Blake	Wesley McCloud
Miss Alice	Bob Carney
Florence	Clarence Harvey
Marietta D'Afena	The Marvenges
Lizette	Edwin Young
Adah	Lydia Van Gilder

ONE striking thing "Naughty Marietta" proves, and that very emphatically. It is this: latter-day jazzy creations pale by contrast with this sterling product, musically considered. Thus the revival of the Victor Herbert success of almost two decades ago, now the attraction at the Majestic, brings again to veteran playgoers, and brand new to the younger generation, one of the very best of operettas. It is good to sip fine wine out of the old bottle when the new in the new bottle has so often been bootlegging.

The revival is done with excellent spirit and fidelity. Singers and players seemed enthusiastic in their talk, always a good omen and always conducive to first quality effort. There seemed an inspiring wraith, somewhere in the house—could it have been that of the great composer? The audience quickly warmed to the merit of the show and those memories that swung back through the years to the original performance found no flaw in the resurrected piece.

Ilse Marvenga, in the title role, is a rare combination of exceeding beauty, winsomeness and ability. She seems to have been born to the prima donna manner. Her work throughout was exquisite, her singing stellar and her acting delightfully natural. The singing lass of Van Gilder, noted diva, lifted her role to one worthy of grand opera. Eulalia Young is clever as the comedienne; once she stopped the show.

The masculine contribution was of almost equal worth. Alfred Young helps make the revival worthy of being called brilliant; his tenor is tuneful and fervent. The basso profundo of Herman Marcuse is magnificent; one's regret is that it has too little play. Bob Capron is a superb comic foil, possessed of a good voice.

Messrs. Shubert have done mightily well in this start of their series of Herbert revivals, and superlatives used by the outgoing auditors proves the enterprise worth while.

NEW PICTURE FOR MARION DAVIES

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Dec. 26—Irving Thalberg, back from the country of blizzards and storms, is busy again where sunshine is a permanent institution. He brings news of Marion Davies who is convalescing from her recent illness. Just as soon as she is well she is coming back to Hollywood to begin work on her next picture, The Floradora Girl.

The Floradora Sextette—the sensation of 20 years ago has more romantic interest than any group of chorus girls in the history of the theater. All the Floradora girls married millionaires and all were beauties. Even those days the bald-headed row used to chuckle with delight when the girls flipped their long skirts and gave the boys a naughty wink. All of this will be incorporated in the story which is to be directed by Harry Beaumont. Harry Beaumont has been no regret to direct Miss Davies that we can only feel the combination will be rarely successful.

Paul Bern is now supervising the scenario and from what Thalberg tells me the picture is certainly promising with its catchy songs and color.

IF you have occasion to mention "Skeet" Gallagher, remember his name is "Skeet" and not "Skeets," singular, not plural, though I wouldn't want to say "Skeet" is a singular young man. Well, you know what I mean. It's the day after Christmas, so let's not be too fussy. Anyway, "Skeet" is going to New York to play the lead opposite Helen Kane in "Dangerous Dan McGrew." the same picture Fred Newmeyer is traveling East to direct. The Paramount Co. gave us the title "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" now they have changed it to "Dangerous Dan McGrew." It isn't any fault of ours. How can we help it when a company is so changeable?

I ADMIT I am impressed with all the things I hear about Helen Johnson. I have never laid eyes on her but I listened with both ears when they told me at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer that she is the discovery of the age. I'd rather wait until I see the lady before I wax too enthusiastic. You know how it is. Anyway, she has just been signed to a long term contract and they are now talking of the present that she may be given the lead in "The Circle." That means she will have the role Katherine Wood had in the stage production.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Joseph Cawthorn busy unpacking his furniture and getting installed permanently in his Beverly Hills home. Reginald Sharland, who just finished "Girl of the Port," putting in a long-distance call to London to talk to his young son. The George Fawcetts and the De Wolfe Hoppers eating Christmas turkey together. Count and Countess Hamon dining at the Roosevelt Hotel with Anita Loos and John Emerson. Barbara Kent dashing about on the roulette and doing some last-minute shopping day before Christmas. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

"Manslaughter"

"Manslaughter," produced as a silent picture some years ago by Cecil DeMille, will be remade by Paramount as a talker.

LATEST FILM HIGHLIGHTS HIT HUB

THE holiday period brings eight new films for the new week's fare, all the first-run theaters making changes beginning today. Cheerio is the keynote of screen spirit, the nature of the offerings being happily attuned to the season.

Rudy Vallee

First of the changes comes at the Metropolitan, where "Pointed Heels" opens today. In the cast are to be seen William Powell, Helen Kane, Fay Wray, "Skeets" Gallagher and Phillips Holmes. At the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia tomorrow will be "No, No, Nanette," with Bernice Claire, Alexander Gray, Louise Fazenda, Lilyan Tashman and Zasu Pitts. The Tiffany production, "The Lost Zeppelin," opens at the Park on Saturday.

This is heralded as a picture filled with thrills, adventure and romance, and should be of special interest in view of past Zeppelin exploits and the present work of Commander Byrd, in Antarctic regions. In the cast are Virginia Valli, Conway Tearle, Duke Martin and Ricardo Cortez.

On Saturday, also, will come the Rudy Vallee picture, "The Vagabond Lover." In this he is said to be a "screamer," and others in the cast are Sally Blane, Eddie Nugent and Charles Sellon. To the Scollay comes Ted Lewis in his talkie debut, "Is Everybody Happy?" Assisting him are Ann Pennington, Alice Day, Furnell Pratt and Lawrence Grant.

On the same day, the Keith Albee, begins showing "Tanned Legs," with Ann Pennington, Dorothy Lee, Albert Gran, Sally Blane and Arthur Lake of importance to fans is the fact that Esther Ralston will be on the stage in person for the week.

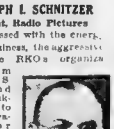
On Monday, Loew's State offers The Three Musketeers in "Life a Great Life"; Loew's Orpheum has "The Mysterious Island."

RKO NEW YEAR PROGRAM IS TIP TOP

By JOSEPH I. SCHNITZER

President, Radio Pictures

I AM impressed with the energy, resourcefulness, the aggressiveness of the RKO organization from Mr. Hiram S. Brown and Joseph Plunkett down to the last theater usher ... there appears to be a determination not only to maintain every last RKO house at the top in its special territory, but to send it well over all past records for business. With repri decorps like this nothing can stop RKO. And with an efficient organization like this to take and play Radio Pictures, we of RKO productions feel inspired more than ever to bring you productions surpassing anything in the field.



J. I. Schnitzer

And so, to the patrons of the RKO theaters, we are bringing such attractions as "The Vagabond Lover," "Radio Revels," "Seven Keys to Baldpate" with Richard Dix; "Love Comes Along" with Bebe Daniels; "Dance Hall," "Case of Sergeant Grischa," with Chester Morris and Betty Compson, and a host of others for your enjoyment.

CLIVE PLAYER WON HONORS

TWELVE years ago Miss Rhona Bench, who made her first Boston appearance in the "Middle Watch" now at the Lyceum, graduated with honors from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London.

Her work as a dramatic student disclosed such marked histrionic talent and the young actress received such enthusiastic encouragement, that the stage as a career proved irresistible. Not only was she awarded the academy's gold medal as its most skilled pupil at her graduation, but her work had been discussed and praised by such eminent theatrical personages as Sir. Arthur W. Pinero, Miss Irene Vanbrugh and the late distinguished tragedienne, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt.

Subsequent to her graduation, Miss Fenely obtained an engagement with the English producer and actor, Basil Dean.

University Theater Has Double Feature Programs

The program at the University Theater for four days starting next Sunday includes Joan Crawford in "Untamed" and the Gregory Straus Viennese operetta "Married in Hollywood." The last three days of this week will be shown Nancy Carroll and Helen Kane in "Sweetie" and Ina Claire in "The Awful Truth."

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

CHRONIC indigestion is curable in children, but it often takes months and the most patient observance of diets. If a child relapses after altering the diet prescribed, the child should be put back on the old diet promptly. Intelligence and a doctor's advice is needed.

CARE OF CHEEK MUSCLES ENHANCES BEAUTY

Appearance of Old Age May Be Long Postponed

By MARIA JERITZA

SAGGING cheek muscles, which have been called the first signs of old age, are more often a symptom of lack of intelligent care of the complexion and mental and physical health. If you indulge in dreary, mournful thinking day after day and cry yourself to sleep at night as so many women do over practically nothing at all, this unwholesome state of the mind and thoughts will result in weakened, dragging muscles of the cheeks All destructive emotions are depleting in effect. Hatred, anger, fear, grimaces, sneers pull down the facial muscles, while laughter, admiration, good-will and joy send the blood glowing through the body and build firm muscular tissue.

Healthy living keeps muscles firm and well toned. Nerve-depleting noise and confusion of city life tend to weaken and drag down the facial muscles through depletion of the nerves. Live in a healthful atmosphere. Sleep your full quota at night in a quiet room flooded with fresh air. Eat nourishing, well-balanced meals, including fruit and fresh vegetables. Drink plenty of water. Women who live in the country and keep regular hours, work in their gardens, do their own housework, ride or drive in the fresh air each day, keep younger longer than their city sisters and their faces retain the firm, rounded outline so typical of youth and youth's prettiness

The facial muscles are a network of delicate tissue easily dragged out of place, but easily built up and responsive to good treatment.

When the muscles of the cheeks become soft and flabby, they drag down over the line of the jaws, destroying the youthful contour of the face, and lead to flabby neck muscles and a double chin. Always hold your neck erect. That in itself should go far toward keeping the contour of your face rounded and youthful

If your cheek muscles are soft purchase a good heavy massage cream, and each night, after cleansing your face, annoint the surface of your cheeks with this skin food or muscle oil, tapping it in lightly but firmly with your finger tips.

With the tips of your first, second and third fingers work slowly and gently just above the jaw line on each cheek, upward and backward to the hair line. Repeat this operation again and again. Now with a much lighter pressure of your fingers massage the flesh farther above the jaw, where the tissue is softer. Keep this massage gentle and do not let it touch the delicate flesh just beneath the eyes

Finally, pick up the flesh gently with a clawlike motion and pinch it gently until the entire surface of your cheeks is covered, except, of course, the tissue under your eyes Now remove excess cream with tissue material, leaving a thin film to sink in overnight.

Cold water has a marvelously bracing effect on the facial muscles. Mix it if you like with a good tonic, such as eau de cologne or witch-hazel and splash your face with it, patting the cold liquid well into your face and cheeks Never neglect this dash of cold, softened water on your face, for it will do wonders toward keeping the muscles of your cheeks firm, well-toned and youthful

Would Guy Get News of Her Death?

Miss Pat -:- Thrilling Romance of Airways

her body had been found—murdered!

"Where are they, Pat?"

"Gone."

"They won't find us?"

"I hope not."

"Well—don't let them. You said you'd hide. Why don't we, then? She was riveted to the spot; her eyes unable to leave the rose-colored buff—beautiful tower of flame—below which the trailers had dropped.

Fifteen minutes—twenty—three-quarters of an hour. Ah—God is good—

The next instant Pat gave a cry as she took the little boy's frightened hand and went darting in a blind frenzy now this way—now that

The men had reappeared They were there, a thousand feet below the painted rocks They were coming surely—swiftly Now dropping from ledge to cliff, now crouching under the protruding shelf.

And now running—

Pat closed her eyes. She tried to shut out the mad clamor of pulses in her ears; tried to keep back those little insane cries that came whimpering to her lips

"They'll make it—they'll get there Oh mother!"

She ignored the boy except to hold bitterly to his hand—drag him, protesting, full of frightened inquiry, after her. Oh, somewhere she could hide. Somewhere there'd be a cave like that one where they'd slept. In the pictures she'd seen such caves. The canyons were full of them.

She went scouring along the walls as though her hands would hollow out some safe retreat And she kept glancing back. to the precipice.

They saw her They were far down now. And as she looked they looked back. They stood on a jutty. The tall one—oh that murderous Slim—took glasses from his pocket . . focused them Heaven nor hell would not defeat him now.

She was almost finished; almost liquid with terror when she found it. She picked the child up in her arms and kissed him wildly. Her tears rained on her face. She whispered crazily:

"I knew it! I knew he would Oh, father! Oh, darling—"

And she went running into the mouth of the cave. It was large—much larger than the one where they'd slept last night.

With a trembling caution and never for a moment releasing her little comrade's grasp, Pat advanced.

She laughed hysterically They'd not find her here! They'd not undo this heaven-sent abode Her father had directed her. She'd called on Richard; had sent her spirit in a thundering appeal to that one who wouldn't fail; who'd never failed. He led her here!

Now Pat turned her flash back by inch she went on The cave opened out. The light showed a long gallery. Already she could stand upright

"I'm afraid." Billy whispered.

"No—we're robbers, and this is our cave Well find heaps of gold You're not afraid!"

But a sick apprehension crept up and nestled in her mind. What if the boy should cry out—

"Listen Billy—you don't want that terrible fellow to find us You're not afraid You won't say one word. See—I hold your hand—old it tight. Nothing can hurt you. But if you speak . . if you make any noise they'll find us They'll hurt us . . Will you be quiet?"

"Gonna jump again, Pat?"

"No—just be as still "

"Like a little mouse?"

"But you mustn't even squeal—not one little tiny squeal!"

His eyes in the flashlight were enormous—dark, solemn, full of holy trust. He nodded His said manfully:

"I know how to be a robber. I will, all right. Be like thim—"

He went on tip-toe, his finger to his lips saying:

"Hush—hush—"

Pat rallied to herself. She warned hotly:

"Not too far Mustn't go in too far—get lost But far enough—crouch behind something

With elaborate caution she now pressed on, training the light on the floor, sides, ceiling

But here, almost at Pat's feet the ground went down—sheer, abrupt

She got down on her knees, turning the flash all about

"Not that way . . . dare not go that way Just here, too, was an arch—was a turn and a gallery running parallel with the one she had entered

Hide here—rest here

Half an hour—two hours—telling the child stories—giving the cat of tuna to finish

She wondered if she dare go back now toward the entrance—Had they reached the canyon floor?

She was about to start back—about to creep along that turn, when sickening, overpowering, with limpness and terror, she heard a voice—heard a step . . . Slim shouting

"Here it is! Damn the—she went in here"

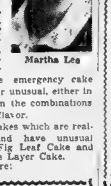
Unusual Holiday Cakes

THE "land of cakes" is the appellation which Burns gave to Scotland; but the season of cakes might well be applied to the winter and especially to the holidays. For with parties and people dropping in to dinner or for an unexpected evening's visit, the hostess is wise who always keeps a fresh cake in her pantry ready to serve her guests.



Martha Lee

Of course, any of the well-known cakes, if given a fluffy icing, will do, but it is particularly interesting to have the emergency cake something rather unusual, either in appearance or in the combinations which give it flavor.

A couple of cakes which are really unusual—and have unusual frostings, are Fig Leaf Cake and Apple and Date Layer Cake. The recipes are:

APPLE AND DATE LAYER CAKE

Cream ½ cup of shortening and 1 cup of sugar, then add 2 well-beaten eggs. Add ½ cup of evaporated milk alternately with 1½ cups of pastry flour sifted with 3 tsps of baking powder. Add 1 tsp. of lemon extract. Bake in two layers in a moderate—375-deg. F.—oven for about 20 minutes. When cool, put together with Apple and Date Filling. Ice top and sides with plain white icing flavored with lemon.

Cream ¾ cup shortening with 1 cup sugar, then add 2 well-beaten eggs. Sift together 2 cups of pastry flour, 1 tsp. of soda, 1 tsp. of baking powder, 1 tsp. of cinnamon, 1 tsp. of allspice, and ½ tsp. of nutmeg; add alternately with ½ cup of sour milk to the first mixture. Have the figs from an 8-ounce can cut in fine pieces and well-grained Add them to the batter. Pour into a well-greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate—350-deg. F.—oven for one hour Cover, when cool, with Fig Icing.

FIG ICING

Add 1 tbsp. of lemon juice to the fig syrup from the can (in preceding recipe), then add confectioner's sugar until it is of the right consistency to spread. Add 1 tbsp. of melted butter. Spread on top and sides of the cake.

APPLE AND DATE FILLING

Mix together 1 cup of apple sauce and ¼ cup of chopped stoned dates. Mix 4 tbsps. of sugar with 2½ tbsps. of flour and add to first mixture. Cook for 3 minutes. Then add 1½ tbsps. of butter and 1 slightly beaten egg yolk and cook until thick. Add 2½ tbsps. lemon juice and 1 tsp. of grated lemon rind. Cool and put between the layers of the cake. Use plain frosting for top and sides.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Introducing Guest Who Performs

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

1 At ■ informal party, where the hostess has invited a friend to stunt or to her other guests to come to her party to sing to them, how should she introduce the singer before she rises to sing? She, of course, would be introduced to the guests as they arrived.

2 What should the hostess say in public to thank her before the close of the party?

3 At a party where the hostess has a guest sing her, should she introduce her guest to the other guests, or the other guests to her guest?

4. Should a man be introduced to a lady, or a lady to a man?

OTTAWA.

THE hostess wouldn't exactly "introduce" the singer, since she would already have met the guests. But she might say, informally as she rose to sing, "Miss Northward has been kind enough to consent to sing for us today, and nothing could make me so happy. And the minute she begins to sing, you will know why I am so happy to have you hear her truly beautiful voice."

2. When she finishes singing, completely finished that is, encores and all, the hostess should thank her, in a way something like this, perhaps, "Miss Northward, I want to thank you for all my guests as well as for myself for I read on their faces the superb pleasure that you have given them."

3. The hostess introduces the other guests to the guest of honor In general social usage, it is the person to whom people are introduced who is the important person. That is why we are introduced to the President of the United States, whether we are women or men, and why we are introduced to cardinals and royalty

4. Always—except in the three cases named in the answer above —the gentleman is introduced to the lady.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Alphabet Quilt blocks previously published in the Boston American, please send 5 cents for each block missing. Also enclose stamped, addressed envelope, Address Nancy Page, Boston American, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass.

WHEN the Alphabet Quilt Club members were leaving Nancy's house on the day they made the M or music block for the quilt they begged to know what the next letter N would stand for. Nancy chuckled, "Oh, a number of things," said she.

They guessed words like nuts, narcissus, North pole. One poor speller suggested Knives and then wondered why everyone hooted She was gently led to the dictionary where she found that a knife begins with a K. But there had been sense in Nancy's answer, "Oh, a number of things," because the block hold—numbers.

She chose this because it gave members a chance to use any kind or kinds of fast colored material they might have on hand. Some chose solid colors for the letters, others used figured prints. One woman had a striped pattern for the 7 and a figured print for the 3

First the block was cut from the paper A 6½-inch square of white gingham was laid over this as it was held flat on the window pane

With a sharp pointed lead pencil ich outline of letter N and the figures was made

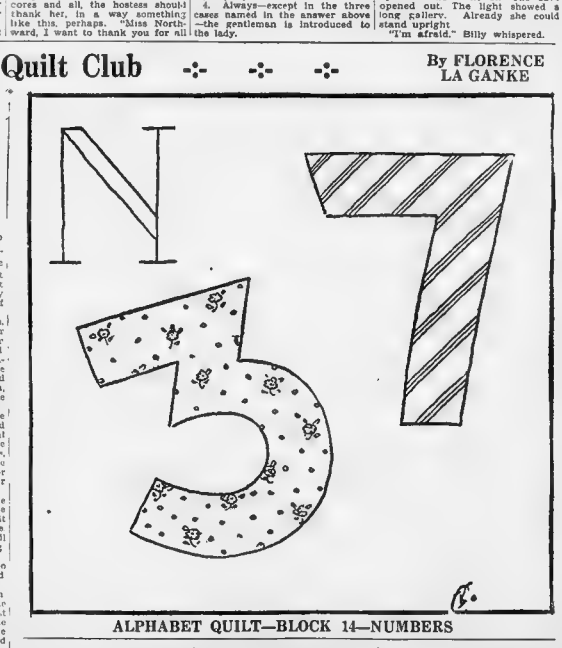
Then the paper was pasted onto lightweight tag or cardboard This was dried under pressure

While it was drying the members embroidered the initial in the corner To do this they used fast color embroidery cotton in the same shade as had been used for all the other letters thus far embroidered on the quilt.

Some women used a fine outline stitch while others made the letter effective with a close chain stitch The work needs to be heavy in order to make the letter stand out well.

After the letter was done the patterns for the letters were cut

To do this the patterns were cut from the stiff square of paper They were then laid on the cloth and this was cut with a quarter-inch allowance on all sides.



ALPHABET QUILT—BLOCK 14—NUMBERS

This allowance was turned under and basted in place. Then the numbers were pressed. In cutting and turning the curves of the number 3 it was found wise to make a few slits along the edges. In this way the edge could be turned under without stretching or making the material round and bulge.

After the letters had been pressed they were laid in place over the pencil outlines and basted in place.

The appliquing was done with a fine, slanting, invisible hemming stitch Joan said that number 7 looked like a candy cane with stripes of red and white going round it. That was because the number was made of a fine fast color red and white striped material.

Block 15 will appear on this page in Saturday's Boston American.

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Alphabet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, Boston American, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass.

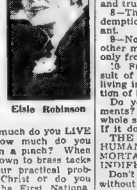
Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IF YOU WERE TO START A NEW RELIGION AND DRAW UP A NEW CREED, WHAT WOULD IT BE? WHAT TRUTHS WOULD YOU INDORSE AS LIVING ISSUES GUARANTEED TO HELP A MAN IN HIS DAILY AFFAIRS?



Elsie Robinson

For many years you've probably been saying that you were a Methodist, a Unitarian, a Catholic or Christian Scientist You've joined a church, contributed money and you'd put up an argument if anyone criticized your creed. But how much do you LEAN ON IT in a pinch? When it comes right down to brass tacks no vote takes your practical problems to Christ or do you take them to the First National Bank and your favorite doctor rather than Christ?

Dr. Charles Francis Potter of New York suspects that religion isn't a very live issue with most of us. He thinks it's a sort of social decoration which well regulated people feel they should have . . . like a nice calling card or a nifty monogram on the office door. He doesn't believe that we use it much in our practical affairs and he sees no value in a religion which it is used in practical affairs So he has formulated a creed which. In his opinion, will help a man in every department of his common life And in place of the old Mosaic law, he has formulated 10 new commandments Here they are:

1—God did not create the world It evolved

2—The conventional conception of heaven and hell is wrong, because right deeds bring their own satisfaction and wrong deeds are their own retribution.

3—Man's chief aim should be to improve himself, not to glorify God.

4—Religion should deal with the natural instead of the supernatural.

5—Man is born inherently good and of infinite possibilities as opposed to the theory that he is inherently evil and born of the dust

6—Man should attempt to remove injustices and suffering instead of submitting to them as manifestations of the will of God.

7—There is truth in all religions and truth outside religion.

8—The ideas of sin, salvation, redemption and prayer are unimportant.

9—No man or God can save another man, for improvement comes only from within.

10—Suffering is the natural result of breaking the laws of right living instead of being a manifestation of hell on earth.

Do you believe in these statements? Possibly not. Possibly the whole subject of religion bores you. If it does, you're foolish

THE GREAT MISTAKE TO HUMAN PROGRESS IS NOT IMMORTALITY OR ATHEISM BUT INDIFFERENCE

Don't go drifting through life without a cause or a creed Don't be a spiritless jellyfish. Stand for playing, loving and hating, living and dying That's the program of a live BELIEVER. SOMETHING THAT WILL PUT FIRE AND FIGHT AND BEAUTY AND COURAGE AND DELIGHT INTO YOUR WHOLE PERFORMANCE.

If you prefer to think that life is a grim, personal tragedy and that God and Heaven and hell are as real as the corner cop, then fight it out on that line

If you can only be quickened by the beauty of the natural world, then get busy on that theory

Or, if only fair play appeals to you, make that your standard

But . . . believe in something with every ounce of your substance and every watt of your wallop . . . for, without belief, you might as well be a clam.

The Truth

ABOUT LEARNING NEW MANNERS

By ELINOR GLYN

THE first step in "exquisiteness" are the most difficult. It will not be easy to realize that your speech is perhaps jarring and jarring to refined ears, and that you make unharmonious sounds when you laugh loudly, and that your reactions are coarse.

Elinor Glyn

You will naturally resent these suggestion of these things But if you are clever, you will hide your annoyance . . and ask yourselves, "what can I gain by correcting these things?"

To consider freedom, I would answer you. The more you learn, the more powerful you become.

So, if someone comes to the home town whom you secretly sense is above you in refinement, do not immediately pounce upon her and tear her to pieces through irritated envy

But watch her, see in what she is superior to you, and discover in what way you can apply her methods for your own benefit.

The anguishing sights I have seen in New York when some of the New Rich have crashed into the select circles of the already arrived!

The lovely girls gushingly doing all the wrong things. Eating in the home town way; changing their fork into the right hand after cutting their meat, always calling their husbands "Mr. So and So" when speaking of them to others, and doing a hundred and one tiny things which stamp them as not of the elite

For always remember, Gracie and Maud, you can not alter the society you are trying to climb into, you must rise and conform to its standards if you wish for the entree.

Breaking Her Dates

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

We are two friends of the same age (17) and we like the same sports, such as dancing and swimming. The trouble is to go out with boys of the right kind—that is this trouble with us, I think. We don't drink We smoke, but that is all.

We met some nice boys the other night and they made a date for Sunday They didn't keep it. Now can you tell us what is the matter with us?

I met a man about two months ago and have been going with him steadily until the other night—we broke up because he said I was too good for him. Now I don't know what is the matter with us. but I would surely like to know

SUE AND SALLY.

WHEN two boys fail to keep an appointment they have made with two girls, it is the boys and not the girls who are at fault in the matter. So do not reproach yourselves

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

Against sound players sure (positive) doubles are rare. In the deal illustrated above the final declaration of Contract becomes four Spades by the South player. East, with the Ace-King of Clubs, the Ace of Diamonds, the King of Hearts and five trumps, holds what looks like a sure double. As will be seen, however, Declarer makes his contract by effecting a Grand Coup; that is, by deliberately shortening his own trump holding to equal in number that of the East player to enable him to lead at the 12th trick from Dummy through East's Spade 9 5 up to his own remaining Spade 10 7.

SALIENT POINTS OF BIDDING

Auction—South bids originally one Spade West passing. North takes out with two Hearts, holding the necessary high card strength for such a take-out and but a single fit of partner's. East passes, hoping that South will rebid Spades, a hope which materializes as South bids two Spades, concluding the auction

Contract—South makes an original two Spade bid at Contract, his high card strength distributed in three suits well justifying the announcement that he holds a hand with which he can go game with but average or less than average support from partner

North's response to the original forcing two bid is three Hearts, a response which does not promise by help his partner. East passing South now bids for game at Spades and East doubles, holding as stated in the preceding remarks, sufficient high card strength and trump length which would make the double seem almost a lay-down

SALIENT POINTS OF PLAY

West leads initially his fourth best Diamond, the 2. East wins with the Ace and proceeds to lay down the Ace and King of Clubs, thus giving East-West partnership three tricks. It still looks to East like a sure double as his King of Hearts lies in back of Dummy's Ace-Queen and he counts on possibly one Spade trick unless Declarer holds five solid honors

To the original Diamond lead and following East's play of the Ace, South unlocks by dropping the King of Diamonds, thus providing two Diamond entries in the Dummy hand To the two Club lead South plays his Queen and Jack despite which East continues with the 8, as to lead a Diamond with a Queen-10 facing him in Dummy seems pointless

Declarer ruffs the fourth trick with the Club 10. From East's double he naturally locates the adverse Spade strength to be concentrated in that hand, but, to ascertain the exact extent of such strength he lays down his Ace and King of Spades West showing out on the second Spade lead, marks East as having held five originally and Declarer therefore determines to attempt the Grand Coup as the only possible way to make his contract

Accordingly, he first lays down the Queen of Spades, next the Jack of Diamonds which he overtakes with the Queen in Dummy and returns the 10 of Diamonds, discarding thereon one f his Hearts Declarer now leads Dummy's fourth Diamond and East, who can ruff either his 4 of Hearts or trump. As South d'scarded a Heart on the third round of Diamonds, East decides to d.scard his small Heart and South trumps with the 6 of Spades At this point, South holds the 10 and 7 of Spades and the Jack of Hearts. East holds the 9 and 5 of Spades and the King of Hearts. It will thus be seen that Declarer has shortened his trump holding to equal that of East. He can now go over to Dummy with the Ace of Hearts and lead through East to pick up both his trumps.

Thus South makes his contract of four odd doubled by effecting the Grand Coup in the face of what would seem to the casual player an impossible situation

FEDERATION MEMBERSHIP

Mrs. Frederick Glazier Smith chairman of membership of the General Federation, and of our own state federation, writing in the national news organ about membership says that "A club should stand as the right of service illumines the picture, and gives a view of each tree of accomplishment, each stone of progress with the club as a part of the background."

Mrs. Smith states that the twentieth century has little patience with the people who are dead and blind to world progress

The world is growing smaller each day, as means of transportation and communication make distances negligible How better could clubs be adapted to meet world problems than to be affiliated with an international organization?

"Club members haven't the correct perspective when they place self in the foreground and ask what benefits membership brings to them. It may be you are using the wrong end of your spy glass in looking over your club horizon and the general federation looks small and far away it does not interest you Try turning your field glass around, place the small end, your club, toward you and then see what you behold There will be a world of women and children, better home conditions, and a better understanding between the women of the world, and this vision must arouse a desire to become a part of this world movement"

All of which means of course, that affiliated general federation clubs should with great enthusiasm immediately subscribe the $1,000,000 foundation fund and send their approval of their quota to Mrs. Packard or Mrs. Bigler

NATIONAL JUNIOR PIN

The junior of the General Federation of Women's Clubs are [illegible] Dear Mrs. Packard:

Together [illegible] Mrs. Packard: [illegible] Mrs. Alfeene Lowrey of the Detroit Junior Council has been selected and Miss Lowrey's own words the description of the pin is as follows

The designing of a symbol to represent a new organization is always a great pleasure to me, first because it seems to me the first important thing to do in the choosing of your aim, your goal, your standard to be always in front of you to lead you on. In the forging this with a design should come from one who is a dreamer, all artists are dreamers for a dream, while based on reality, adds just a little more to the end there is no end there is no reach that would not there at first So this is the symbol of our Junior Council. I know it stands to be true

On the shield of your service are the colors of the rainbow and on it are its purposes "Dressed in silver on a ground of blue and yellow The "J" of silver for the purity of thought and purpose of the junior membership in the General Federation of Women's Clubs The bars is for service and loyalty of the seniors and [illegible] The yellow represents all the life and enthusiasm with which the juniors are spreading right on the problems they set themselves to do The shield rests on a square with its corners reaching to the Four Corners of the Earth and the whole is encircled by the "Curve of Continuity" The officers pins will have two sapphires symbolizing depth and quality of purpose

I shall be exceedingly proud when I see the pin or banner raised to the top of its aims and hope Or say every pin bearing banner or plaque on the club room wall will be the same symbol of the juniors and we will hear many shouts of congratulations along with the zeal of the world's Carry On

NEW HAVEN HAS GOOD SHOWING FOR MONTH

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

While numerous other railroads made poor displays for November, the New Haven, of which John J. Pelley is president, again reports a good showing. The New Haven's report, made public today, gives the following figures of revenues and expenses for the month of November and the 11 months ended November 30, 1929:

	1929	1928
November gross (in full spaces)	$12,876,419	$12,760,177
Net railway operating income	3,765,909	3,418,062
Net after charges	2,059,347	2,007,781
Deficit	2,503,013	2,559,548
11 mos. gross (in full spaces)	139,579,120	136,907,382
11 mos. railway operating income	36,633,476	36,433,486
11 mos. net after charges	20,413,758	21,386,632
11 mos. deficit after charges	16,635,358	16,831,271

JOHN J. PELLEY

The New Haven is improving its passenger service steadily, and its plans for 1930 are couched in ambitious terms. President Pelley is paying particular attention to passenger service, and this is important because the line earns nearly 60 per cent as much gross revenue from passenger business as from freight and the proportion was formerly much higher. Director Gifford meeting November 26 approved the expenditure of $2,000,000 for new equipment. Altogether the improvement program under way or immediately contemplated involves about $15,000,000.

Pres. Pelley states 100 modern steel passenger cars of de luxe type are being built for the New Haven by Osgood Bradley Car Co. of Worcester. These are of new design, to be equipped with roller bearings. Pres. Pelley hopes that before long every wooden car on the system will be scrapped.

Transportation interests leaders in fields of finance and business because it is vital to continuance and expansion of such prosperity as we at present enjoy. Note the action of Dorchester merchants in calling for bonfire rules on the Old Colony and other main thoroughfares. There is tardiness in adopting such rules. Despite the fact that they have worked out well on the Newburyport Turnpike, Blue Hill ave. and elsewhere.

There is also a move under way to have the Bay State laws amended so that operating an automobile over 20 miles an hour on a road of a thickly settled district will not be unlawful. The speed limit under like conditions in New Hampshire, for example, is 35 miles an hour. At least one state has established the speed limit. Certainly it is ridiculous to have a 20-mile limit law on the statute books when it makes every-day law violators out of nearly a million Massachusetts vehicle drivers.

* * *

The old law was passed before motor vehicles were equipped with anything comparable to the safety devices of the present day. The argument that prosecuting officers want it retained because it insures convictions whenever they wish to bring charges does not appeal to many we know who are genuinely interested in real road safety.

Director C. F. Kettering of the research laboratories of General Motors is indicated as in line with the movement by declaring solution of the traffic problem lies in making the present speeds of 65 to 70 miles an hour possible over long distances, as, for example in parts of New York State.

What is the use of providing roads, at the expense of automobile owners, which compel such safe for higher rates of speed if the legal limit is to be 20 miles an hour? Director M. M. Franklin of the automobile bearing his name and Vice-President Paul C. Hoffman of Studebaker believe removal of maximum speed limits by more states would save lives.

* * *

One large corporation has been doing very little loss selling. Its president holds that over a cycle of years the advantage is hardly worth the trouble.

Elgin National Watch Co. declared extra dividend of $1 and regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents.

Employers Now Favor Reward Won by Results

Blanket Bonuses Based on Pay Found Not Wholly Satisfactory

—By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK Dec. 26—This Christmas a larger number of companies than ever before awarded not blanket bonuses but bonuses in accordance with the achievements of the individual employe.

In other words, the modern management idea is to pay in accordance with results.

Outside of Wall Street houses, the distribution of regular cash bonuses to all and sundry, based on a certain percentage of wages is not gaining favor.

Numbers of employers have abandoned that plan because they found they were locked upon such annual bonuses as part and parcel of their pay, regarded as something to be entitled and for which there was no occasion to feel grateful. Not only so, but the effect of receiving a large lump sum was not always conducive to the true well-being of the employe. One, for example, when J. P. Morgan & Company paid a full year's salary as bonuses were such. It is said, that the firm decided not to repeat their action.

Corporations whose stock has an established market have turned more and more to giving Christmas bonuses in the form of stock, especially in the case of all those occupying positions of unusual responsibility.

The Steel Corporation, General Electric and General Motors are among the billion-dollar class of organizations that have adopted this system among their more salaried men. The Steel Corporation was among the first to sell shares to wage earners on attractive terms. Since then many others have done the same thing.

I understand that General Motors, General Electric and the Steel Corporation do not have a rigid yard-stick for fixing bonuses according to pay, but that those who have distinguished themselves by outstanding meritorious service of any kind during the year receive special consideration.

The largest bank in America, the National City of New York, has a plan, several years ago adopted, which operates similarly. Its board officers in write down how much they think each fellow-officer should receive, and then those men form the head of the institution in allocating the bonus fund.

The basic idea coming more and more into vogue among important corporations is to grant rewards commensurate with the actual service contributed. This supplies stronger incentive than where bonuses are fixed simply at a percentage of salaries.

In dealing with thousands of rank-and-file workers, it is less easy to carry out the principle of making awards in line with each man's merits. Many large companies have adopted plans having that objective.

The Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company, which is this Christmas distributing $250,000 in bonuses among more than 6000 employes, rewards each motorman and conductor for the number of days, at the end of 30 days without an accident. Extra bonuses are added when no accidents occur for at least only $52,000. Cash alone was three times all current liabilities.

Many managements would like to be able to put into force an effective plan covering all classes of workers, but they have been able to formulate a feasible and equitable arrangement which would be applicable all down the payrolls. However, "Where there's a will, there's a way." And probably it will be found possible to make progress after fuller study.

Paying for suggestions is another means adopted by some companies desirous of recognizing unusual merit. But it has often seemed as if these suggestion payments were unreasonably low.

It is now universally admitted that the best is work done by employes who have a real interest in, ship. This sense of partnership can best be inspired by devising ways and means of adding appropriate rewards for unusually meritorious service—on top of regular profit-sharing or other plans which apply to all, the indifferent, uninterested worker as well as the worthiest worker.

To get results, pay by results.

Overseas Unit for Detroit Aircraft

Chicago, Dec. 26—Detroit Aircraft Corp. has formed a unit to be known as Detroit Aircraft Export Corp., for handling export sales in South and Central America, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Detroit Aircraft recently acquired Gliders, Inc., which expects to make and sell about 1000 gliders in 1930. Price of gliders has been reduced from $580 to $450.

UTILITIES WIN LEAD ON NEW YORK CURB

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec. 26 (AP)—The curb market moved decisively higher today, although trading continued in comparatively small volume. Buying interest centered in the utilities and the oils also were in fair demand.

Announcement of a plan of capitalization adjustment of the Standard Gas & Electric properties, whereby Standard Power & Light would become a holding company controlling Standard Gas, resulted in a rise of about 20 points in Standard Power & Light stock. The market in Standard Power stock, however, is normally thin, and it is subject to wide moves.

Report of this plan, nevertheless, was sufficient to revive rumors of impending mergers and realignments of utility properties, and reflection of them upon these shares. Electric Bond and Share, American Power and Light, American and Foreign Power Warrants and Duke Power rose three points or more. Also Commonwealth Power, lower priced issue, mounted nearly two points.

Rails, glares displayed renewed speculative interest, largely in response to rumors of ambitious pool plans in this quarter. Late turn of the year, as sponsors of the petroleum issues feel that they have not received due progress made in production control. Still, unmoved three points, and such shares as Standard of Indiana, Humble and Vacuum made moderate headway.

In the mines, Newmont jumped several points, but other shares were sluggish. There was some disappointment among backers of the copper issues that Anaconda directors declared only the regular quarterly dividend today.

Atlantic and Pacific jumped nearly 25 points. Tubize, on the other hand, dropped more than 7. Industrials were largely dull, although a few issues were in fair demand.

The investment trusts were generally firm. Shenandoah, Transamerica, Goldman Sachs and Lehman Corp. advanced slightly.

NEW DIVIDENDS DECLARED

Numerous new dividends were declared today.

At Portsmouth, N. H., directors of the New Hampshire National Bank declared a semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent and an extra dividend of 5 per cent payable Dec. 31.

Board of Commerce & Trust Co. declared a semi-annual dividend of 40 cents a share, payable Jan. 2. This is equivalent to the 8 per cent rate paid on the stock prior to the five for one split-up.

Directors of Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, payable Jan. 2 to stockholders of record Dec. 26. R. O. Cunningham, president, in announcing the dividend, said:

"This is the first dividend on the common stock of the corporation, but we have not characterized it as a quarterly dividend as the board is not yet committed to any definite policy of payments on the junior stock, which is rather closely held. A dividend of 50 cents is conservative in view of our earnings this year and our present financial position.

"In the 11 months ended with November 30 the Fidelity Corporation earned its class A dividend almost five times, and after deducting this dividend, and preferred stock, there was a balance equivalent to over $8 a share on the 75,000 shares of common stock. At the end of November current assets were over $1,800,000 and current liabilities, including federal taxes, only $452,000. Cash alone was three times all current liabilities."

Fidelity Value Manufacturing Company declared an extra dividend of $1 per share on common stock, payable January 2.

Canada Dry Sales in 9 Months Up

New York, Dec. 26—Net sales of Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., in nine months ended Sept. 30 totaled $10,624,628, against $9,357,253 in nine months of 1928, gain of $1,267,375, says President Saylor.

Total current assets Sept. 30 were $3,196,094 and total current liabilities $1,055,507, leaving working capital $3,660,537. Surplus totaled $3,980,506.

Mr. Saylor said: "We regard prospects for the ensuing year with complete confidence. We expect a substantial increase in sales and a very substantial increase in profits from consolidated operations of your properties."

Art Metal Works Has Biggest Month

Net income of Art Metal Works, Inc., for the 11 months ended Nov. 30 totaled $911,600, with net for November $136,332.

The management estimates that both December net for December will be greater than November when business was the largest in the company's history.

As of Nov. 30 the ratio of current assets to current liabilities was over 12 to 1.

Initial Dividend

Western Steel Products Ltd. declared initial dividend of 50 cents on common, payable Jan. 10.

BOND MARKET HAS DRAGGING SESSION

By JOHN L. LOOLET

New York, Dec. 26 (AP) — The bond market dragged through one of the dullest sessions of the year today. Trading in all sections of the list was extremely narrow in scope, and the tiresome routine was an irregularity typical of an exceptionally dull day.

Rails understood, however, was firm and there was enquiry for investment issues of the best grades brought prompt advances.

Money rates were firm, with the banks quoted at 6% to 5 per cent. Call loans on call funds ran again 5% per cent. But there were numerous days in prospect for heavy disbursements bid to the banks that a firmer tone would develop.

Interest in the foreign list fairly well sustained. Argentine issues, both Internal and External, were the wide fluctuations have appeared recently, were steady but dull and there was some shifting of attention to the Argentine 6s of 1959, the most prominent, nontrivial government issue of the firm.

Conventions rallied moderately in the early appearance of strength in stocks. American and International Telephone 4½s rose more than a point, and the 5s of 1960 showed unusual briskness, but without small range.

The rails were mixed. Changes on the upside covered St. Louis & San Francisco 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Mobile & Montgomery refunding 5s, and a few others.

Declines of around half a point came out in Missouri Pacific 5s, Chicago & Northwestern 4s, and Chicago Central 5s. The thinness of the market was well illustrated by a 2½-point drop in Missouri Pacific 4½s on small dealings.

Utilities and high-grade industrials were firm. Slight improvement was shown in Consolidated Gas deben. 5s, Detroit Edison 5s, New York Telephone refunding 4s and Southern Bell Telephone 5s. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s and Consolidated Gas 4½s were all sold off a shade. Steels lined up and gained a point.

United States government worked higher on small turnovers.

SHOE MEN WILL ATTEND SHOW

Haverhill, Dec. 26—A delegation of 50 Haverhill shoe manufacturers and their salesmen or other representatives, will leave for St. Louis Saturday of next week to attend the style show of the National Shoe Retailers' Association. Fred L. Cooper, general manager of the Haverhill Manufacturers' Association, will accompany the delegation.

Many local concerns have manufactured samples that will be on exhibition at the style show, including the Brewer Boot Co., Parr & Bloomfield, Wright, Guerrin & Mahoney Shoe Co., R. V. Murphy Shoe Co., Simon Shoe Co., Hill-Standish Shoe Co., Slipper Shoe Co., L. H. Packard Co., Haverhill Cooperative Shoe Co., Inc., A. E. Miller & Sons, Inc., National Shoe Co., Mildren Shoe Co., Metcalf Shoe Co., Kinney Shoe Co., Inc., Kimel Shoe Co., Kenney Shoe Co., Inc., Hamilton Shoe Co., Haverhill Cooperative Shoe Co., Hirshberg Shoe Co., Inc., Hamilton Shoe Co., Cooperative Shoe Co., Parker Shoe Co., Fisher Shoe Co., Gerber Shoe Co.

"Short" Interest in Market Large

New York, Dec. 26—Those in a position to judge size of market's short interest believe it is about as large now as at any time this year and from every indication it will rule high for some time to come what Wall Street terms a "conduct market" is in prospect. Instead of moving outward in long swings of unusually light, but inter-office borrowings are heavy, especially in specialties on Stock Exchange and other popular trading issues.

Buying Orders for Radio Are Placed

New York, Dec. 26 — While the holiday radio business was not as good as was anticipated earlier this year, there was money in the financial district who have placed orders for radio stocks in anticipation of just slightly above the previous low levels. Conditions in the radio industry indicate that with the survival of the fittest, and in many instances the latter are going to benefit in the long run by the elimination of some of the smaller competitors now in that trade.

Stainless Steel Orders Piling Up

Cleveland, O., Dec. 26—F. J. Critchlow, chairman of the Republic Steel Corp., announces plans for increasing production of its new stainless steel. Owing to the adoption of the metal by several leading automobile manufacturers the company is 15 weeks behind in deliveries on stainless.

Passes Dividend

Standard Investment Corp. omitted the quarterly stock dividend of 1½ per cent to common and the regular quarterly 1½ per cent quarterly stock dividends at that time.

Or No Suit Club Will Take Your Money—Maybe

It has always seemed to us that the man who would join a suit club is only a little more intelligent than the trustful patron of the shell game at a county fair.

The suit club racket is as old as "green goods," older than the "Spanish prisoner."

"By the payment of but two dollars a week," the gentlemanly agent says, "you will be entitled at the expiration of twenty-five weeks to walk into our factory and come out with a $50 suit on your back."

YOU know your way to the depot and back, and you laugh him off.

"Wait a minute!" he says. "But, on account of your being well-known and popular, YOU are to have YOUR suit when only three or four payments have been made.

"Get the idea? This is OUR method of advertising."

Forty "members" of one suit club have been telling about it under oath, in one of the courtrooms of Middlesex County.

An expert, testifying for the Government, gave it as his opinion that their fifty-dollar suits could be bought for from $12 to $15.

One of the suits, the witness declared, was "worth the price of a good pair of pants."

The club had 500 members.

None of them, popular or out of favor, well-known or obscure, received his suit for fewer payments than were named in the bond. The manufacturer, they were told—an office was his factory—was "not responsible for the misrepresentations of his agents."

The man who reads the newspapers knows that he can buy a good suit for $35, an excellent suit for $50, in any clothing store in Boston.

He knows, too, that if he will choose his shop with care—and all he has to do is turn to the advertising columns—he can be certain of style and fit and that the merchant will stand behind the quality of the texture.

But why bring THAT up?

Are the well-known and popular "gents" who join suit clubs likely to be influenced by "paper talk"?

Tush!

P.S.—Imagine picking Middlesex—Bushnell's County!—as the setting for a "racket."

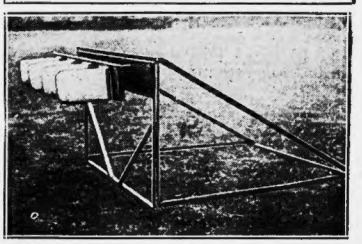
Machine Improves Football

Who Will Invent a Machine to Improve HEAD Work? That's Harder

(Copyright, 1929)



A MACHINE FOR FOOTBALL PLAYERS

THIS machine, built in England, is used by "rugger" football players in "scrum" practice. Powerful young players dash against this contrivance, seeking to push it back, as in a real game they push back the line of opposing players.

Well padded, like a human body, built to resist attack, this small machine will hold back a weight equivalent to 1400 pounds hurled against it.

The "robot" football player is powerful enough to resist attacks by seven live players, each weighing 200 pounds.

This interesting little invention will be tried here in America, perhaps, although we have so many, only too anxious to play the game, in practice or otherwise, that it makes robots unnecessary.

Solemn old gentlemen, a little stiff in the knees, and short of breath, will observe pessimistically that many machines are made to improve the muscles, legs, arms, chest.

But how little is done, in the way of machinery or otherwise, to improve and strengthen the MINDS of young people, and how little enthusiasm young people show in using such mind developing apparatus as now exists.

Take two great football teams, to the biggest "bowl" or stadium in the world, and it will be packed, by crowds willing to sit in the cold air, watching.

Take the same stadium, announce an intellectual discussion by the two greatest teams of professors in the world, and your audience will probably consist of eight or ten other professors, with their hands behind their ears.

Too much attention to the body, too little attention to the mind.

However, a healthy mind grows best and does its best work in a healthy body.

Sport, good games develop a healthy body. Let us hope the healthy minds will come later. They always have come, and have done the world's real work, although they haven't got the applause, or drawn the crowds.

The Rocket Plane

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

WITHOUT great organs of publicity constantly on the alert, the progress of science is observed with eager curiosity.

Science has wrought so many marvels in our era that nothing now seems impossible. Some epochal discovery may be on the point of perfection.

It behooves us to be awake and ready to announce it when it arrives.

The marvel of the hour, more because of promise than of actual accomplishment, is the rocket plane.

For many decades imaginative minds have played with the idea of a rocket bearing human freight that would plumb the depths of the interstellar spaces.

Perhaps it is Jules Verne who describes the art of flight of a giant projectile, the Columbiad, fired from a mighty sunken ship in Florida.

Perhaps it is a nameless writer who describes a sort of colossal Ferris Wheel, which flings a car tangentially from the circular rim into the outer.

Perhaps it is an already multiplying line of scientists, mechanics and inventors—Goddard, Oppl, Oberth—who are busily working out principles of the successful flight of freight-bearing rockets.

Perhaps these rockets, guided by robot pilot, will transport mail from Berlin to New York in thirty minutes. Perhaps a rocket plane may carry a passenger safely from New Haven to Dieppe, from Bougogne to Folkstone.

BALLOONS, dirigibles and airplanes are all dependent for flight upon the buoyant power of air.

A balloon or a dirigible rises and floats through the air, because it is filled with some substance, say, gas, which makes it lighter than the volume of air which it displaces.

An airplane has been happily termed a box kite driven by a motor. The speed with which it is driven through the air, setting up pressures and suctions above and below its wing surfaces, enables it to stay aloft.

It has often been pointed out that there is a definite limit of altitude to which a Zeppelin or an airplane can attain. Either eventually finds its maximum altitude or "ceiling," beyond which it cannot ascend, since the air becomes too rarified to function as a supporting agency.

THE rocket plane is based upon a different principle. It is not like a helicopter, depending upon the density of the air to bore its way upward, as a screw bores through a plank of wood. It rises, according to the familiar principle that action and reaction are equal.

Any hunter is familiar with the phenomenon of a gun's "kick." As the charge leaves the gun, with a given force, the gun recoils with an equal force.

This force of recoil seems less because it is distributed over a considerable area, the face of the butt, and is borne by the resilient shoulder of the heedless hunter.

Already rocket automobiles have made alarming sprints over roads without guides, over courses with directive trucks. No enormous speeds have been attained—perhaps a maximum of two miles per minute.

On September 30 of the present year Fritz von Open flew in a rocket plane for 75 seconds, rising to a height of 50 feet and traversing a distance slightly in excess of one mile.

Perhaps Frankfort, Germany, will be celebrated some day as is Kitty Hawk, N. C., today—for the first successful flight of a rocket airplane.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WE cannot agree with the furriers who are going to call furs by their right labels.

It destroys the romance without diminishing the installments.

A woman would rather think her coat was crippled ermine than to know it was healthy skunk.

She would rather have bruised and battered mink than the finest of elderdown from the most beautiful wailing mice.

The Better Business Bureau of Boston insists on the furriers using the correct terms of muskrat, skunk, rabbit, cat and ground hog.

A man who thus destroys the illusions of holiday shopping should be compelled to wear porcupine garments with the needles turned in.

The furs of today have glorious names even if they are not fur. What woman is going to swish around in a dolman made of baboon fuzz and guinea pig?

When a salesman says that a coat is genuine Labrador skalinka, we like to believe it. His firm would have a profit on the sale even if you gave him a forged check. You wear your Labrador salinka and you are happy because you do not know that it is really the pompadours of frightened antenters.

We like to think of intrepid trappers pursuing priceless silver fox through the silent valleys and frozen hills of the Siberian precincts. Why tell us that the animal was caught when its better judgment succumbed to the tasty aroma of slightly scorched cheese?

You take your wife home a Christmas coat and say, "Dearie, this is the finest skunk that money can bribe. The coat is feeble armadillo and the cuffs are made of moose whiskers. It looks like mink, but there the resemblance meets a red traffic light and stops deader than a shucked oyster.

"It also looks like ermine on Tuesdays and Thursdays, but it is really the cowlick of a gila monster. It is lined with the skins of boil weevils and the boa is Arizona prairie dog. This is such a beautiful coat the salesman gave me an extra pair of trousers with it for you to search.

That's when your wife smacks you over the head with a tastefully furnished seven-room apartment and goes home to cry on her mother's manly shoulders.

Well, maybe the honest furriers are right. You can remove the leopard's spots from the linoleum but it's still oilcloth.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

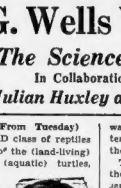
THE SECOND class of reptiles consists of the (land-living) tortoises and (aquatic) turtles, their bodies encased in a hard, protective shell into which, in some but not all types, the head and limbs can be withdrawn. The third is by far the largest and most varied order, and includes the snakes and lizards — the rattlesnakes, cobras, kraits, pythons, geckos skunks, chameleons, monitors, iguanas, slow-worms, and a host of others.



H. G. Wells

Finally, the fourth order contains one genus only—the lizard-like eninmal, sphenodon, which is sufficiently distinct in its internal anatomy to be put in an order by itself.

With the extinct reptiles—twenty orders of them!—we shall deal more fully later on. Most of the extinct reptiles, like the survivors of the group, were terrestrial, but some, the ichthyosaurs, plesiosaurs, and mosasaurs, lived like whales in the sea, and others, the pterodactyls, soared like bats by means of their elongated arms and fingers.

The great and varied group of dinosaurs included (besides a number of smaller forms) the largest known land animals — animals second only to the whale in size; some of them peaceful browsers of plants, others perhaps the fiercest and most terrible predatory creatures that the world has ever seen.

In that reptilian world of the past there may have been very different conditions from those prevalent today. Not only were the great animals of that time unprotected against wide aria tions of temperature, but the vegetation also was of a different kind.

There were no deciduous trees to shed their leaves in winter, if winter there was, and no conifers with a foliage able to resist injury from a heavy fall of snow. Nor were there grasses and flowers ripening seeds that could hibernate through a cold season. And all the surviving reptiles of today live either continuously in warm climates or with intermittent stages of winter torpor, for the summer sunshine.

They are extraordinarily like the vestiges of some ancient conservative aristocracy in a world of new conditions and more energetic newcomers.

3. THE LINKING AMPHIBIANS

FROGS and salamanders are often classified by the uninitiated as reptiles, together with lizards and other cold-blooded land vertebrates. But they are not so.

They belong to a very different class, the amphibia—a class which is interesting because it sits on the fence that divides the lunged and limbed from the gilled and finned, the air-breathing mammals, birds and reptiles from the water-breathing fishes.

It is a class of vast antiquity, but never has it displayed the variety and abundance of the mammals and birds of recent times, or of reptiles in their prime. Amphibia may be recognized by their smooth, moist skins, which lack either hair, feathers or scales.

This naked skin is one of the reasons why (with one or two rare and specialized exceptions) an amphibian cannot venture far from moist places; possessing neither the dry scales of a reptile nor the air-jacket of a bird or mammal he has no protection against water loss.

Sometimes on very hot days one finds mummified frogs lying on roads—frogs which have ventured into the desert of the road and have dried up before they could find their way off it again.

Two of the three living orders of amphibians are well known. The first, the frogs and toads, are tailless, and have long powerful hind limbs by means of which they leap or swim.

The second, the newts and salamanders, swim by fish-like, sidewise wriggling of the body, which tapers behind into a long tail; they generally have four limbs, which they use for crawling on land, but in some forms the limbs are very small or even absent altogether.

The third order includes a few rare burrowing forms, having worm-like bodies and lacking both tails and limbs.

Nearly all amphibians spend at least a part of their lives in water. They have a fish infancy and an air-breathing adult life.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

NO woman can see why a man will leave a good exciting fight at home to go to see a poor, half-hearted one at the stadium.

A man sometimes uses all his art in trying to deceive a woman—and then the woman has to use all HER art in pretending that he has succeeded.

After ten years of married life, a sensible couple will step as far around a row as they would around a live wire.

It doesn't seem to make a man any happier to succeed in catching the woman he has been pursuing than it makes a kitten to succeed in catching the ball it has been chasing. Both of them would rather go on "playing the game."

A husband without a hobby is like a child without a toy. He has to be amused, answered, watched and diverted every moment, or he'll get into mischief.

Somewhere in the Book of Judgment Saint Peter must have a whole section reserved for the alibi-artists—there are so many of them!

Some men always win at poker; some always "come out just even"—and a few tell their wives the TRUTH.

A woman never realizes that she is past her first youth, and perhaps her second, until she comes upon a pair of lovers locked in fond embrace, and catches herself murmuring, "For heaven's sake! Are they still doing that sort of thing?"

The modern girl has many more love affairs than her mother had; like modern magazine stories, they seem to be mostly hectic "atmosphere" with very little plot, no climax, and not much of a hero.

One drawback to a church wedding is that there are so few "exits" for a nervous bachelor.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 — More than 10,000 vibrant and stage-struck girls trek to New York every year seeking "careers." Cold statistics reveal that out of that number less than 1000 find theatrical employment. And less than 10 of the total attain anything above chorus jobs.

Those who fail usually turn first to posing for artists. They know that if their face grace a magazine cover it is likely to open the private door to the office of a Ziegfeld, White or Carroll—at least for an interview. The next likely post is that of a mannikin in a dressmaking parlor.

The mannikin is often sought by those courtiers with the gift of spending, and in this way the girls form contacts that toss them into a life of gayety. They become temporarily the silken creatures of some incredible Aladdin's palace, but that is all.

Experts in sociological problems, as well as those who have given their lives to welfare work, agree that no girl should come to New York without funds to carry her over a six months' period of unemployment. The lowest estimate of this amount is $700.

The girl who depends upon her beauty alone to provide the metropolitan open sesame is usually courting disaster. She is the one so often tabulated under the grim heading: "Missing Persons." She may rise quickly to a certain material prosperity, but the descent is rapid.

Beauty, indeed, is often the greatest of all handicaps for a girl in New York. In a 12-months' period, investigators found that five hotel beauties were discarded and penniless and there was no trace whatever of seven were whose pulchritude excited newspaper notice.

The most successful among the thousands of invaders are those equipped with practical knowledge of business or a profession. They do not attain the dazzling headlines or Broadway "toast" but the majority reach a most enviable independence.

Every sudden success in New York proves a magnet that attracts a trail of dreamers. When Rudy Vallee popped into popularity almost every train entering the metropolis brought some pathetic Peter Ibbetson with star dust in his eyes—and a saxophone.

A rather bewildered gentleman dropped in today nervously rolling his handkerchief into an anguished ball. His wife in a sudden emergency telephoned his club where he had given the impression of spending much of his time. He was not there, nobody around the place had ever heard of him, nor was he even a member.

But that was just about half of the dilemma. Three weeks ago the gentleman's wife bumped into him in the silk stocking department of a store.

I thought the book agent had disappeared. Instead he has become a product of the highly geared age of specialization and receives greater rewards than ever before. He does not rap meekly at side doors and glance about nervously for the dog. He has a secretary phone for appointments and has learned in advance of your tastes in literature. Among reliable prospects, he does not ask you to pay a penny until you have perused the purchases. He frequently furnishes an entire library.

An ad writer who receives a salary of $50,000 a year preparing descriptions of foreign travel for steamship lines, is making his first trip abroad in January. Maybe he will not be so enthusiastic from now on.

"Did anyone ever tell you," inquires Lake Shore Drive, "that you look very much like Ashton Stevens, the Chicago critic?"

No, but a fellow told Ashton the same thing and they can't even find the body.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

POETS sing of jasmine,
Hyacinths and musk . . .
New-mown hay is sweeter
On the breeze at dusk.
Strange, exotic odors
Drift through songs and tales;
Fresher is the sea wind
Billowing brown sails.
Pungent scent of lemons,
Scent of clover blooms;
Though no dealer vends them,
These are rare perfumes.
Fragrances so near us
Seem but half discerned;
How to prize their sweetness
We have never learned.
Yet if these are missing
Day lacks glamor there;
Barren as a desert
Is that joyless air.
